ROOSEVELT ADVISES EGYPTIAN EDITORS

Hopes They Will All Work for the Right, but with Moderation and Self-Restraint.

FOR RELIGIOUS TOLERANCE

Report to the Contrary "a Wicked Lie"—Attends English Church and Dines with the Sirdar.

By JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.
Former Assistant Secretary of State.
Correspondent, of The New York Times and Chicago Tribune.
Copyright, 1910, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

CAIRO, March 27.—Few men ever had as strange an interview with representatives of the press as did Col. Roosevelt this afternoon with the editors of fourteen native papers. They had been especially anxious to meet the man they regarded as the greatest citizen of the most progressive democratic Republic in the world, believing that his advice would be valuable and uplifting to their country.

In compliance with the request Mr. Roosevelt granted them an interview in his room in the hotel. When they appeared some were in European costume with tarbooshes on their heads, showing them to be Mohammedans, the taller tarbooshes indicating satisfaction with the English rule, the shorter showing advocacy of nationalism. Some of them wore native costumes.

One sheik, Ali Youssef, who advised Mr. Roosevelt in an open letter not to speak in Egypt as he did in the Soudan, was dressed in a striking robe with an undervest embroidered in gold and a white turban.

The papers they represented ranged in opinion from approval of the present régime to advocacy of the expulsion of the English, by force if necessary; from defense of religious toleration to suggestions, constantly repeated, calculated to stir the Moslems against the Christians and the Christians against the Moslems.

Col. Roosevelt received the native editors cordially, opening the conversation by saying:

"I'm a newspaper man myself."

Referring to the report published in the Arabic papers attributing to him views calculated to stir religious feeling, he said he had already denounced the report in private conversation with the Khédive and his officials as a wicked lie. To the journalists he repeated that he never had said anything of the kind.

"If there is one word of advice I'd give to the Christians," he remarked, "it is that the Moslems treat the Christians with exact justice, and the Christians should act in exactly the same way as the Moslems.

"I will advise that here and anywhere else where I have any influence at all. When I was President in America no Christian was permitted to oppress a Moslem, and no Moslem could abuse a Christian. So it is in America now and in the Philippines under American rule."

One journalist suggested possible criticism of Col. Roosevelt's lecture at the university to-morrow, which all are awaiting with keen interest.

"As to my speech," Col. Roosevelt replied, "any one can criticise it who pleases after it is made.

"I always tell the newspaper men in my own country," he continued, "that they are using one of the most formidable weapons of modern life, and that it is vital to see that they use it for good purposes and not for bad purposes.

"The correspondent or editor of a newspaper is in reality a public servant. Just as I think a man like myself, when President, should be held strictly accountable for his acts, so I think a newspaper man should be held responsible for his."

It was explained to Mr. Roosevelt that the Coptic as well as the Moslem papers were published in Arabic, and he was assured that all were trying to do their duty by the country though sometimes they made mistakes.

"You make mistakes," exclaimed Col. Roosevelt. "We all make mistakes. But I hope you will all work with zeal for the right, but with moderation and self-restraint.

"Take, for instance, these six American newspaper men with me. They represent all shades of political and religious opinion, but all stand alike for certain things. They stand for justice as between man and man. The Catholic demands justice for the Protestant and the Jew, the Protestant for the Catholic and the Jew, and the Jew for the Protestant and the Catholic. The man of one political or religious belief comes to the defense of the man of other political or religious views. They demand justice for all."

It was explained to Col. Roosevelt that cordial relations existed between the Mohammedans and the Christians in Egypt. He expressed his approval of this condition, but said it was not generally known. He closed the interview by referring to the Soudan, saying that any man who knew what Khartoum was in the days of the Mahdi could not fail to realize the enormous progress of the last decade.

The Roosevelt family went to the English Church this morning and to-night they dined with Sir Francis Wingate, the Sirdar.

SAYS ROOSEVELT MEANS WELL.

Doesn't Know What He Is Talking About, Cairo Editor Declares.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 27.—The Cairo correspondent of The Daily Mail, describing a "heart-to-heart talk" that Mr. Roosevelt had to-day with a number of editors of Egyptian national papers, who have been criticising his speeches on British rule in Egypt, says one of the journalists summed up the Colonel as follows:

"He doesn't know what he is talking about, but means well."

TRANSFUSION SAVES MARESCA

Many Friends Offer Blood for Wounded Aid of Petrosino.

Tomaso Maresca, one of the late Detective Petrosino's old assistants, who was shot while working as a watchman in Montgomery Avenue, St. George, S. I., on Saturday morning, grew so weak from loss of blood late Saturday that Dr. D. P. McGuire of St. Vincent's Hospital, in West New Brighton, S. I., called for volunteers to give up blood to save Maresco's life. Dr. McGuire found thirty of the watchman's friends waiting for him at the hospital yesterday morning.

The doctor selected two, one being Philip Maresca, a brother of the wounded man, and the other Antonio Pollio, a cousin of his, both of 53 President Street, Brooklyn. Dr. McGuire took a pint of blood from each of them. With this transfusion Maresca seemed to grow somewhat stronger.

Dr. McGuire told the other twenty-eight volunteers that the wounded man had lost so much blood that he might need more. They all said they would be ready at any time to give whatever was needed.

There have been a number of burglaries in the section covered by Maresca. He was shot by one of three men he suspected, and tried to arrest. The police arrested Thomas Krone, the man accused of shooting the watchman; the other two escaped.

KILLED BY HIS OWN ENGINE.

Fireman Thrown Under Wheels As He Jumped—Had Won Carnegie Medal.

Albert Slatt, fireman of the Lackawanna train from New York arriving at South Orange, N. J., at 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning, was run over by his own engine when he jumped off before it stopped. He died at 5 o'clock in the Orange Memorial Hospital. Slatt struck the paling of a bridge and was thrown under the wheels. Both legs were cut off above the knees and his skull was fractured.

John Voight, the engineer, said he believed that Slatt had been blinded by the light of the fire and could not see where he was jumping. He had been stoking just before reaching South Orange, and remarked that he would jump off there and go back to the smoker for a drink of water while the train was waiting.

Slatt was the possessor of a Carnegie medal for bravery, having distinguished himself three Winters ago in the rescue of four men who had broken through the ice at Lake Hopatcong. He got the four men to safety and was going back for a fifth, but had to give up exhausted. The fifth man was drowned.

Slatt was unmarried and boarded at Dover, N. J. He leaves a widowed mother, a resident of Ledgewood, N. J.

HARVARD MEN AS WORKERS.

Secretary of University Association Says It Is Not a Rich Man's College.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., March 27.—"The impression that Harvard is a rich man's college is quite erroneous. Statistics prove that between one-fourth and one-third of the Harvard students are partially self-supporting," says Jerome D. Greer, Secretary of the Harvard Association.

That the university annually sends out hundreds of student waiters, bellboys, watchmen, carpenters, scene shifters, snow shovelers, janitors, chauffeurs, and a long string of other workers in more or less humble capacities has been definitely set forth in tables lately compiled at the university. The number of temporary positions filled was 1,600 in all; these figures covering the cases of students who work during the vacations and during spare hours in the Winter months.

The increase in the number of appointments of 161 over the year before shows a falling off of 361 from the year before that, when the increase was 522 over the preceding year. This difference may be partly explained by the financial conditions during a large part of the year under review, which undoubtedly had a serious effect on the number of calls for business men and tutors.

MAN STUDENT AT WELLESLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

WELLESLEY, Mass., March 27.—Diram Hagopian has the distinction of being the first man to take any of the college courses at Wellesley. He is attending the classes in literature and modern languages. Hagopian was permitted to study at the request of Dr. Mary Alice Willcox, instructor in the department of zoology. He is an Armenian refugee, whose family, which was of high standing, was wiped out in a massacre. After many hardships he reached a seaport and embarked for this country. He finally drifted into Wellesley, where he got a place in the Wellesley Inn. Dr. Willcox noticed him and interested others in him.

Dean Tufts says that the young Armenian was admitted into the classes because he is an exceptionally bright youth, and his appearance there is rather that of a listener than a student. The girl students regard his presence largely as a joke.

SEEK GIRL LETTER THIEVES.

Police Nearly Catch Two Seen Robbing Jersey City Mail Box.

The Jersey City police are looking for two young girls who were frightened away from a letterbox at Grove and Wayne Streets, Jersey City, last night, while in the act, the police believe, of extracting letters from the box. They dropped as they ran a large envelope which proved to contain a letter mailed by Harold Nelson of 49 Wayne Street, addressed to Miss Mary Moore, Franklin, Ind. It returned to Miss Moore a photograph of herself and a letter she had sent Nelson recommending herself as a very desirable young lady to marry.

Nelson recently achieved notoriety by announcing that he was the heir of George Nelson of Springfield, Mass., who left upon his death recently an estate valued at $1,000,000. Since the announcement he has been flooded with offers of marriage, and as he turned out not to be the heir he has been kept busy returning them to their authors with explanations.

Complaints that mail put in this particular Post Office box had failed to reach its destination have been received for some time, and the police have been keeping a watch upon it.

SHOWER BLESSINGS UPON ROCKEFELLER

How the Easter Congregation Received Him When He Went to Church.

FOUND THE SERMON GOOD

And Didn't Seriously Mind the Camera Men—Hard to Walk in Fifth Avenue for the Curious Who Watched Him.

John D. Rockefeller held an informal reception yesterday morning in the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church when he attended Easter service. He went to church this year with Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, whose daughter is Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Young Mr. Rockefeller was the third in the party.

As nearly everybody knows, Mr. Rockefeller lives in very secluded fashion. He rarely goes out walking in town. When he leaves his house he steps right into his automobile, and on some days he does not even leave his house. Reporters he refuses to see. But almost every Sunday morning when he is in town he goes to church, usually accompanied by his son, rarely by the women of the family. The camera men are too persisten for that. So Sunday after church is the only time the public ever gets near the richest man in America.

The public, as represented by the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church congregation, flocked around him as he stood in his pew after service yesterday morning and exchanged Easter greetings, Mr. Rockefeller genially responding to conversational approaches.

"We are going to Lakewood to-morrow," he told inquirers. "My wife is ailing. We leave very early in the morning—so early that one of my friends backed out from going with me."

Mr. Rockefeller told a reporter that he had not attended a conference held a week or two ago by Protestant ministers for the purpose of discussing a basis on which the different sects might unite. This idea of Protestants putting aside minor differences and uniting on their fundamental beliefs in an old hobby of his, however. About two years ago, before the idea was cherished by either the public or the ministers, he advocated such a union in a much closer form than it seems likely to take. He wanted only one Protestant church. That his idea, however, was a Protestant church largely Baptist in its tendencies, was the impression among his friends. And when a woman told him yesterday that she had been a missionary for another sect, he said:

"Ah, my dear madam, you will soon come to like our ways; you will soon come to like our ways." And his emphasis was wholly on the "our"

Mr. Rockefeller did not talk about the proposed Rockefeller Foundation, but the Rockefeller Foundation was evidently strongly in the minds of many of those who greeted him. Enthusiastic would be a mild description of their attitude toward their wealthy fellow-church member. One woman ran up to him, seized him by both hands, and cried:

"God bless you, Mr. Rockefeller, God bless you."

To which Mr. Rockefeller murmured, "Thank you very much."

"You are a benefactor of humanity, Sir," another whispered, and a third told him something to the effect that he was "God's especial ambassador on earth."

"I should like to have you all come and take dinner with me some day," Mr. Rockefeller remarked to a group of two or three.

The tentative invitation was ecstatically received. "So good of Mr. Rockefeller. Oh, so good of Mr Rockefeller," one of the invited remarked to everybody.

The chief parishioner's comments after the service were mostly about the sermon. Seventeen times, by actual count, he told church members who came up to shake hands, that "the sermon was very good." He stood up in his pew after the closing hymn, and those of the congregation who so desired stopped to speak to him as they passed.

Many did, and one person asked for financial assistance. She evidently got it, for, after a few minutes' conversation, she thanked him with great cordiality and gladness.

"It is my privilege, Madam," said Mr. Rockefeller, cordially, "and what is more," after she had gone, he remarked to a man friend, "I am very glad that you introduced me to that lady. I liked her."

After the procession of admiring friends and strangers had passed, Mr. Rockefeller, between Senator Aldrich and his son, moved slowly down the aisle. When he came to the street, however, a throng had assembled to see him. The crush was so great that he took at least fifteen minutes to walk the half block to Fifth Avenue—a pace exceedingly convenient for the five or six photographers who, standing in the street and running backward as he advanced, aimed their cameras at him from different angles.

When he turned homeward at Fifth Avenue the crowd turned, too, and the side of the street on which he was walking was literally packed for half a block. People would even run on ahead and stand on the doorsteps and high places to get a good view of him. The air resounded with "There's Rockefeller!" "Oh, I only saw the back of his head!" "What do you suppose he walks for when he could ride?" and "Why, he's old, isn't he?"

In the midst of it slowly wlaked Mr. Rockefeller, leaning rather heavily on the arm of his son, and with his other arm in that of Senator Aldrich.

As the three turned west into Fifty-fourth Street the crowd largely dispersed and went on its way, and the three or four new photographers who sprung up from in front of Mr. Rockefeller's house had a comparatively easy time of it. He was quite friendly with these camera men. One even made a fourth in the promenade for a short time.

And then the glass doors of Mr. Rockefeller's home opened, he stepped in, and his Easter church parade was over.

TWO KILLED IN COLLISION.

Electric Trains Meet at Full Speed—Fire from Wreck Burns House.

LIMA, Ohio, March 27.—Two men were killed and a house was burned to the ground as the result of a collision between two interurban electric trains near here to-day. Both trains were destroyed.

Pearl H. McPherson of Lima, a motorman, and Earl Rothrock of Lockington, an expressman, were killed, and James Risk of Lima, a baggageman, was fatally injured.

The collision occurred at a place where the tracks curve around an untenanted house. Both cars had been going at full speed. An exploding fuse started a fire that spread to the house.

BIG PROFIT IN GAS AT 80-CENT RATE

Consolidated Alone Made $3,371,739 More in 1909 Than 1908, Says Service Board.

COMPANY QUESTIONS THIS

Figures Exaggerated and Misleading, Declares Vice President Carter—$34,951,737 Paid for All Gas Used.

Eighty-cent gas in this city seems to have been profitable last year to the gas companies, according to a statement issued by the Public Service Commission yesterday.

The Consolidated Gas Company alone made $3,371,739 more in 1909 than it did in 1908, according to the commission. The Consolidated's net profits last year were $7,583,382, says the commission's statement. This company's total receipts for gas in 1909 were $23,948,455, and its operating expenses, including allowance for depreciation, were $17,436,847.

Officials of the Consolidated yesterday did not seem wholly gratified with the Public Service Commission's optimistic statement. Vice President Robert A. Carter issued a commentary on the commission's statement. He criticised the bookkeeping of the statistician who prepared the commission's statement. But Mr. Carter nowhere alleges that eighty-cent gas has not been adequately profitable.

In one part of the commission's statement it is pointed out that the Consolidated has sold gas to the public for 80 cents per thousand; to the city for 75 cents per thousand, and to other companies for from 23.63 cents to 54.93 cents per thousand. The revenue of the Consolidated for 1909 from selling gas to the public at 80 cents per thousand was $19,177,228, according to the statement. The Consolidated's revenue from supplying gas to the city was $407,288, while its revenue from gas sold to other companies was $2,479,261.

Including receipts for residuals, &c., amounting to $1,884,726, the Consolidated received from the New York public and the City Government a total of $23,948,455 in 1909. Vice President Carter of the Consolidated declares in his commentary that the 4,225,000 population of this city in 1909 paid per capita for gas an average of less than 2 cents per day.

The city's public and government paid $34,951,737 in 1909 altogether, according to the commission. This $11,003,202, however, was paid to companies outside the Consolidated. According to the commission's statement, these outside companies sold gas to the public at prices ranging from 80 cents to $1.30 per thousand. These outside companies sold gas to the city at 75 cents per thousand, and sold gas to other companies at from 50 to 60 cents per thousand.

The outside companies from their sale of gas to the public got $9,823,750; from the city, $400,414, and from other companies, $720,210. Their operating expenses, including allowance for depreciation, totaled $7,443,609, the commission says. These outside companies made a net profit during the year of $1,870,050, which is $871,055 more than they cleared in 1908, the statement says. According to the commission, the Consolidated furnished 30,874,931,000 cubic feet during 1909, and the outside companies furnished 13,446,610,903 cubic feet.

The faults which Vice President Carter has to find with the commission's statements concerning its apparently profitable year are many.

"The commission overstates the amount of gas we furnished during 1909 to the city and citizens," said Vice President Carter. "This overstatement amounts to 6,300,000,000 cubic feet. The commission's statistician included in such sales the gas sold between the companies themselves.

Company's Official Protests.

"The commission's statistician has also overstated the amount paid for the gas furnished to the public and the city departments. He has also inflated the revenue from gas sales by including in it the proceeds of the sale of residual products to the extent of $1,900,000.

"The commission's statement purports to show the results of the operations of the gas companies with gas at 80 cents. But it includes all the revenue derived by the Consolidated from its holdings in the stock of electric and suburban companies. These holdings amount to more than $4,000,000.

"The commission's statistician also includes the earnings of the Standard Gaslight Company and the New York Mutual Gas Company, available for dividends, at their full amount. But he includes the dividends paid out of such earnings in the earnings of the Consolidated. This is misleading. It is a duplication of earnings of between $350,000 and $400,000.

"The commission's statistician makes it appear that there has been a substantial increase in profits from the gas business. He does this by not showing the fixed charges which have been deducted from the net profits. In 1909 the fixed charges were nearly $1,500,000 less than they were in 1908. This has been due mainly to the conversion of $20,000,000 6 per cent. debentures into capital stock.

"A statement of fixed charges should always accompany such a statement as that which the commission has given out. In that way the public could have seen the extent to which the divisible surplus has been improved by the conversion of bonded debt into capital stock or by the cancellation of bonded or floating debt.

Explains Increase of Sales.

"The company's earnings should have been shown separately, as they were in the Consolidated's own annual report. The Consolidated's last annual report stated that there had been no increase in the average sales of gas per meter in 1909, when gas was 80 cents, over the same sales in 1905, when gas was $1. The additional sales of gas in 1909 were due entirely to the installation of additional meters. The percentage of increase in the number of meters in use in 1909 was identical with the percentage of increase in sales."

Mr. Carter points out other details, in which the Consolidated's last annual report is more fair and accurate. He says that the amount paid for gas in 1909 by the city and public was not $34,951,737, as the commission says, but $29,808,630. He asserts further that the reason of the "many discrepancies" in the commission's figures is that the Consolidated's complete annual report was only published a few days ago, and that the commission's figures are based on a brief and incomplete summary, furnished by the company to the commission previously.

GUN EXPLODES ON CRUISER CHARLESTON

Reported in Manila That Eight Were Killed or Wounded in Target Practice.

NO DETAILS RECEIVED YET

Ship Is Now Returning from Olongapo—She Is the Flagship of the Asiatic Fleet.

MANILA, Monday, March 28.—A report reached here to-day that a gun on the United States cruiser Charleston exploded during target practice, and that eight men were killed or wounded.

The Charleston is returning to Manila from Olongapo.

No details of the reported accident have been received here.

The Charleston is the flagship of Rear Admiral John Hubbard, Commander in Chief of the Asiatic fleet. Her commanding officer is Commander John H. Gibbons.

The Charleston is a protected cruiser of 9,700 tons, and carries fourteen 6-inch guns.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Up to midnight officials of the Navy Department had received no word of the accident on board the cruiser Charleston, in which eight men are reported to have been killed or injured by the bursting of a gun.

Rear Admiral N. B. Mason, Chief of Ordnance, believes that if the report is confirmed it will be found that the damage was done in one of the six-inch turrets.

Steps have been taken by the department to learn the extent of the accident.

The cruiser Charleston was launched at Newport News on Jan. 22, 1904. She carries a complement of 64 men. Her armament consists of fourteen 6-inch guns, eighteen 14-pounders, twelve 3-pounders, twelve 1-pounders, eight Colts, and two submerged 18-inch torpedo tubes.

There have been several fatal accidents in the American Navy due to explosions. On April 9, 1903, the port twelve-inch gun in the forward turret on the battleship Iowa exploded when the ship was at target practice off Pensacola, killing three men and injuring five others.

On April 13, 1904, through the ignition of 100 pounds of smokeless powder in one of the forward turrets of the battleship Missouri when she was at target practice off Guantanamo, Cuba, four officers and fourteen of the crew were killed.

Another severe accident occurred on board the battleship Georgia on July 13, 1907, during target practice in Massachusetts Bay. Two 100-pound cases of powder exploded in a superimposed turret, killing one Lieutenant and seven men and injuring thirteen others.

The most recent disaster on board one of the United States battleships occurred on the Tennessee on June 6, 1908, during her speed trials off the coast of California, when a boiler burst, killing four men and seriously injuring eight others.

THOUGHT DYING MAN DRUNK.

Hundreds Passed Janitor Who Fell 3 Stories—Could Have Been Saved.

While washing the windows on the third floor of Public School 5, in Yonkers, Saturday noon, Thomas Marsh, the janitor, lost his balance and fell to the sidewalk below, breaking three ribs, one of which punctured his left lung. Although hundreds of persons passed along Lockwood Avenue in front of the school and by Marsh's unconscious body, none offered assistance. Some of them explained to the police later that they thought Marsh drunk.

It was not until 5 o'clock in the afternoon that several boys playing in Lockwood Avenue went over to Marsh and tried to get him on his feet. Marsh's groans when they touched him alarmed the boys, and George Chamberlain, an older brother of one of them, was called. Chamberlain looked at Marsh and summoned an ambulance from St. John's Hospital. Dr. Doerfler responded, and after taking Marsh to the hospital, notified the police of the accident. Marsh died at the hospital Sunday afternoon.

The police have been unable to find any one who saw Marsh fall from the window of the school, but they have the names of a large number of persons who passed by the unconscious form on the sidewalk in the five hours following the accident.

Dr. Doerfler said that had a surgeon been summoned earlier, Marsh's injuries would not have proved fatal necessarily. On this statement Coroner Iles has ordered an investigation.

TO ELECT A POSTMASTER.

Fishkill Landing Citizens to Settle a Warm Republican Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., March 27.—There will be a unique election here on April 5, when the electors will choose a Postmaster by popular vote. So great had been the rivalry for the appointment that the local Republican leaders and Congressman Fish could not well make a choice without causing trouble. So they called a conference of the six candidates and told them that the matter would be settled by ballot.

The candidates did not fancy the plan and two withdrew. Four, however, will make the race—Dr. James M. De Garmo, 70 years old; James S. Darraugh, a business partner of Assemblyman Smith; John Sewell, a young business man, and W. Scott Coldwell, for forty-two years an active Republican worker.

Both Republican and Democratic electors will be permitted to express their choice on a blanket ballot. Congressman Fish says he will recomend to the President the man getting the most votes.

AFTER HAT PINS IN LYNN.

Proposed to Make War on Long Ones After Chicago's Example.

LYNN, Mass., March 27.—Following the crusade against long hat pins in Chicago, a movement has been started in this city which, if successfully carried out, will make it a misdemeanor for any woman to wear a hatpin which protrudes from her hat one inch.

Councilman Edward J. Moran, Jr., has stated that he will introduce an order in the Council meeting Tuesday providing a ten-dollar fine for the commitment of the offense.

MOUNT ETNA MORE ACTIVE.

Perret Expects Great New Flow of Lava or an Earthquake.

CATANIA, Sicily, March 27.—While the quantity of lava from the craters of Mount Etna continues to decrease, the internal activity of the volcano was stronger to-day than yesterday. Frank A. Perret, the American volcanologist, believes the decrease in the flow of lava is due to obstructions in the new craters which prevent it from flowing freely, and that later, in a few days or perhaps in a week, either the molten mass will force a passage or an earthquake will result.

Mr. Perret went to-day from Nicolosi to the Alpine Club refuge, which is situated near the craters, and later telegraphed down as follows:

"The activity of Etna to-day is stronger, but the lava is slower. Terrific explosions in the interior of the mountain continue."

NAPLES, March 27.—Five large new fissures have opened near the central crater of Mount Vesuvius, but the volcano shows no great activity.

NEW DIAMOND SYNDICATE.

World's Output of Gems Now Greater Than Ever.

Maiden Lane has learned that a new syndicate, the third in the trade, has been formed and taken over the new diamond mines in German Southwest Africa.

The output, which a year ago was insignificant, now amounts to 60,000 carats a month, and although small they are said to be of the first water in brilliance. There are not enough diamond cutters to cut the supply.

SEEKS NO AMERICAN QUEEN.

Heir to Servian Throne Not Planning to Win Bride Here.

PARIS, March 27.—Dr. M. R. Vesnitch, the Servian Minister here, makes categorical denial of the reports, widely published in the United States, that Crown Prince Alexander and his elder brother, Prince George, are about to visit America in search of rich American brides.

Mr. Vesnitch says the royal family at Belgrade is greatly annoyed over these reports and that no such personage is known as "Count Pablow Mysky Treskaya," who is reported to be now in America as the matrimonial agent of King Peter.

"Should either of the Servian Princes at any future time go to America," said Dr. Vesnitch, "it will be only to visit the country and study institutions which are especially interesting in Servia, the most democratic kingdom in old Europe."

$15,000 A YEAR FOR RABBI.

Pastor of Pittsburg Temple to Have Charge for Life.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 27.—At a meeting of the Rodeph Sholem Congregation today Rabbi Leonard J. Levy was elected pastor for life at an annual salary of $15,000. He is to receive a $5,000 yearly pension if he should wish to retire after reaching the age of 75, and the same amount is to be paid to Mrs. Levy in the event of her husband's death.

Dr. Levy, who is a friend of ex-President Roosevelt, is widely known as a man of broad ideas, and created a sensation last year when he filled the pulpit of a Christian church for a regular Sunday sermon.

OPTION FIGHT IN INDIANA.

Republicans in Some Counties Force the Issue on Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 27.—Reports from the Republican County Conventions, at which delegates to the State Convention were chosen yesterday, show that there will be a liquor fight in the convention here April 5. Delegates from many dry counties were instructed to vote for an indorsement of the local-option law, to which the majority of the leaders, among them Senator Beveridge, are opposed. George Lockwood, a close friend of ex-Vice President Fairbanks, put through a local-option resolution at the Grant County convention.

Notwithstanding the fact that some of the Sixth District leaders sent word to Congressman Barnard to oppose Speaker Cannon in the recent House fight, and he finally did so, the Shelby County Republicans yesterday refused to indorse him for renomination.

SUBWAY ROWDIES CANED.

Aged Passenger Didn't Like Their Antics—Seventeen of Them Arrested.

To put an early damper on the riotous young hoodlums who rough-house Subway trains going to and returning from the Bronx and upper Harlem baseball and other playgrounds on Sunday, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company yesterday assigned Special Policemen Bentley and McCormick to keep close watch on the trains. They arrested seventeen boys.

Early in the afternoon on a northbound Van Cortlandt Park Subway train a middle-aged man, who had his walking stick with him, annoyed by the rough antics of a group of youngsters, rose in his wrath and temporarily quieted them by whacking several of them over the shoulders.

At 103d Street the special policemen arrested nine of the rowdies. They were all under sixteen, and were sent to the Children's Society.

Magistrate Hermann, after warning the eight other prisoners that he would be strict with them next time, fined five $1 and the other three $3 each.

Special to The New York Times.

GALVESTON, Texas, March 27.—J. Ogden Armour of Chicago, one of the packers whose company is indicted as a trust member, believes it time for the Government to investigate the cattlemen's and farmers' trust, which raises cattle, hogs, and sheep. He is in Texas and declares the farmers' combine is responsible for the high price of meat and that the packers are compelled to charge high prices for their products because the farmers are continually raising the price of cattle, hogs, and sheep. He says it doesn't cost much if any more to raise cattle and hogs now than some years ago, and he confesses it costs no more to turn out the packing house products.

"Yet," says Mr. Armour, "the farmers get together and organize and agree to advance prices and the packers have to pay the prices asked, which naturally increases the price of the finished product. If the farmers would reduce the price of beeves, hogs, and sheep half the present schedule the packers could reduce the price of their meats in the same proportion."

GET MULLER WOMAN IN GIRL'S MURDER

ARRIVED AFTER THE CRIME

Woman Says She Noticed Fireplace Had Been Repainted—Girl May Have Been Burned Before Death.

Except for the possibility of some sudden and unexpected developments, the police were convinced yesterday that they have completely cleared up the circumstances surrounding the death of Ruth Wheeler, the young business college graduate who was lured to her death on Thursday morning while seeking her first place. They have no doubt that they have enough evidence to make the course of the case through the courts swift and certain.

Inspector Titus said last night that he had what he considered "a perfect case," and that it would now become the police programme to hasten both the inquest and the hearing before the Grand Jury that they are confident will follow. Later he outlined the evidence which the police have obtained.

In the House of Detention, held without bail as a material witness, is Kate Muller, the German girl who lived with Albert W. Wolter, who is charged with the murder of the girl. The police had spread a wide net for the girl, and after an all-night search they succeeded in arresting her at 11 o'clock yesterday morning while she was sitting on the stoop of the house at 122 East 105th Street, to which she and Wolter moved from the flat in East Seventy-fifth Street, where the burned body of Ruth Wheeler was found.

Wolter's Woman Companion Held.

She was penniless when found, and was clutching in her hands some newspaper clippings of the tragedy which she was trying to read. She had been discharged from Jugerman's bakery Saturday morning when the baker saw the stories about her in the newspapers, and she told the police that she had stayed away from her 105th Street room last night only because she was afraid to be alone, and not because she was hiding from the police. "I know I have done no wrong," she said, "and so I am very willing to tell all that I know about the case."

For three hours following her arrest she was under examination by police officials in Capt. Hughes's private office in the East Sixty-seventh Street Station House, and there made a complete statement of her connection with the case, which the police believe, except for one or two small details.

Wolter himself is now locked up in the Tombs in the custody of Coroner Holtsburger, held without bail on a charge of murder. He was led from the Yorkville prison yesterday morning before Magistrate Breen, who granted the request of the police that the abduction charge be formally dismissed, and that he be remanded to the Coroner.

Following their all-night examination of Wolter, in which he was shown the hatpin and hair found in the fireplace in his Seventy-fourth Street flat, Wolter was again questioned Sunday morning. But he retained his composure, and made no admissions which the police could construe to be a confession. When confronted with the evidence against him he merely laughed them aside by saying that the facts were as surprising to him as to the police.

But for all that the police think their case is a strong one, and they point to such facts as that Wolter's diary contains the name of E. C. Estey, the Principal of the business college which sent Miss Wheeler to him, while the advertisement in answer to which he sent his postal card was inserted in the name of "Miss Lembrecht, 605 Madison Avenue." Miss Lembrecht is Mr. Estey's secretary.

May Have Burned Girl Alive.

After the Coroner's autopsy yesterday it was said that Miss Wheeler was possibly only unconscious and not yet dead from strangulation when her clothing was set on fire. The autopsy was performed by Coroners' Physicians O'Hanlon, Lehane, and Shultz and Prof. John H. Larkin of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Prof. Larkin will file a supplementary report upon microscopical tests he will make to-day. The report to Coroner Holtzhauser was that death had resulted from asphyxiation and incineration following strangulation. Coroner's Physician O'Hanlon said: "I found the lungs to be uniformly congested as if the girl had inhaled smoke. I believe the girl was smothered, and while still alive and unconscious was put into the fireplace and incinerated."

Following the inquest and the commitment of Wolter, Inspector Titus, Capt. Carey of the Homicide Bureau, and police authorities on finger prints put in a busy afternoon developing new bits of evidence that will be useful in the case. They had hardly gone into session for a conference in the East Sixty-seventh Street Police Station when Detective Hurton came in with the Muller girl.

She proved to be a willing witness, and talked seemingly without reserve about her life with Wolter and her whereabouts on Thursday afternoon and night and on Friday, after she became aware that something had gone wrong with Miss Wheeler.

She told the police that following the visit of the police on Thursday night to the East Seventy-fifth Street house Wolter seemed agitated and confused and paced the floor, incessantly lighting cigarettes. She grew jealous at the word from Adelaide Wheeler that Wolter had written a postal to another girl, and taxed him with this. He denied at first that he had done it, and finally admitted that he had written the postal, but had done it "just for a joke," and that the girl had become angry when he told her it was a joke and had gone away.

The girl was closely questioned about the condition in which she found the rooms when she returned on Thursday evening from her work at Jungerman's bakery. She said that she found them just as the police and Adelaide Wheeler found them—with nothing wrong or indicating that anything unusual had occurred except that the stove had been moved away from the fireplace, while the fireplace had been painted and a colored lithograph had been pasted over the stovepipe hole through the fireplace screen.

Found the Rooms in Order.

She had asked Wolter why he had made these alterations, and he had replied that he had been merely touching up the place a bit to make it brighter. She noticed that even the white marble base to the fireplace had been coated with the black paint, and, as that made it uglier instead of better, she had asked about that, receiving the answer that in painting the fireplace screen Wolter had dropped paint upon the marble, which made him decide to paint it all black.

Pressed to tell why she had moved the day after these changes had been made in the room and the rent had been paid a week in advance, the girl said that Wolter had been agitated all Thursday night, and on Friday morning had told her they must move to get away from the detectives, who would no doubt return to make more trouble for them. She left the place at 6 o'clock Friday morning, and went to the bakery where she was employed, working until evening. In the day Wolter called at the bakery and told her he had rented a place in 105th Street, and that she must pack their trunks and move them down there, as he was not going back to the old address.

She did this, and it was while keeping the appointment he made to meet her in Eightieth Street that the detectives followed and captured Wolter. She knew of no other reason for moving, she said, until she read in the papers of the murder and the discovery of the body on the fire escape.

Worried by Wolter's Actions.

"I say I did not know about the body," said the girl, "but Wolter's actions on Friday alarmed me, and made me fearful something wrong had been done." Wolter and she met, she said, at a dance in Arlington Hall last June. She was newly arrived from Germany and without friends and welcomed the attention he paid to her. She helped to support him at various addresses, as he seldom worked, while she always had a place as a domestic or in a bakery. She lost this place Saturday morning after returning to work from the hearing when Wolter was held for abduction. She was 19 years old, she said, and came from Germany two years ago.

Parents Won't Help Wolter.

The parents of young Wolter told the police yesterday that they would not throw any obstacle in the way of the punishment of their son, nor would they, they said, furnish any money for his defense. The father is a German, well along in years, with gray hair and mustache, and a large, stockily built frame. He talked to detectives about his wayward son, and told them that he had done all a father could, and was through with him forever. "My wife feels the same way," he added. Mr. Wolter is employed as a piano tuner. He says that his son has been a constant trouble to him ever since he was able to go about and pick the evil companions that his parents agree were his undoing.

Following the three-hour session with the Muller woman in the East Sixty-seventh Street Police Station Inspector Titus and Capt. Carey decided to make a final visit to the Seventy-fifth Street house to take thumb prints and photographs, and question again the tenants of flats adjoining Wolter's. They fared better than they had expected, for they learned from Mrs. John Taggart of a hitherto unmentioned incident that fixed definitely the hour at which the body was incinerated in the fireplace.

Mrs. Taggart's flat adjoins the Wolter flat on the west, and in one of her rooms is a fireplace opening into the same flue as Wolter's parlor. As in his case, she had a stove connected with the fireplace, and on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock smoke began to issue from joints in the stovepipe and to come up through the lids of the stove. It was smoke of an odor that made her open all the windows and go out of the flat for a time. Her little boy came in from his play and asked her what she was burning in the stove. When she told him nothing at all, he insisted on lifting up the lids to see for himself that there was no fire there. The smoke continued until nearly 4 o'clock, Mrs. Taggart thinking her neighbor was burning rubbish and that the flue was choked up.

In outlining the evidence yesterday Inspector Titus said:

"Miss Wheeler was seen to enter the Wolter flat at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. The janitor and his wife saw her in the lower hallway pressing Wolter's door button, and she explained to them why she had called—in answer to a postal card to the business college stating that Wolter was in need of a stenographer. The girl was directed upstairs by the janitor and he and his wife heard Wolter's door click as it opened and click again as it closed after the girl had gone in.

"We are convinced that Miss Wheeler was strangled soon after she entered the flat. From annotations in Wolter's diary it is clear that he talked with her in the rooms, and it is not possible that he could have met her before, for the business college had another girl in mind Thursday morning to send out in answer to that particular postal. Only the fact that she was not on hand as usual and that Miss Wheeler was anxious for a chance to look for a place, occasioned that particular visit. The fact that she had to inquire her way to Wolter's flat also makes it certain this visit was her first one.

Girl Killed in the Morning.

"None of the other tenants heard screams, which convinces us that, after a brief business talk, Wolter in some way silenced the girl, and kept her silenced until 3 o'clock, when the process of burning her body in kerosene was begun.

"When he was arrested Wolter wore a shirt which is an exact duplicate of the shirt found wrapped about the ashes and thrown out upon the fire escape with the bundle containing the torso and head.

"The initial 'W.' on both of these shirts is hand sewn. It is in German script, and was evidently the work of a German woman—probably of Wolter's mother. We are convinced that the burned body was kept in the fireplace Thursday evening and that after the visit of the police it was decided to put it somewhere else. The bed was so placed that the Muller girl, if lying in it, could not see the fireplace nor the rear window leading to the fire escape. It would have been possible for her to be asleep, as she says she was that night, while the body was being wrapped in newspapers and burlap and put out of the window.

"The Muller woman has identified the bag in which the body was wrapped as one that had been in the flat for some time and was used to hold kindling wood."

From the Muller girl and the diary the police obtained clues which they are still withholding. These are not concerned with the Wheeler case, but with other girls whose names are on postal cards in Wolter's trunk and in his diary. The police have checked up a list of tenements in which Wolter and the Muller girl lived and have found that the man's mail was always large, most of the missives being postal cards.

Because he brought the Muller girl to his flat, Wolter was ejected from a house at 2,915 Eighth Avenue last August. After that he lived in East 149th Street, at Irvington-on-Hudson, and on Second Avenue, near Forty-ninth Street.

The Muller girl denies that at any time in this period she knew of other girls answering postals from Wolter, but the police doubt this part of her story. The name of Hattie Schimdt of 249 Elizabeth Avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., and of Dora Liebler of 13 Fifth Street were investigated yesterday. The Elizabeth address proved to be that of Queen's Hall, recently destroyed by fire, and no Hattie Schmidt was known in that vicinity.

Adelaide Wheeler was informed last night at the family home, 313 West 134th Street, that the Muller girl had been arrested, and was asked about a ring which was on her sister's finger when she was killed and which has not yet been discovered. She said it bore the initials "R. A. W." The police had asked the Muller girl about a ring she wore containing the initial "W.," and she had said that Wolter had given the ring to her two months ago.

Coroner Holtzhauser will decide to-day upon the date for the inquest.

S. C. Estey, Principal of the Merchants and Bankers' Business College, who sent Miss Wheeler to the Wolter flat, issued this statement last night explaining his action in the case:

"Miss Ruth Wheeler was graduated on March 18," the statement says. "On March 23 I sent her to one place, which she did not obtain. On Thursday morning I received a postal card stamped with a rubber stamp, 'A. W. Wolter,' and signed by 'A. Wolter' in ink, with the address given as 224 East Seventy-fifth Street.

"The card was written in German, and said the party signing it needed a stenographer. Miss Wheeler appeared in the office, and I called her to me, gave her the card, with my personal business card for identification, and said: 'Go see what there is in this call.'

"From the day Miss Wheeler began her course until her graduation she was a sweet, earnest, painstaking girl, and no one can regret more than I the horrible outcome. The fact that the card came from a residence neighborhood on the east side, did not impress me as other than reliable. Such a request to any typewriter company, employment bureau, or school would receive an immediate response by sending a qualified applicant to the address."

JANITORS IN CONVENTION.

Landlords Threatened in New Movement for Moral Uplift.

More than 700 east side janitors, members of the Janitors' Society of New York, assembled in mass meeting in the Educational Alliance Building last night and talked about things they want and things they do not want done. Among the things they do want is a law which will remove the landlord's power summarily to dismiss whenever he feels like it, 'even the best of janitors. The janitors think they are entitled to at least one week's notice.

Michael Brown, President of the society, was the principal speaker. He began by telling his hearers that he would "parade" before them all the "good deeds" that the janitors have accomplished through their organization. He said the janitors were working quietly for the people who live in tenements, and doing their part toward Americanizing the thousands of immigrants who come to this city.

"No amount of money," he said, "is being spared in trying to reach these people. New systems and methods are constantly sought to reach the immigrant and his family. An organized body of intelligent janitors could greatly lessen the burden that rests upon the institutions that have this work in hand. The janitor can tell the immigrant about life in New York, he can tell where to send his children to school, and direct him to the place to get employment. Such first hand friendship often leads to actual friendship between janitor and tenant.

"The janitor has been of invaluable assistance to the poor and needy by informing the various charitable institutions, when necessary. He has frequently been the means of bringing first aid to the sick who would not apply for free medical attention, and he has kept a watchful eye on the morals of the house in his charge. In time of trouble the janitor comes forward as a peacemaker, and his influence for good dominates the whole tenement."

Janitor Brown said that at last intelligence was admitted to be a necessary qualification for his calling, although there still were many property owners who prefer physical to intellectual qualities in a janitor. He said the society is systematically educating the janitors, and he expressed the hope that time was not far distant when every janitor in New York would be a member of the organization.

At the meeting plans were discussed to get a law passed that will make the position of janitor one to be obtained only after a careful examination. In other words the society wants licensed janitors and none others in New York.

The Finest Piano Playing Heard Off The Concert Stage is in Homes Where There is a

Pianola Piano

One of the most astonishing things about this greatest of all pianos is the ease with which people learn to play it.

If you go to the home of some friend who has a PIANOLA Piano, you are naturally eager to have him play it for you. It does not seem so marvelous a thing that your friend who previously knew nothing of music, is actually playing. The multiplicity of piano-playing devices has made you accustomed to this thought.

But what does astound you, however, is the quality of his playing, and the ease with which he secures effects for which even the best piano artists are compelled to strive.

The Metrostyle shows you how a person entirely without musical training is able to play with the interpretation and feeling of a Paderewski or a Carreno.

The Themodist enables the performer to give just the proper shade of emphasis to the "air" or main theme and to produce beautiful cantabile effects.

The Graduated Accompaniment furnishes the necessary variating background for the melody.

The Sustaining Pedal Device gives complete mastery of the difficult art of "taking pedal."

An evening spent in the company of anyone who owns a Pianola Piano and takes an intelligent interest in music, is the next best thing to attending a recital by some gifted artist. It will also show you why the Pianola Piano has become the most popular piano of the present day.

Remember—The PIANOLA Piano is a distinct instrument, not to be confused with any other shown in Manhattan outside of Aeolian Hall.

PIANOLA Pianos cost . . . $550 to $1250
PIANOLAS cost . . . 250 to 450

GRAFTERS IN CAUCUS DECIDED ON TERMS

Sixty Pittsburg Councilmen Held Regular Meetings to Discuss Proposals for Bribery.

BANK REVELATIONS TO-DAY

Huge Graft from Railroad Passes May Be Taken Up—Klein Scorns Confederates Who Weaken.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 27.—Another revelation of the remarkable organization of the grafters in the Pittsburg Councils was made to-day when it was shown that for several years the grafters—about sixty in number—met weekly in the parlors of a big downtown hotel. There, behind closed doors, they discussed what had been offered by certain persons or concerns for the passage of certain ordinances, whether these should be passed, and what should be charged. This weekly meeting was called "The Caucus," and was attended by all the former members of Councils who are now under charges of corruption. Councilman John Klein, whose confession caused the recent rush of others to confess, was Secretary of the caucus, and President William Brand of the Common Council was its Chairman.

Much in the way of evidence pointing to the men "higher up" is expected from to-morrow's session of the Grand Jury which is investigating the graft cases. Directors of the big banks which are accused of bribing Councilmen to get deposits of city funds are to appear as witnesses, and they will be asked to name the persons responsible for the corruption and the distributers of the funds. Other evidence on this subject is expected from Charles Veverka, former bookkeeper, and Harry Muehlbronner, former teller of the Workingmen's Savings and Trust Company.

"We dare them to arrest us. If arrested, we will take a whole trainload of those big fellows to the pen with us," was the joint statement by Veverka and Muehlbronner some months ago when it had become practically common knowledge that the bank was short about $70,000 through them. They were arrested some time afterward, not at the instance of the bank Directors, but by a bonding company which had guaranteed them.

They were convicted, but when they were called for sentence in court yesterday they gave the Judge privately some reasons why they did not think they should be sent to the penitentiary, and the court suspended sentence in the case of both. Veverka will appear before the Grand Jury to-morrow or the day following.

Graft in railroad passes may also be disclosed by the present investigation. Large demands on the Pennsylvania Railroad by Pittsburg Councilmen several years ago resulted in the agitation for the present laws against free transportation. The Pennsylvania Company asserted that it was losing $5,000,000 per year throughout its system on passes, and $500,000 of this was charged up to Pittsburg. It is said that some of the Councilmen who are now in trouble made thousands of dollars yearly through the sale of passes. On one Saturday before Easter Pittsburg Councilmen sold 840 passes from Pittsburg to Atlantic City and return. In one case a heavy night train ran from Pittsburg to Philadelphia with every berth occupied, but with only five paid fares.

In many churches to-day an unusual feature of the Easter services was the reading of a circular letter issued by a civic committee yesterday, urging the members of every congregation to attend an indignation mass meeting to be held some day this week. Sermons, too, were designed to arouse public condemnation of such practices as have been revealed, and lessons in civic cleanliness were drawn by many pastors.

At a meeting of citizens in the Fort Pitt Hotel, at which a committee was formed to further the mass meeting plan, it was openly charged that the graft collected in the red light districts of the city amounted to $1,000,000 a year. As a result of the general feeling of alarm among the authorities, there is a lively crusade against various lawbreakers. Dives are being closed up on all sides.

The City Councils meet to-morrow night. Twenty of the present members are under indictment in connection with the graft cases. It is expected that some will protest their innocence, but the majority are expected to hand in resignations as meekly as they confessed last week.

Capt. John Klein, the convicted boodling leader, is much incensed at the weakness being shown by some of the Councilmen involved in his confession.

"Why can't they be game anyway?" he said at the Fort Pitt Hotel to-day. Referring to one of the men, he remarked: "Look at who is yelling so loud. Why, of all hungry grafters I ever saw, he is the worst. Why, he's so crooked he double-crossed his own friend, getting him to go along and vote for love when there was money in it, then wanting to collect all the other fellow's bit for himself from me. He kicked on splitting the innocent fellow's money with me. Now what do you think of that? Did he get it? Not from Johnny. I made him split the other fellow's pile with me—rather I split it for him. I hate these cheaters."

OUST A PROTESTER.

Member of Dr. Hill's Flock Asked if They Were Holding a Political Meeting

In the midst of a discussion following an address on "Socialism as a Peril to the State," by the Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill, in the Metropolitan Temple, last night, a man arose in the rear of the house and walking down the aisle, stepped in front of the pulpit and with hand upraised, cried:

"I rise to a point of order. Are we worshipping in the house of the Lord, or is this a political meeting?"

Before he could get any further Dr. Hill, recovering from his surprise, leaned forward from the platform and, shaking his finger at the man, shouted:

"Put that man out. Arrest him. I'll sign the complaint against him in the morning."

An usher grasped the man by the arm and gently but firmly propelled him toward the door, the man meanwhile continuing to express his feelings. On the steps was a policeman, but the usher merely told the man to "be off."

The stranger went, venting more indignation over his treatment as he departed. He said he was Edward T. Crabtree, a carpenter, of 525 Hudson Street.

Throughout the service last night there were men in the audience evidently with Socialistic tendencies, who muttered indignantly as Dr. Hill expressed views antagonistic to their beliefs. It was the fifth of the series of lectures which Dr. Hill has been giving on Sunday nights, allowing his hearers an opportunity for discussion at the close of his talk. At the beginning of his address last night Dr. Hill read several passages from the Bible, which seemed to show that "the powers that be are ordained of God."

"If Socialism destroys religion, as I have shown in a previous address," said Dr. Hill, "the civil institutions will fall, and the State will be reduced to ruin. Socialism ignores the State and is not National in character. Its avowed purpose is the overthrow of National power and the establishment not of a civil, but a social State unprotected by officers. Jack London says that the 'army of revolt is 7,000,000 strong. We want all you possess, nothing less—we want the reins of power.' This is utterly opposed to American institutions and turns its back on the American flag. It rallys its millions around a power that seeks to destroy. It is a wild dream that will never be realized while the word America remains."

Dr. Hill said it was a fallacy that the State makes classes, and said that it should be the other way around. He said there never was a time when there were not classes, and that Socialism was wrong in attributing them to the State. He said that the thought of abolishing the State, which he declared was the aim of Socialism, is "the frenzied outburst of anarchy," and drew a vivid picture of a society without a State.

Dr. Hill then denounced a prominent Wisconsin Socialist for saying at the last convention: "In the last anaylsis we must shoot. I'll be there. Wisconsin will be there. We always make good."

"It will be a good thing," said Dr. Hill, "when the time comes for such a man to shed his last drop of blood."

At this there were loud hisses from several men in the audience. Dr. Hill next read selections from The Little Socialist Magazine for Boys and Girls. He quoted largely from a serial entitled "A History of Our Country" in the magazine. One selection said that "Thomas Paine, not George Washington, was the father of his country," and that "when Washington ignored him, Paine became disgusted at a Constitution which subtly abused the rights of the people, and went to France, where he helped frame a Constitution superior to ours."

Lastly Dr. Hill challenged any Socialist present to come up and answer any of the charges he had made. One man attempted to do so, but became involved in his own arguments, and at length sat down. Then Edward A. Dawson, said to be a labor leader, took charge of the meeting and answered several questions sent up to him to his own satisfaction and that of a majority of the audience.

Dr. Hill said that the meetings on Socialism would go on as usual every Sunday night in spite of the evident antagonism shown by the Socialists.

A letter was recently received by Dr. Hill from the Rev. Dr. Irvine, who has been speaking at the Church of the Ascension, almost across the street from the Metropolitan Temple. A Socialistic campaign has been going on there, and Dr. Irvine invited Dr. Hill to "come over and talk it out in the home of Socialism." Dr. Hill replied that it would be a much better plan if Dr. Irvine would visit his church, and talk it out "in the home of Americanism."

HE DIDN'T LIKE THE LECTURE.

Bushy Whiskered Man Broke Up Prof. Goodnow's Talk to Parlor Socialists.

If it hadn't been for a stout man with bushy whiskers, last night's meeting of the Parlor Socialists in the parish house of the Church of the Ascension would have been a rather tame affair. But he saved the night, though he grew so discordant toward the end that the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant asked that the meeting be closed to save any further embarrassment for Prof. Frank J. Goodnow of Columbia University, the speaker of the evening.

Prof. Goodnow, who is the Eaton Professor of Administrative Law and Municipal Science at Columbia, told the Parlor Socialists a lot of things about New Zealand. The professor made a trip there two years ago and observed the manner in which the people live and are governed in that little country. He described how in the old days a few squatters owned all the land in New Zealand and things became so bad that along in 1890 a grave crisis confronted the islanders. Its result was the reconstruction of the method of government to a large extent, the advent of the liberal party to power and the beginning of a form of government ownership, single tax, woman's suffrage, and many other features which were new in New Zealand.

It was after the advent of this new order of things, said Prof. Goodnow, that a programme of social reform was begun. A compulsory arbitration court was formed to regulate the conditions between employers and employes, and the result of this has been to work wages up and the number of working hours down.

When he was through he said he was ready to answer any questions. It was then that the man with the whiskers sounded the first discordant note.

"What I want to know is your object in making this address," said he. "Why this apology for the thieves who took the bread out of the mouths of the working people? Why this defense of a Government which makes a man give up his property whether he wants to or not?" The question ended in a shout.

"My object was merely to give the result of my observations," replied Prof. Goodnow.

The man with the whiskers subsided, but in a few minutes he was on his feet again declaring that the professor had not answered his question satisfactorily. He was waved back to his seat by Mr. Grant.

He arose a third time, but before he could make himself heard Mr. Grant announced that Alexander Irvine, lay preacher of the Church of the Ascension, would close the meeting, which was done at once.

DEMOCRATS MORE ACTIVE.

Foss's Victory Causes More Activity in Rhode Island Party.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., March 27.—Politics in Rhode Island are warming up at this early date, largely as a result of the election of Eugene N. Foss, as a Democrat, in the strongly Republican Fourteenth District of Massachusetts last week.

Cangressman William Paine Sheffield, who was elected in this district by a plurality of 81 last year, will have a hard fight for re-election. Report is current that Mayor Patrick J. Boyle of Newport, now serving his fourteenth term, will be his opponent.

That the Republican managers are disturbed over affairs is shown by their present activity.

WILL HONOR PEARY SAYS SHACKLETON

British Explorer Says English Welcome to American Will Equal Americans' to Him.

Polar Celebrities Are Fellow-Guests at Many Washington Gatherings in Honor of the Visitor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The American discoverer of the north pole, Commander Robert E. Peary, will be received with open arms by British scientists, according to Sir Ernest Shackleton, the English antarctic explorer, who has approached nearest to the south pole, and who lectured before 5,000 people here last night.

To the statesmen, diplomats, scientists, and men of letters gathered at Convention Hall to hear the British explorer and to see President Taft present a medal on behalf of the National Geographic Society, Lieut. Shackleton declared:

"I want to say to every one of you that Commander Peary when he comes to England in a short while will receive as warm and sincere a welcome there as I have received from the great Washington public."

Commander Peary has attended a number of the social affairs given in honor of Sir Ernest and Lady Shackleton, and Sir Ernest and the Commander posed for a group photograph before the White House yesterday.

The British explorer was the central figure in a series of social engagements to-day, beginning with a breakfast at the home of Gilbert H. Grosvenor, editor of the National Geographical Magazine. The company included, besides the British Ambassador and Commander Peary, a score of scientists and scholars identified with polar exploration. In the afternoon Sir Ernest was a guest of the National Press Club, and delivered an informal address to the several score newspaper men present, relating some of the incidents, humorous and otherwise, connected with his south pole expedition.

This morning Lady Shackleton was the guest of honor at the British Embassy, where Mrs. Bryce invited a number of prominent women to meet her. In the evening the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand entertained in honor of the British explorer and his wife.

Peary Medal Presentation on April 8.

The date of the presentation to Commander Peary of the Philadelphia Geographical Society's gold medal has been changed from April 7 to April 8, as the Commander is to give his lecture commemorating the first anniversary of the discovery of the pole on April 6 in Marion, Ind. The Governor of Pennsylvania will make the formal presentation in the Philadelphia Academy of Music.

COOK AGAIN UBIQUITOUS.

Rumor Has Him Near New York and Off New Orleans.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the vanishing explorer, who has been touring South America with his wife as "Mr. and Mrs. F. Cray," was said last night by friends who have been in correspondence with him to be now staying at some place—exactly where was undisclosed—within fifty miles of this city, having journeyed there overland last week from New Orleans. According to this information Dr. Cook reached New Orleans last week from Panama under another assumed name, which was not "F. Cray."

Dr. Cook's plans, according to the same sources, are to remain in seclusion for a few days before coming to New York, but Mrs. Cook will probably arrive here to-morrow, and after visiting her children, who are attending a private school, will arrange for Dr. Cook and herself to stay at the Waldorf-Astoria, as announced in THE TIMES several weeks ago.

H. Wellington Wack and Capt. B. S. Osbon were among those who told of hearing from Dr. Cook yesterday. Dr. Roswell O. Stebbins, President of the Arctic Club, who arranged for Dr. Cook's reception and entertainment after he arrived here last Fall from Copenhagen, will not be here to greet the doctor on his return. Dr. Stebbins is now in Fort Worth, Texas, recovering from nervous breakdown. Mrs. Stebbins said yesterday that this was brought on by overwork and worry, incident to the reception of Dr. Cook and his disappearance later. In Texas he is getting better.

Capt. Osbon gayly confirmed last night the report that Dr. Cook was now within fifty miles of New York.

"He's coming at last," said the Captain. "And when he does come there'll be music in the air."

"Yes," Capt. Osbon continued, "I was delighted to hear from Dr. Cook, and to know that he has returned safely from his South American trip. No, I can't name the town where Dr. Cook is at present. It wouldn't do. But I expect to see Mrs. Cook within a day or so, as she is coming on to New York ahead of the doctor. Dr. Cook will follow then in several days, perhaps the last of this week. We all want him to go to some quiet hotel where he will not be pestered."

NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—Passengers on the steamer Abagarenz, which reached the mouth of the river to-night from Colon, declare that Dr. Cook is aboard the ship on his way to New York. Reporters who reached the vessel just after she was released from quarantine, searched the ship for a mysterious passenger who had kept to his stateroom since the ship left Colon, but they were unable to locate the explorer when the ship weighed anchor for her trip up the river. Dr. Cook will leave the ship in the morning.

Several wireless messages were sent to the vessel to-night, addressed to Dr. Cook, but the operator said that he had been unable to locate him. Cook's name is not in the passenger list.

Reports from Colon six days ago said that Dr. Cook was a passenger from South American ports. Correspondents of New Orleans papers tried to find the doctor there without success. However, just after the Abagarenz left Colon, officials of the United Fruit Company said that the explorer was aboard as scheduled, passengers having recognized him from his photographs.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—Inquiry at the home of Mrs. Harvey, Dr. Cook's sister, at Pensauken, N. J., to-day brought the reply that Dr. Cook was not there and was not expected. It was said there that Dr. Cook's whereabouts were unknown.

CALL OFF GENERAL STRIKE.

But Philadelphia Unions Will Try to Punish Brewery Workers.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—Declaring that the passage of a local option law would hasten the settlement of the trouble between the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company and its employes, the Central Labor Union at its meeting to-day adopted resolutions calling upon the members of the trade unions of this city to agitate and vote for local option at every opportunity. An aye and nay vote on a motion to table the resolution was 34 to 83.

The failure of the brewery workers to join in the sympathetic strike, it is alleged, was practically responsible for the passage of this resolution.

The general strike in sympathy with the striking street car men, which has been in effect for more than three weeks, was called off at to-day's meeting. A majority of the workers who responded to the call have already returned to their work, and others had arranged to return to-morrow. The Committee of Ten, which has had charge of the sympathetic strike, recommended that the strike be discontinued and financial support be given to the carmen. This report was adopted and the committee discharged.

BEGGARS HURT BY STRIKE.

One Transferred His Activities from Philadelphia to Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The street car strike in Philadelphia has made begging an unproductive calling there, according to Charles Becowitz, a blind Russian beggar, who was picked up by the Capital police while plying his vocation among the Easter day crowds attending St. Patrick's Church here to-day. Becowitz has been ordered to leave Washington. He told the police that before the car strike he had been able to make as much as $30 a week selling shoe laces and lead pencils in Philadelphia.

George Robin, a seventeen-year-old boy, was arrested with Becowitz. He has been receiving $4 per week for assisting the blind man. He declares that he will return to Philadelphia.

STRIKES IN TEN MILLS.

Paper Makers at Ticonderoga Vote to Walk Out To-day.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., March 27.—The twenty-second day of the strike of the union employes of the International Paper Company finds another mill ready to shut down. At a mass meeting of employes in the mills at Ticonderoga it was unanimously voted to-night to walk out at 7 o'clock to-morrow morning. Between 175 and 200 men will quit work.

In ten of the thirty-two mills of the company the strike is now effective in varying degrees. President Malin of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Workers, said to-night that unless a satisfactory offer of settlement is made, the strike will speedily spread to other mills.

The situation in this neighborhood, at South Glens Falls, Fort Edward, and Corinth remains quiet, although the militia is still kept on duty as a precaution.

MELLEN ASKS CONFERENCE.

Will Meet Employes' Delegates To-day and May Avert Strike.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 27.—Officials of the New Haven road make no secret of the fact that they consider the situation critical as regards the threatened strike of trainmen, yardmen, enginemen, and conductors, who broke off negotiations yesterday after three months of treating for a new wage schedule.

President Mellen of the railroad company has requested the Adjustment Committee of the four brotherhoods to meet him here to-morrow afternoon, and to make another attempt to agree on terms or on arbitration.

MURDER ENDS A QUARREL.

Man with Whom Dufek Argued Is Now Sought by the Police.

In a shanty, close to the site of the new Vanderbilt model tenements, at Seventy-seventh Street and Avenue A, William Dufek, a laborer, was murdered last night.

Dufek was shot in the left eye, forehead, and heart. He died instantly. The police are looking for Frank Castitano, a watchman at the new tenements, who, they say, killed Dufek. They sent out a general alarm for his arrest.

Just previous to the shooting there were six men in the watchman's shanty. These were Castitano, Dufek, an unidentified man, and three men who described themselves to the police as Edward Cavanaugh of 502 East Eightieth Street, Emil Stelek of 1,457 Avenue A, and John Kesman of 313 East Eighty-first Street, a soldier of Fort Wadsworth.

Stelek declared he was not in the shanty when the shooting occurred, but the others claimed there was a heated quarrel between Dufek and Castitano, and that the watchman and the unidentified man fled after three shots had been fired.

Kesman and Cavanaugh carried Dufek to a drug store at the corner, and on the way met Policeman Frazer of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station. He called Dr. Bulkley of the Presbyterian Hospital, who said Dufek was dead.

Dufek was unmarried, but lived with his mother and a fourteen-year-old sister at 1,442 Avenue A. The police of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station did not hold Kesman, Cavanaugh, or Stelek after questioning them in the station.

We are looking everywhere for the exception in all things.

CANADA YIELDED LITTLE ON TARIFF

Agreement Said to be Due to Republican Panic Rather Than Trade Benefits to Us.

BUT TAFT SEEMS SATISFIED

Concessions on Wood Pulp Unlikely and Rates Like Those Granted to France by Dominion Not Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The silence which the President and his advisers have decided to maintain in regard to the terms of the understanding reached with Canada whereby the tariff war will be avoided has not tended to decrease the interest here in what promised to be a serious tangle, even though it has been definitely announced that a practical solution has been reached. The details of the concessions Canada will make to American shipments are still unknown, and friends and enemies of the Administration are watching eagerly to see what the United States will receive in return for the concessions to Canada.

There is scarcely any doubt as to what these American concessions will be. Under the Payne-Aldrich act the Executive is allowed no discretion, so that, failing to use the maximum rates as a club, nothing remains but to give the minimum rates all along the line. That is what will be involved in the President's proclamation next Wednesday.

The fact that the President's proclamation clearing Canada of the charge of "unduly" discriminating against the United States will not be made until the last possible day before the maximum rates would otherwise automatically go into effect is taken in some quarters to mean that the proclamation is made reluctantly and more because of fear of political disaster awaiting the Republican Party should the country be plunged into a trade war on the eve of a Congressional election than on account of material concessions from Canada. On the other hand persons who have talked with the President say that he is evidently in a good humor over the outcome, and feels that his negotiations have been successful—which would imply real concessions on Canada's part.

The Canadian tariff is of three kinds—the preferential, given to the mother country only; the maximum rates, or surtaxes levied against countries as a means of retaliation or punishment, and the intermediate rates accorded a friendly country in return for concessions to Canada. These intermediate rates come between the maximum and the special reductions given Great Britain. In other words, the intermediate rates are those given to France in return for concessions, and it was these rates to France that would have constituted undue discrimination against the United States had not a solution been reached.

The claims of the United States were in the first place for reductions for our products identical with or equivalent to the reductions given France. There were other demands, among them being the removal of all export charges on wood pulp and paper. As to wood pulp and allied products it is almost certain that nothing has been won—partly because of the sentiment in Canada against encouraging this form of export trade and partly because of the authority vested in the provincial assemblies to make their own regulations.

It is equally unlikely that we will receive concessions approximating those accorded France. The French tariff law allows greater room for negotiation and trading than does the Payne-Aldrich tariff act, and it is certain that up to a few days ago the Canadians were inclined to hoot at our minimum, or normal, tariff as no concession at all. It is likely that on certain designated articles we will receive the intermediate rates, and this concession will be deemed to bring Canada within the circle of nations not unduly discriminating against us.

OTTAWA, Ontario, March 27.—The news of the tariff agreement at Washington was received in Government circles here with satisfaction which is not lessened by the fact that such an outcome had been confidently looked for ever since the conference at Albany between President Taft and Minister Fielding.

It is understood that the dispatches sent from Washington credit Mr. Fielding with having made rather more extensive concessions than have been given. When the official announcement is made it will be found that the list of items on which Canada will make tariff reductions will not include half of the French treaty list. It is also understood that any changes which have been made in the Canadian tariff as a result of the negotiations between President Taft and Minister Fielding will not be confined to the United States, or even to the countries which now have the most favored nation arrangement with Canada.

In fact, any changes in the Canadian tariff as the result of the negotiations will be made general by Canada and will apply to goods from all countries.

The net result of the negotiations, therefore, will be that the Canadian tariff will be slightly reduced on a small number of articles and that Canada will get the benefit of the United States minimum tariff.

Fine Easter Brings Cars Out in Force, with Resulting Long List of Accidents.

BOY CRUSHED TO DEATH

Tammany Leader Garvan's Machine Hurts Another—Motor Cycle Police Arrest Ten for Speeding in Bronx.

The fine weather of yesterday brought out the automobilists in force, and as a result there was an unusually long list of accidents and arrests for speeding. One boy was killed in Long Branch, N. J.; another had his skull fractured and is dying in Newark, and two others had narrow escapes in the Bronx. The police kept a close watch for speeders and arrested ten chauffeurs who, they alleged, were running more than twenty-five miles an hour in the Bronx.

The lad who was killed was nine-year-old Nathan Gorcy, son of a tailor of Long Branch. He was riding on the tail of a wagon along Ocean Avenue toward Broadway, when he lost his hold and fell on the road. Just behind was a car owned by Mrs. David Carlisle of Passaic, in which were Mrs. Richard Young, the Misses Miller, and G. B. Walden. Before the chauffeur, William Marchase, could stop, it had passed over the boy, crushing his skull. Marchase was arrested.

Michael J. Garvin, Tammany leader of the Thirty-third Assembly District, took his wife and his daughter for a spin yesterday afternoon along Caldwell Avenue. He was driving the machine himself near 160th Street, when Otto Soukop, an eight-year-old boy who lives at 856 Caldwell Avenue, dashed from the sidewalk into the car and was thrown to the ground.

Took Boy to the Hospital.

Garvin stopped at once and found that the boy was bruised about the head and hips. He put him in his car and hurried him to Lebanon Hospital, where it was said that he would recover. Garvin was held in the Morrisania Station on a charge of assault.

A similar mishap befell Esrael Selganik, a three-year-old boy of 1,052 Washington Avenue, the Bronx. He was playing in the street with his brother Joseph when an automobile which was being demonstrated to Michael Miller of 830 Prospect Place, Brooklyn, his wife, and children, by James E. Coleman, approached. Into it the boy ran. He was knocked down and bruised badly.

Mrs. Miller sprang out and picked the lad up, and as she did so his parents ran up. They were placed in the car with the boy and taken to Fordham Hospital, where it was found that no serious injuries had been inflicted. Caleman was held in the Tremont Station on the charge of assault.

James Greco, 71 years old, of 153 West Twenty-third Street, Woodside, L. I., was hit near his home by an automobile driven by Hans Peterson of Woodside Avenue, Woodside, last night. His left arm was broken. He was taken home and Peterson was arrested.

Matthew Fitzsimmons of 857 New Street, Newark, had his skull fractured by an auto near his home last night. He was taken to the Newark City Hospital, and the driver, George Raymond, of 83 First Street, Newark, was arrested. Fitzsimmons's condition was reported last evening to be serious.

Speeder Was Going to Bail Another.

Among those arrested for speeding was Robert Levie, an automobile dealer of Mount Vernon, who was hurrying to the home of Magistrate Butts in the Bronx, to offer bail for Thomas J. Taylor of Mount Vernon, who had been locked up all night at the Morrisania Station for knocking down a boy with his machine. With Levie was ex-Municipal Court Judge Penfield, who had volunteered to go on Taylor's bond. Levie, it is alleged, was speeding along Pelham Avenue at thirty-five miles an hour. He was held in $500 bail for trial.

A speed of forty-five miles an hour, at the Concourse and 161st Street, was alleged against Howard Gutman, chauffeur for John W. Walsh of 1 Madison Avenue, and of forty miles an hour at 162d Street and Brook Avenue, against R. J. A. Thomas, chauffeur of J. P. Channing, 1 West Eighty-ninth Street.

Robert Goelet, who gave his residence as Newport, R. I., was arrested at the Concourse and 164th Street, on the charge of running at twenty-eight miles an hour. W. E. D. Stokes gave the Ansonia as bail for his chauffeur, who was said to have rushed along White Plains Road near Gun Hill Road, at thirty miles an hour.

Alfred Wagstaff, Jr., a broker of 24 East Fifty-fourth Street, was bailed at the Westchester Station by his wife, who had $450 in her purse. The police say he had been going along the Boston Road at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour.

Was Arrested Twice.

Nathan D. Stern of 103 West 130th Street managed to get arrested twice yesterday in Queens. On his way out in the morning he is alleged to have been making forty miles an hour along the Merrick Road, and on his way home in the afternoon at about the same place he is charged with driving at thirty-one miles an hour. He gave bail twice and went on.

As the automobile of Hyman Rippen of Perth Amboy stopped for gasoline at a garage in Monmouth Street, Red Bank, last night, a cigarette smoker threw a match into the tank. An explosion and a blaze followed, and the Relief Engine Company was called out. The car was badly damaged and Charles Brennan, a volunteer fireman, had his hands burned in trying to extinguish the flames.

After pursuing an automobile owned by F. M. McDermott from Jamaica, L. I., to Manhattan, two bicycle patrolmen, last night, arrested the chauffeur, charging him with speeding 50 miles an hour.

Policemen John E. Mesle and Edward Van Clief of the 278th Precinct, Jamaica, clung to the chase on their motor cycles, although at times the auto was out of sight.

They said that they first saw the car tearing along Farmers Avenue, near Jamaica, at 50 miles an hour.

They trailed the auto through Springfield Avenue and Hempstead Road to Long Island City, over the Blackwell's Island Bridge to this borough. They were not able to overtake the auto, but by questioning the occupants of other machines they kept on its track. Finally they overtook the auto in front of 315 West Ninety-second Street, the home of McDermott, and they arrested the chauffeur.

In the West 100th Street Station, the chauffeur said he was Edward R. Brown of 158 West Sixty-fifth Street. He was charged with exceeding the speed limit, having no license, and with disorderly conduct, and then taken to Jamaica.

FATHER OF 34 CHILDREN.

Record of Massachusetts Carpenter, Aged 57—Only 12 Still Alive.

DEDHAM, Mass., March 27.—The birth of a healthy baby boy in this town has made Joseph Sears of Hillside Avenue, East Dedham, the father of thirty-four children. He has been twice married in the past forty years. His first wife was the mother of eighteen children, and the present Mrs. Sears has sixteen.

Only twelve of the thirty-four children are living. Mr. Sears, who is 57 years old, is a carpenter by trade.

FIVE FIREMEN HURT IN CHEMICAL BLAZE

Many Explosions Imperil Lives of Men Fighting Flames in Brooklyn.

FIREBOATS STOP FERRY

Deputy Commissioner O'Keeffe Directs Work of Fire Fighters from Roof of an Adjoining Building.

The Fulton Ferry warehouse district in Brooklyn was the scene yesterday of a dangerous fire which gave a large force of firemen, both on land and water, a stubborn fight, and resulted in injuries to five of the fire fighters. The property loss was estimated at $50,000. Because of frequent explosions of chemicals in one of the buildings, the men were in constant danger, were repeatedly driven back by noxious gases and sudden bursts of flame. As the fireboats were making use of the slips, the Fulton ferry had to suspend operations for a time.

The fire started in the boiler room of the four-story factory of the firm of Edward R. Squibb & Sons, manufacturers of chemicals, 26 Doughty Street, between Columbia Heights and McKenney Street. It was discovered at 10:45 o'clock in the morning by James Block, who lives at 8 Elizabeth Place, nearby, and who turned in an alarm.

The first firemen to arrive found that the flames had eaten their way from the basement to the first floor of the factory, and were spreading rapidly. Across the alley-like street from the factory is the huge warehouse of the Eagle Storage and Warehouse Company, while other large buildings are on either side.

Because of the danger to these structures, two additional alarms were sounded, three fireboats also being called to help fight the blaze. One of the boats was moored at the foot of Doughty Street, while the others put into the Fulton ferry slips. Deputy Fire Commissioner Arthur J. O'Keeffe hurried to the scene on the second alarm, and Deputy Chief Ahearn also went over from Manhattan.

Because of the chemicals in the Squibb factory the firemen had to work with caution. There were frequent explosions of magnesium, a powder used for taking flashlight photographs. These added to the smoke, and the firemen repeatedly were forced to retreat.

While four men were working on the third floor of the Squibb building they were caught by a back draught. All were burned about the hands and faces before they could close an iron door and shut out the flames. The men were Lieut. William Demmen and Privates John Perry and Frederick Koehler, all of Company No. 126, and Private John W. Henckel of Company No. 108. After their injuries had been dressed by Ambulance Surgeon Searle of the Cumberland Street Hospital they were sent to their homes.

Private Peter Gleason of Company 108, while turning on the water at a high-pressure hydrant, was struck in the forehead by a wrench which flew out of his hands. He was not seriously injured. Several other firemen were overcome by the smoke, but returned to their work after being revived.

Fire Commissioner O'Keeffe was on the roof of an adjoining building when several of the explosions occurred, but he remained to direct the work despite the danger, until, after three hours, the blaze was under control. One company remained on the scene pumping water into the buildings until 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

The fire extended to the Brooklyn Eagle stables, adjoining the Squibb building, in Doughty Street, and to an extension of the Squibb plant on Vine Street, in the rear of the factory. Most of the loss, which was estimated at about $50,000, was in the Squibb buildings.

TWICE AFIRE THE SAME DAY.

Fire Marshal Suspicious of Second Blaze in the Central Building.

The second of two small fires in the Central Building, at 25 West Forty-second Street, yesterday, was considered so suspicious that an investigation was at once begun by the Fire Marshal and police. The building, an office structure, is owned by Walter J. Salomon, President of the State Realty Company. He is said to also own or control the Thoroughfare Building at Fifty-ninth Street and Eighth Avenue and the Seymour and Bristol Buildings in West Forty-second Street.

Frank Farley, an elevator boy in the Central Building, told Assistant Fire Marshal William B. Anderson that the Bristol and Seymour Buildings were both the scenes of small fires on the same day less than a month ago, and this has set the police thinking that some enemy of Salomon may have started activities of an incendiary character.

The fire in the Central Building yesterday was discovered in a basement room at 3 A. M. This fire, due to defective insulation, was soon extinguished, after doing $200 damage.

A little after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the second fire started in a vacant room on the fourth floor. William D. Monroe, who has an office on the same floor, seeing a glare of light through the glass door, opened the door and found a large bundle of papers ablaze and a section of the floor on fire. He called Farley, and they tried to extinguish the blaze.

Failing, Farley summoned Patrolman Murphy of the East Fifty-first Street Station, and he sent in a still alarm to Engine 65, in West Forty-third Street. Firemen tore up the flooring and put out the fire. A window in the room was open.

Brooklyn Fire Dog Stolen.

A big white bulldog owned by Deputy Fire Chief William Guerin, whose headquarters are at 127 North First Street, Williamsburg, has been stolen. Yesterday the police of the Bedford Avenue Station sent out an alarm for the animal. It accompanied its master to every fire he attended.

FOUR FIRES IN 'THE BARRACKS'

Panic in First Avenue Tenement—Youth Held as Incendiary.

Shouts of "Fire!" and the rattle of the engines shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday morning caused the Bohemian, Italian, and Jewish inhabitants of the "Barracks," as they are called, in First Avenue, between Seventy-first and Seventy-second Streets, to rush pellmell into the streets in emergency attire. The buildings consist of eighteen six-story tenements, erected by the Vanderbilts in 1866. Ten are on the west side of First Avenue, the others extending west on Seventy-first and Seventy-second Streets, with a large courtyard in the centre of the rectangle.

Owing to the number of suspicious fires in the tenements during the last month, the tenants, numbering over 1,000 men, women, and children, have been sleeping with one eye open, ready to flee at any moment.

One blaze was discovered at 2:45 A. M. by Patrolman Elias of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, at 363 East Seventy-first Street; a moment later a second was seen at 1,343 First Avenue, a third at 362 East Seventy-second Street, and the fourth at 361 East Seventy-first Street. The four fires were promptly extinguished, with a total loss estimated at $50. After sending in an alarm Patrolman Elias rushed into the courtyard and shouted out to the people to come down.

When Deputy Chief Callehan appeared on the scene of the first fire, a young man named Anton Holan called his attention to the second in the rear of 1,343 First Avenue. While the firemen were investigating this, others reported the third and fourth fires. After the flames had been extinguished, the Deputy Chief instructed Patrolman Elias to arrest Holan, the youth who had told him of the second fire, and lock him up on suspicion at the East Sixty-seventh Street Station.

Similar fires, it was stated, had been started in the "Barracks" a week ago, and on each occasion the same youth had appeared on the scene and informed the firemen where they were situated.

Later in the day Holan was arraigned in the Yorkville Court before Magistrate Breen, who held him in $2,500 bail for examination to-morrow. Deputy Fire Marshal Kelly told the court he had a strong case against the prisoner, and suggested that his mental condition should be looked into. Holan has lived in the "Barracks" for several months with his widowed mother, it was said. The reserves were called out from the East Sixty-seventh Street and East Fifty-first Street Stations, but it was a long time before the foreigners could be persuaded to return to their homes.

FIRE DAMAGES ANCIENT INN.

House in Long Island City Once Sheltered British Troops.

An ancient building, which was used as a tavern in Revolutionary days and which stood on what was known as Dutch Kills Street, in the Sunnyside section of Long Island City, was damaged by fire early yesterday morning. This structure, which is said to be 250 years old, was used to shelter British troops, who were stationed in every farmhouse in the section.

The ancient door, which escaped the flames, is equipped with a huge iron knocker. The house is tenanted by Levy Meyer. He was absent with his family when the fire occurred. The house stands close to the new Sunnyside railroad yards, and was one of the few Revolutionary relics that escaped demolition to make way for the improvement.

BIG FIRE IN LOUISIANA TOWN.

Citizens Lack Water to Fight Flames—Thirty Buildings Destroyed.

WELCH, La., March 27.—Almost all of the business section of this town was wiped out by fire early to-day. Thirty buildings were destroyed, entailing a loss of $200,000, with little insurance.

The fire started in the Signal Hotel and spread quickly to adjacent frame buildings. The town is without waterworks, and the efforts of citizens to check the flames proved futile. Among the buildings destroyed were the Signal Hotel, Eureka Hotel, and the Post Office.

CALL DOCTOR A TRAIN THIEF.

Man from Rochester Robbed Pullman Passengers' Clothing.

A man who said he was Archibald Goldstone, a Syracuse physician, was arrested at Forty-second Street and Broadway yesterday afternoon charged with having taken money from the clothing of passengers on New York Central trains.

Detective Holstein of the railroad said that complaints had been received recently that some one had taken $15 apiece from the clothing of three passengers and $97 from the clothing of another on a Rochester train. Holstein began riding upon different trains in the hope of encountering the thief.

He was on a train bound from Syracuse to Albany last Friday, the detective said, when he walked into the washroom of a Pullman car on the train and saw the prisoner put his overcoat over another passenger's coat and vest hanging in the washroom and then proceeded to make his toilet. The detective said the man fumbled through his pockets, evidently for a match, and then went over to the hook upon which the overcoat and the stranger's coat and vest hung. He fumbled with the clothes, the detective said, as if looking for a match, and Holstein asserted that he was sure that Goldstone went through the pockets of the coat and vest under his overcoat

Holstein followed the man to New York and saw him register at the Hotel Albany on Saturday afternoon. Yesterday the man appeared about to leave town, and Holstein had him arrested by Detective Sullivan of the Central Office.

The police say that Goldstone was arrested on Dec. 26 last after an alleged effort to short change a ticket seller, and was photographed for the Rogues' Gallery. His picture is No. 24,677 in the gallery, the detectives say. The railroad authorities have the names of the four passengers robbed on the Rochester train.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 27.—Dr. Archibald Goldstone, now under arrest in New York for alleged train thievery, does not belong in Syracuse, as he alleges, but hails from Rochester. He is said to have come to the Flower City from Missouri a little more than a year ago.

There is an Archie Goldstone of Syracuse who has spent considerable time in New York, but he is not related to the Rochester man, nor is he a physician.

WOMEN SWEPT OVER DAM.

Two Drowned After Disabled Motorboat is Caught in Swift Current.

HILLSBORO, N. H., March 27.—A motor boat made unmanageable by the sudden stopping of the engine was drawn into a swift current and swept over the dam of the upper mill pond here to-day. Mrs. Nellie Dares and Miss Mildred Craige were drowned, but William H. Parker, local agent for the Standard Oil Company, who was in charge of the boat, was thrown into shallow water, from which he was able to crawl ashore.

The boat had scarcely left its mooring when trouble was experienced with the engine, and the craft drifted rapidly toward the dam. With no oars in the boat, Parker was powerless to prevent the catastrophe. The boat overturned as it struck the flashboards of the dam and tumbled its occupants fifteen feet into the water below.

The bodies of the women were carried far down the stream, and were seen to go over a second dam. Although searching parties patrolled both sides of the river, the bodies were not found.

STUDENT CANOEIST DROWNED.

Two Williams College Youths Swept Over Dam in the Hoosick.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., March 27.—Swept over a dam in a canoe, Earl P. Kimball of Clearwater, Fla., a junior in Williams College, to-day lost his life in the Hoosick River at Valley Falls, N. Y., according to a report received by the college authorities here this evening. Kimball was accompanied by a fellow-student, Frederick A. Vieter of New York, who was rescued.

The young men had planned to devote two days or more of the Easter recess to their trip down the Hoosick River and back.

DREAD OF RAIDERS KEPT BRONX DRY

Though Cunningham and Keenan Did Not Appear, Saloon Men Took No Chances.

DRINKS FOR BEARDED MEN

Raiding Policemen Are Clean Shaven—Real Sandwiches Served in Places Where Liquor Was Sold.

Westchester's "little tavern in the hollow," as Louis Olpp's place is known, was closed tight yesterday. So was Joe Wagner's place, and so was Frank Sam's, the Old Inn on Boston Road, and in fact all the rest of the places in and near Westchester Village. And what was true of the Westchester section likewise was true to a large extent of that part of the city of which Tremont is the centre.

The "tightness" was due to the announcement last Monday in the trial room at Police Headquarters that Charles Cunningham and Thomas Keenan, the raiding policemen, who have been enforcing the excise laws in the Bronx for the last six weeks, would be busy yesterday.

John Santora, the lawyer who will appear for Cunningham and Keenan, advised both men to postpone their proposed raids until another Sunday. The policemen had promised to do as he advised. But at 177th Street and Third Avenue, one of the busiest sections of the Bronx, and only a block and a half distant from Police Inspector Flood's headquarters, in the Tremont stationhouse, nearly every saloon was closed. With one or two exceptions the only liquor selling was in places with hotel privilges, and these, it was said, for the first in years, served real sandwiches with their drinks.

An attempt to get into one of the two places that did not have hotel licenses failed. The side door was opened just wide enough for the man inside to see the reporter outside.

"Nothing doing," said the man inside, and then he closed the door. It was said by a man who did get in that the reason the reporter was barred was that he was about 5 feet 10 inches in height and was clean shaven. This is the height of Keenan and Cunningham, and both of those men are whiskerless.

"Ain't nobody except those with real whiskers getting any drinks in these parts to-day," remarked an old-timer with a beard more than a foot long.

A visit to half a dozen other Tremont places disclosed a similar state of affairs. Saloons were closed, even to the bearded ones, and the one that was doing a little business extended its courtesies only to men with full beards, the proprietor, it was said, having been misinformed that Keenan had a small mustache.

Inspector Flood was not at the Tremont Station, but when the Lieutenant heard that drinks were not to be had in Tremont unless you had whiskers, he smiled and said that it showed that the law was being enforced.

Louis Olpp, who owns the "little tavern in the hollow," is President of the Westchester Liquor Dealers' Association. He is a man of influence in those parts, but nevertheless Olpp was one of the first to feel the effect of the activity of Cunningham and Keenan. His bartender is awaiting trial in Special Sessions, having been arrested on the last Sunday in January. The policemen were transferred to the east side three days later, but Olpp denied that he had anything to do with the transfer.

Yesterday the window shades in Olpp's place were up, exposing to view everything in the barroom. Not a soul was in sight.

No one ever remembered having seen the section so dry in years. One old fellow said it was the worst case of prohibition he had experienced in sixty years of Westchester life.

Keenan and Cunningham will be placed on trial this morning. There are eighteen charges against Keenan and twelve against Cunningham, involving the alleged borrowing of money from saloon keepers, failure to be at home when off duty, and failure to make arrests after entering saloons and discovering excise violations. Deputy Police Commissioner Walsh will hear the cases.

AMERICANS TO QUIT PARIS ART SOCIETY

Miller, Tanner, Frieseke, and MacCameron Will Show Disapproval of Mediocre Exhibitions.

BREUSTLE'S TOUR DE FORCE

Completes in 48 Hours Two Landscapes that Are Accepted for Salon—Donkey Paints a Picture.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 27.—The International Society of Painters and Sculptors, which exhibits every Winter in the Galeries Petit, is about to lose its most influential American members. Richard Miller, H. O. Tanner, and Frederick Frieseke will refuse to send any of their pictures to future exhibitions, for the reason that the last one, held about two months ago, was much below the standard which they think is desirable. It is understood that Robert MacCameron will take the same course as soon as he can. A by-law of the society forbids a member to resign within the first year after his election.

When Tanner, Miller, and Frieseke became members, they believed that in identifying themselves with the society they were affording encouragement to young American artists who would also be induced to join, but instead of that the names of the distinguished American artists have been used merely to attract the attention of their rich countrymen to the exhibitions, which have been made up chiefly of the mediocre productions of comparatively unknown Frenchmen. The leading Paris art critic, when he saw the last collection at the Galeries Petit, declared that there was little of special merit in it that was not American.

George Breustle, the well-known New York artist, who arrived in Paris a few days ago, has performed a tour de force which his fellow-artists here regard as remarkable. He did not expect to exhibit at the Salon and had brought with him only two rough landscape sketches. However, at the suggestion of his friend, Thomas R. Congdon, made only three days before the last date for sending pictures to the Grand Palais, he set to work and in forty-eight hours produced two finished paintings. They were received at the Grand Palais among the very last, and to-day Breustle learned that the Jury of Painting had accepted them.

Many noted Americans attended a reception given by H. O. Tanner in his studio this afternoon. The two pictures by him which will hang in the May Salon are entitled "The Holy Women Approaching the Tomb" and "The Flight Into Egypt." Miss Gibson of Madison, Wis., and Mrs. Tanner sang.

A practical joke in every way characteristic was played on the managers of the independent salon, which was opened in a wooden barracks on the Avenue du Cours-la-Reine two weeks ago. It has been proved that a picture exhibited under a title which means in English "and the sun went to sleep beneath the Adriatic," signed Boronali, was painted by means of a brush tied to the stub tail of a donkey.

The animal was backed up to the canvas and then was encouraged by divers ticklings to express himself pictorially. To clinch the joke the author of it has set forth the facts in a legally certified document.

PARIS MONUMENT TO WELLS.

Scientists and Public Men Unite in Praise of American Dentist.

PARIS, March 27.—In the presence of a distinguished gathering of scientists, representatives of the Government, Parliament, and the municipality, and delegates from dental societies in Europe, a monument to Horace Wells was unveiled to-day with fitting ceremony in the Place des Etats Unis. Wells was born in Hartford, Conn., in 1815, and was a pioneer in the use of nitrous oxide gas in dental operations. He committed suicide in New York in 1848.

The American embassy was represented at the function by Arthur Bailly-Blanchard, first Secretary. Addresses were made by Deputy Georges Berry, Prof. Dastre of the Academy of Sciences, who dwelt on the scientific value of Wells's work, and Dr. Jenkins, President of the American Dental Club in Paris, who expressed the gratitude of the American people "to generous France, which was the first to acknowledge the importance of his discovery and to comfort the man in his last sad days, which now raises an enduring tribute to his memory."

M. Quincenot, Chairman of the committee, presented the monument to the city, and it was accepted by M. Miniot, Vice President of the City Council. M. Boutee was the sculptor of the monument.

RULES OF THE AIR PROPOSED.

Aero Club of France Submits Suggestions for National Law.

PARIS, March 27.—Rules and regulations to govern the navigation of the air have been formulated by the Aero Club of France, and have been submitted to the French Government as the basis of a national law. Following are some of the club's suggestions:

Aerial craft, whether aeroplanes or dirigible balloons, must not circulate lower than 150 feet above private property. Flying above a city requires a permit from the municipality. Flying in fog is not allowed, and the transportation of explosives, except hunting ammunition, is prohibited. The fixation of general aerial routes is recommended as a means of avoiding collisions, and aeroplanes and dirigible balloons should keep off a certain distance from spherical balloons to the end that if explosions or other accidents happen to the dirigible machines the spherical ones may not be endangered.

For the protection of the aeronaut it is recommended that proprietors of high buildings and other structures be required to illuminate their property at night at each level of 250 feet, while all electric wires and conduits strung more than 150 feet above the ground should be marked each 600 feet with white flags by day and white lights by night. Other suggestions relate to the establishment of aerial "ports of access" to large cities.

The bill is being studied by M. Millerand, the Minister of Public Works.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

DRESDEN, March 27.—Gustave Scholle, Third Secretary of the American Embassy at Berlin, and Mrs. Scholle, with Miss Josephine Kalman of St. Paul, Minn., as their guest, arrived here to-day to attend the Easter Monday court and concert. Consul General Gaffney has arranged for their presentation to King Frederick and the other members of the royal family.

CHERBOURG, March 27.—Marcel Dupin, who is alleged to be a dangerous Anarchist, was arrested here to-day when embarking on the steamship George Washington for New York.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 27.—Alton B. Parker of New York and Mrs. Parker arrived here to-day. Mrs. Parker is ill.

PLANS RAILWAY IN TURKEY.

American Promoter Seeks Concession for Line from Sivas to Van.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 27.—American enterprise is endeavoring to secure from the new régime in Turkey concessions for the construction of railroads over 1,200 miles in length. Foremost among these is the proposal known as the Chester project. This contemplates a line from Sivas to Bitlis, Mush, and Van, with a branch line to Diarbekir, Kerkuh, and Suleimanieh.

The Chester project is before the Technical Commission of the Ministry of Public Works. If it is accepted by the commission and the Council of Ministers it will then have to go to the Chamber of Representatives for final approval.

Another project has just been presented to the Ministry for a line between Homs and Bagdad, practically according to the suggestions of Sir William Willcocks, but this project has not advanced beyond the initial stage.

HIGH PRICES FOR BOGUS ART.

Such Pictures Overvalued by the Importer, Say Customs Officials.

Custom House officials, who have been following the suit of William T. Evans against William Clausen, the art dealer, for selling Mr. Evans an alleged spurious painting, declared yesterday that there is one phase of the "faking" of pictures not generally known to the public, and one to which the Government unwittingly is a partner.

This consists in the invoicing and entering of not only paintings, but other works of art as well, at valuations many times in excess of the intrinsic value of the articles, and it is incumbent upon Collectors of Customs to assess duty on a value not less than that stated on the invoice or entry.

Customs officials familiar with the practice said that hundreds of copies of paintings of well-known artists, living and dead, are brought into this port every year as genuine. In every instance such pictures bear what is regarded as fabulous valuations. When the time comes for finding a purchaser the dealer substantiates his statement of value by the official papers used in the entry of the canvas.

One customs official said yesterday that unscrupulous art dealers have in many instances amassed comfortable fortunes by overvaluing their importations.

Art dealers in this city were indignant yesterday over a report published in La Patrie, Paris, and cabled to this country, that 15,454 fake "old masters" have been sent to this country in the last twelve months. Included in the list given in La Patrie were 2,849 signed Corots, 1,812 Rembrandts, 6,204 Teniers, 983 Henners, and 3,786 Zeims. The dispatch went on to say that since the new tariff law admitting antiques free had gone into effect hundreds of harpsichords "having belonged to Marie Antoinette" had also been sent to New York.

Henry Duveen of Duveen Brothers, Fifth Avenue art dealers, said yesterday of this report:

"The statement in La Patrie is not only false, but absurd in the extreme. It is an insult to the intelligence of the American people.

"All importations of paintings, especially the old masters, to the United States are carefully watched by the dealers in Europe and the customs officials here. With the staff of appraisers like Marion de Vries and other connoisseurs it would be impossible to get such trash into the country."

JEWISH CONCILIATION BOARD.

Novel Committee Will Settle Disputes in Congregations, Societies and Lodges

The Executive Committee of the Jewish Community, which represents 680 organizations in the city, has appointed a Conciliation Committee to act as a sort of arbitration body to adjust amicably differences arising in Jewish congregations, societies, and lodges of New York. It is hoped that a considerable number of disputes may be settled thus out of court.

The Conciliation Committee consists of Rabbi M. Z. Margolies of Kahal Israel Congregation, in East Eighty-first Street, Chairman; William Fischman, a merchant, and Abraham S. Schomer, a lawyer.

It has been announced throughout Jewish circles that this Conciliation Committee will use its best offices between individual members of congregations, societies, and lodges, between these bodies themselves, or between the organizations and members. Application for the services of the committee may be made to the Secretary of the Jewish Community at 365 Second Avenue.

CHADWICK MEMORIAL.

Window Dedicated to the Father of Baseball—Aged Widow Present.

The Chadwick memorial window was unveiled yesterday at the Church of Our Father, Grand Avenue and Lefferts Avenue, Brooklyn, by the Rev. Dr. Thomas E. Potterton. After the Easter Sunday sermon Dr. Potterton dedicated the window, which is a life-size reproduction of Holman Hunt's famous painting, "The Light of the World." The window depicts Jesus Christ knocking at the door of humanity, while the words "Behold, I stand at the door and knock," stand out in bold relief.

Charles H. Ebbets, President of the Brooklyn National League Club, and Chairman of the Chadwick Memorial Committee, was the only man prominently connected with baseball present at the unveiling. Neither the National League nor the clubs sent representatives. The dedication officially closes the Chadwick Memorial Fund, the work of which has been done by Mr. Ebbets.

One pathetic feature of the unveiling was the presence of Mrs. Chadwick, the widow of the "Father of Baseball." She is 93 years old, but in spite of her great age followed the dedication closely.

ONLY 28 AND A GRANDMOTHER

Daughter of Indiana Woman Married at 13 is Mother at 15.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Ind., March 27.—Mrs. Everett Parker enjoys the distinction of being a grandmother at the age of 28. Mrs. Parker was married at 13, and her daughter, now Mrs. Charles Jane of Indianapolis, is 15 years old. The child born to the latter represents the fifth generation in a family of which the oldest is 90 years of age.

"It does seem rather odd, when I come to consider it," said Mrs. Parker when she was interviewed at her home, "to think that I have become a grandmother even before I have passed the old maid limit. But I guess it runs in our family."

ADMIRERS EXTOL HARMAN AS MARTYR

G. B. Shaw Writing His Surprise That an Exponent of Woman's Rights Lived to Old Age Here.

FOUR TIMES IMPRISONED

Speakers at Memorial Meeting Tell of Aged Reformer's Persistence in the Face of Prosecution by Comstock.

An unusual memorial meeting in honor of the late Moses Harman, the venerable advocate of woman's rights, who died last January at the age of 79, after having been imprisoned four times by the United States Government for violating the postal law, was held yesterday afternoon at Lyric Hall. Champ Clark's arraignment of the postal law in the House of Representatives and his description of Harman's imprisonment under it as a "harassing and hounding of one of the purest and noblest of men" were read amid applause.

But the feature of the meeting was the reading of a letter from George Bernard Shaw, the English author, to Miss Lillian Harman of Los Angeles, Moses Harman's daughter, in whose home last January the aged woman's rights champion, greatly broken after his last imprisonment in Joliet and Leavenworth, passed away. Edwin C. Walker read the letter, which follows:

> My Dear Miss Lillian Harman: It seems nothing short of a miracle that your father should have succeeded for seventy-nine years in a country so extremely dangerous for men who have both enlightened opinions and the courage of them as the United States of America. It is certainly no fault of the Americans that he did not die before; that last imprisonment of his was really an outrage to political decency.
> I am glad to gather from your letter that he escaped the illness and pain that often trouble a good man's end, and I hope that now that he is dead, and can no longer shock Mr. Comstock and the rest of the American idols, some little sense of shame at the way he was treated may find expression in America. Yours faithfully,
> G. BERNARD SHAW.

Dr. Juliette Severance was the first speaker, and the big hall became suddenly hushed when the aged lecturer and reformer, now in her seventy-fifth year, stepped forward and, in a voice which never faltered and could be heard in all parts of the room, told her recollections of the man with whom practically all her life she worked for reform.

"I first met Moses Harman in Chicago, long before he served his term of imprisonment there," said Dr. Severance. "He started life as a school teacher. Then he became interested, first in the abolition of slavery and, later, in woman's suffrage and in freeing women from every bond or influence which, he thought, enslaved them. Eugenics, people call it nowadays. So deeply did he grow to feel on this subject that, whenever he spoke at a public meeting on any topic, he always brought in eugenics. He was always hopeful. He never complained, even in prison. The only time I ever knew him to say a harsh word to any one was during his last trial. While the trial was going on Comstock's assistant, McAfee, came up to speak to Harman, and introduced himself.

"'So you are the rascal who has caused me all this trouble,' cried Harman impetuously. In an instant he had recovered his self-control, however, and apologized. He believed that, so long as woman remained a slave, she would bring into the world a race of slaves. He was imprisoned four times for violations of the present postal law, in sending copies of his magazine containing his reform ideas through the mails. Yet I never knew a purer man than he was. As soon as he would be released he would always go right on saying and printing what he thought about the way women were treated. All the newspapers and college professors are coming around to his views now."

Bolton Hall described the disinterestedness of Harman's love of humanity. Then Gilbert E. Roe, after saying that Harman was persecuted here for exactly the same thing for which Francisco Ferrer was executed in Spain, read the attack on the present postal law which Champ Clark made two years ago in the House of Representatives.

"Under the law as it at present stands," Congressman Clark said at that time, "the business of any man can be run out of the country. There is no appeal from an order issuing from the Post Office Department. Congress ought to enact a law providing that the Post Office Department, after a hearing, shall have the right to issue a fraud order, and that then the injured person shall have a right to appeal to a court for a decision. Simply by the ruling of a subaltern a man's business can be destroyed and he has no right to appeal to the courts. This is a dangerous power to lodge in any department."

Regarding the Government's persecution of Harman, Representative Clark added in his speech in Congress:

"The Postmaster General not only excluded issues of Lucifer, Moses Harman's Chicago weekly, from the mails, but harassed and hounded it until its publication became impossible, and, in addition, sentenced Harman, one of the purest and noblest of men, to the penitentiary. Any number of other instances might be cited. There is rarely redress for the aggrieved party. They are simply excluded and ruined."

Theodore Schroeder said that the section of the present postal law under which Harman was imprisoned was in direct contradiction of several provisions of the Constitution, which he read.

"Harman's lawyers were apparently so embarrassed by the prosecution's charges that their client had circulated objectionable matter through the mails that it never occurred to them to doubt that any part of the postal law might be unconstitutional," said Mr. Schroeder.

"Harman was simply a splendid old warhorse," said Leonard D. Abbott. "He was imprisoned four times, and always told his jailers, 'I won't yield a jot to what I believe is true.' Men like that are the ones who give human life its dignity and nobility. Civilization may not develop on exactly the lines Harman thought it would. But he said what his conscience told him was right. And that is always the way in which a new truth is born."

PEARL NECKLACES

IN Paris the fortunate girl baby receives a tiny pearl necklace. On each succeeding birthday the necklace is improved by the addition of larger pearls, so that when the girl reaches womanhood she is the proud possessor of a beautiful and valuable collection of pearls.

We have just completed a number of small pearl necklaces of fine quality which we offer at most attractive prices.

PANIC IN A CHURCH AS BALCONY FALLS

Easter Worshippers Rush Wildly for Stairway as a Supporting Pillar Gives Way.

FIRE SCARE ADDS TO FEARS

Priest at Church of St. Michael, Brooklyn, Aids in Quieting Congregation—Girl Slightly Hurt.

A crash in the gallery of the Italian Roman Catholic Church of St. Michael, in Lawrence Street, near Tillary Street, Brooklyn, during the celebration of solemn high mass yesterday morning, precipitated a panic among the 600 Easter worshippers that might have had serious results if it had not been for the efforts of calmer minds to quiet the fears of the excited ones.

The noise sounded like the breaking of several benches. Those sitting in the balcony felt the floor suddenly drop a few inches. The more excitable persons rushed for the stairway in the rear. The noise they made getting out gave the impression to the congregation on the main floor that the balcony was falling. A minute's observation convinced them that this was not so, and the majority of them remained in their seats.

The ushers and one of the priests assured the congregation there was no danger. This had the desired effect on those within hearing distance, but those in the balcony thought only of getting out of the building in safety. The stairs leading to the main floor became jammed with men and women struggling madly with one another.

Sergt. John H. Hughes and Policemen Lawton and Lempken of the Adams Street Station were on the corner near the church when they saw the first of the frightened worshippers rush to the street. The men were hatless and the women looked as if they had been through a riot. The policemen rushed to the entrance of the church, which is in the centre of the building and the only exit.

With the policemen in front, urging the crowd to be calm and helping them one by one away from the door, and others inside the church, including one of the priests, assuring the congregation there was no need of being alarmed, the excitement subsided in fifteen minutes. But in that time four or five women fainted and one little girl was bruised on the face and chest by being crushed in the crowd. She was Rosie Bush, 6 years old, of 180 Navy Street. She was attended by an ambulance surgeon and was taken home.

An alarm was sent in for the fire engines by some one who thought the church was on fire. A call for ambulances was also sent in and two responded, one from the Long Island College Hospital, and the other from the Brooklyn Hospital. All the ambulance surgeons had to do was to attend to the women who had fainted, and to the Bush girl. Mrs. Maggie Lane, 69 years old, collapsed when the people in the balcony became panic stricken. She was carried to the street after the excitement subsided. Dr. Isquith of the Brooklyn Hospital attended her. He and Dr. Knoller of the Long Island College Hospital treated the other women.

The fire engines arrived about this time. They had to come from South Brooklyn, a distance of two miles, because the firemen stationed in the neighborhood were working at a three-alarm fire at 26 Doughty Street, where a chemical factory was burning.

The clanging of the firebells caused general excitement in the neighborhood. Many began to believe that the church was on fire. Friends and relatives of those who had gone to mass flocked to the church. All the reserves that could be spared from the Adams Street Station, which were those not on duty at the chemical factory fire, were called out to keep order. The prompt departure of the engines helped to quiet the fears of the crowd outside.

The Rev. Raphael Sisco, pastor of the church, was the celebrant of the mass. He continued the services after the excitement subsided. He said later that there was no real reason for a panic. An investigation of the cause showed that a pillar which supported the balcony in the centre had sunk a few inches where it stood on the main floor. The balcony gave with it under the weight of the worshippers.

OIL DOWNS VIOLETS IN EASTER PARADE

WALKS THRONGED ALL DAY

Those in Society No Longer Seen Among the Strollers—Crowds Out in Riverside Drive and Grand Street.

It was fair and cool for Easter yesterday, and hats, gowns, and every phase of human nature could be seen on parade all day long. The Fifth Avenue parade, between Fifty-ninth and Thirty-fourth Streets, lasted, as usual, from 12:30 to 2 o'clock. After that hour the crowd thinned out while the walkers stopped for luncheon.

But the midday parade along Fifth Avenue is no longer the only sartorial show that New York provides on a fair Easter. Before church time in the morning many new gowns and hats were to be seen yesterday, their wearers strolling up and down the avenue. In the late afternoon the sidewalks were again thronged with paraders.

Riverside Drive has even more paraders on it on a fair Easter afternoon than Fifth Avenue, while 125th Street, the Fifth Avenue of Harlem, and Grand Street, the Peacock Walk of the east side, show perhaps more color and spread abroad more perfume than any other streets in town on Easter. The whole city paraded yesterday in one place or another. If the creak of new shoes could have been merged into one note, it would have carried across the continent.

The Fifth Avenue parade has long ceased to be an exclusive exhibition of those whose names and pictures appear often in the society columns. The paraders there of an Easter Sunday now come mostly from other streets. Most of those of social prominence who attend church Easter Sundays along Fifth Avenue go to and from church in carriages or automobiles. And many prominent families now flee the city to escape the paraders.

Nevertheless, the Fifth Avenue Easter parade is still a thing of beauty and humor. By 12:30 o'clock yesterday the west side of the avenue was jammed with people. Two streams of strollers worked along it, one coming uptown and the other going down. Not infrequently one standing on a stoop and watching the paraders saw couples pass back and forth two or three times. These were making short trips along a specially selected part of the walk for some reason of their own.

The roadway of Fifth Avenue was as crowded with automobiles as the sidewalks were with paraders. On account of the crush they were compelled to go slow. They panted along in huddled masses, blowing out streams of smoke and exuding heavy odors of gasoline and machine oil. There was a mighty struggle between the odor of violets, carried by the paraders, and the odor of oil that was thrown off by the slow-moving automobiles, with gasoline a winner.

Most of those in the Fifth Avenue parade were richly dressed. No one wore an old hat, it seemed. If the parade tells anything about the styles for the coming late Spring and Summer, women and girls are going to wear huge straw hats turned up at the front and back.

There were a good many compact turbans worn also, and now and then a picture hat. A good many of the hats were about as high as they were broad, and sat low down on the head, so that the wearer had to turn her head to see anything except right in front of her. Among the colors, red seemed to predominate. There were shades of this from a soft, rich pink to a flaming red. One girl wore a huge straw hat with a conflagration of red tulle on top.

A man, one of the sour-tempered kind, was heard to say that the women were not walking for the joy of exercise, but in order to criticise the costumes worn by other women. A good many women walked in pairs. They would pass a gorgeous costume—or at least a costume that seemed to be a gorgeous costume to a man—and then one would look at the other with an uplift of the eyebrows and a downpull of the mouth.

Some of the stoops along upper Fifth Avenue were seized by onlookers, who took stock of the paraders—a circumstance which added to the embarrassed self-consciousness of most of them. They found a great deal to comment upon. One little woman, who was really beautiful, came by arrayed in all the finery she could pile on. Her dress was cut somewhat low in the neck, her hat was for Summer, her low slippers showed that her silk stockings were made for genial weather only, and she carried a fur muff. But it was a beautiful muff.

As for the men, they, of course, wore the same sort of things they've worn for a century. There was nothing new and colorful about them. The black frock coat, pinched in at the waist; the striped trousers, the patent leather shoes, and the top hat were all just as they have long been.

Not a few of those in yesterday's parade were apparently Easter visitors from out of the city. They strolled through the crowds with an observant eye and an amused smile. Here and there a visitor carried a small kodak, with which he snapped a bright section of the moving pageant for the home folks. Canada, which has sent several thousand visitors here for the week, was well represented in the procession.

After 2 o'clock Fifth Avenue was almost deserted for a couple of hours. The thousands who had moved along it between 12:30 and 2 o'clock had gone somewhere to eat. A small part of the paraders stopped in at houses along Fifth Avenue and its adjacent side streets—for some still keep up the old society parading tradition. The rest scattered.

Later they all appeared in their own particular parades. Riverside Drive, particularly the upper part of it, is alive with well-dressed people every warm Sunday. Yesterday afternoon it bloomed luxuriantly with new colors. Broadway above Seventy-second Street is a popular Sunday afternoon boulevard, and yesterday's sun filled it with joyous paraders.

GREAT CHURCH OUTPOURING.

Those Familiar with Affairs Put the Attendance at 1,900,000.

Estimates made by those familiar with religious affairs put the number of men and women who attended church yesterday in this city at 1,900,000. Of this number 1,060,000 were Roman Catholics and 840,000 Protestants. These estimates are based upon attendance through a series of years, and are higher than ever made before.

Besides these there were 560,000 children in the Sunday schools. This estimate does not include teachers and officers. Both morning and evening attendance is included in the case of Protestant churches and all masses in the case of Roman Catholics. It is the opinion of those who made the estimates that it is under rather than over the mark, because in scores of cases persons stood throughout the services, and of them no account was taken. In the case of the Roman Catholic attendance no account was taken of the afternoon vesper services, attendance at which usually duplicates that of the morning.

St. Patrick's Thronged All Day.

St. Patrick's Cathedral was thronged with worshippers at the 8 and 9 o'clock masses, there being no 10 o'clock mass on Easter Sunday. Even as early as 6 o'clock the great structure was fairly well filled. The celebrant of the mass at 11 o'clock was the Archbishop. The Deacons of Honor were Mgr. Hayes and the Rev. Father Hughes. At the close of the service the Archbishop gave the Apostolic blessing. The chancel was decorated with flowers and filled with priests, seminarians from Dunwoodie, and students from the Cathedral College. In order to accommodate the congregation chairs were put on both sides of the chancel, some of them almost behind the altar. Accompanying the organ were wood and stringed instruments. The cathedral was again filled at the vesper service in the afternoon.

Wreath for Bishop Potter's Tomb.

Early yesterday morning in the crypt of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, friends laid a beautiful wreath on the marble slab which covers the vault containing the body of the late Bishop Potter. Both morning and afternoon the crypt was crowded with worshippers. Canon Voorhis was the preacher in the morning.

It was said that yesterday's services would be the last Easter ones to be held in the crypt. Work in the choir and crossing of the cathedral is progressing, and they may be used by November. But it is said to be likely that the opening will be put over to December, on St. John's Day. The Bishop's chair, a most elaborate one, has just been put in place.

New Chimes for Old Trinity.

The chimes of old Trinity Church, some of the bells recast and all provided with new apparatus for ringing them, began early to call worshippers to lower Broadway. By 10:30 o'clock 2,000 persons were within the church, and fully a thousand more tried to get in and failed. The choir was assisted by wood and stringed instruments, the organist and choirmaster, Victor Baier, was in charge. The sermon was preached by the rector, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning.

St. Bartholomew's in Madison Avenue, St. Nicholas, the Brick Church, the Heavenly Rest, St. Thomas's, and the Fifth Avenue churches were crowded in every part, and thousands of late comers could not get in. All of these churches were decorated lavishly. St. Thomas's, perhaps the most elaborate of all, had the chancel lined throughout with evergreen. Banked against it were two great seas of white daisies and azalias, completely hiding the choir. With the white of the altar and occasional reds of the vestments, the effect was a brilliant one. The morning anthem at St. Thomas's Church was Bartlett's "The Lord is Risen To-day."

At the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church the preacher was the Rev. Dr. Howard Agnew Johnston, and in the afternoon he gave an account of a conversation had by him with Hindu students about the religious life of India. The Rev. Dr. Johnston was once pastor of the Madison Avenue Church in this city, but has been for some years identified with missionary life in the East.

Heavy Easter Offerings.

Easter offerings yesterday for the entire city, all Christian churches, mounted up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. About $300,000 was obtained by Protestant churches of Manhattan alone. St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Harlem, asked for $5,000 reduction on the debt, and got that sum, and $4,000 besides, or about $9,000 in all. Christ Episcopal Church, Broadway and Seventy-first Street, received $5,500, and Christ Church on Staten Island $4,000. St. Bartholomew's, St. Thomas, and the Brick Presbyterian Church reported that their offerings were probably about the same as last year, but that there had not, up to late last night, been time to count the money. St. Thomas's offering was about $10,000, and this year St. Bartholomew's made successful efforts for missions, about $18,000 having been received.

The only large sum asked for yesterday was for Grace Church, which wants $285,000 with which to wipe out the debt on the plot at Broadway and Tenth Street.

At the Church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus in West Fifty-first Street, yesterday, the Easter services were made more impressive by reason of the fact that the thirty-fourth anniversary of the founding of the parish was celebrated, and what is really a new church edifice was rededicated. Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney, Vicar General, who is the pastor of the church, performed the rites of dedication, assisted by a large number of well-known prelates. He also officiated for the first time as a member of the Sacred College of Protonotaries, to which he was recently appointed by Pope Pius.

The subject of the address which Dr. Felix Adler, leader of the Ethical Culture Society, delivered at Carnegie Hall yesterday morning was "The Response of the Religious Mind to the Spring."

Dr. Adler first discussed the human response, according to age. The response of the little child was likened by him unto that of a frisky lamb on the greensward—just a sense of emancipation. Something of this response of the child always lingers with us. The response of youth is dreams, longings, and desires—a vague, half-understood reaching out. The response of middle age is one of unexpectedness. Middle age has been in the shadow, and has had touch with the wintry things of life. The response of old age is that of sheer happiness.

"The response of the religious mind to Spring," continued Dr. Adler, "is to commemorate the Spring festival with some tragic event. The note of Easter is tragedy."

HOTELS GAY FOR EASTER.

Many Novelties Introduced to Mark the Day for Their Patrons.

The big hotels blossomed forth yesterday in Easter floral array, and the significance of the day was observed in various ways. A special programme of music was arranged by the hotel orchestras, and the guests in many instances received tokens consisting mainly of Easter eggs filled with bonbons and potted plants.

The day was also marked by a number of family gatherings at the hotels. Hundreds of young folks from the universities came on to New York to meet their parents from the West and South for the Easter holidays.

The inauguration of a promenade concert and organ recital in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor attracted many of the guests and patrons of the hotel last night. The hotel was lavishly decorated with flowers, an urn of Easter lilies standing in the main foyer.

Among those who spent Easter at the Astor were a number of cadets from West Point and Annapolis, Brig. Gen. James Allen of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. R. Walter Peterson of Philadelphia, and Major and Mrs. W. L. Simpson.

The Knickerbocker was decorated for the day, and Easter eggs, turned out by the candy chef, were in evidence here and there. All of the women guests at the Waldorf-Astoria received candy eggs as favors at breakfast, and last night a concert of appropriate music was given by an orchestra in the north foyer.

Among the folk from out of town who spent Easter here were Frank B. Hayne and family of New Orleans, Mrs. K. B. Armour of Kansas City, Countess Castelmonde, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Blood, Lady Duff Gordon, Count Balbiani, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Griffen.

All the exterior windowsills on the ground floor of the Holland House were laden with Easter lilies. Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati spent a quiet Easter here, as also Mrs. B. J. Jones and Mrs. A. Laughlin, Jr., of Pittsburg, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Cox of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Darlington of Pittsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Wellesman of Toronto.

The women guests at the Wolcott each received a potted plant as a breakfast favor, and the interior of the hotel was exotic with azaleas. Mrs. Charles Ballard and Mrs. Thurston Ballard of Louisville, Mr. and Mrs. W. Booth Tarkington and Mrs. L. Dean Holden were among those who spent Easter at this hotel.

The Gotham and St. Regis were both decorated with hundreds of Easter lilies. Earl Grey, Governor General of Canada, dined here as the guest of Mrs. Waldorf Astor, Jr. Others in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Brooks and the Hon. Robert Ward and Lady Ward.

Among those at the St. Regis over Easter were Mr. and Mrs. John Blair, Count Cziraky, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Moore of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Martin of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weeks of Baltimore, and Leonard D. Thomas and wife of Philadelphia.

A special emblazoned menu was used last night for dinner at the Plaza, which was abloom with Easter lilies and rambler roses. The orchestra gave a special programme. Among those seen dining were Count and Countess Lansborough, Mrs. E. R. Ladew, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. Francis K. Pendleton, Baron von Schlippenbach and party, Mr. and Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer, and many others.

The Manhattan and Belmont were both lavishly decorated for the day, and at the former each guest received an Easter egg stuffed with bon-bons. The guests at the Belmont all received Easter favors. The children at the Majestic, Ansonia, and Netherland received colored eggs, and a special musical programme was given at each of these hotels.

CHANTECLER HATS FOR GRAND STREET

No Woman's Hat Without a Rooster Got Even a Glance in the East Side Parade.

ANY KIND OF BIRD SERVED

Parrots' Heads with Combs and a Feather Duster Tail Among the Combinations—Strong on Color Schemes.

Everything, from the Weather Bureau down to the unimported Chantecler hats, combined to make the Easter display on the east side quite the most brilliant seen in years. Last season rain dimmed the glory of the procession, and the year before Grand Street was under a cloud owing to the prevailing financial stringency, but yesterday morning trade opened up bright and early on the curb, where the women folk ran to do their Easter shopping, and the market stood firm in spite of the enormous sales in roosters.

In the matter of the Chantecler hats, Grand Street met Fifth Avenue on its own ground and went the importers there one better. Of course, the people downtown had to have Chantecler hats, and as the prices of the imported variety were prohibitive, equally fine roosters were made then and there on the spot. It was a man who keeps a shop near Suffolk Street who had the bright idea. When the hats were first pictured several days ago he got out all his back stock of unsold birds from other seasons and Chanteclered them.

True, some of the mixtures resulting would tax the ingenuity of a faunal naturalist. For instance, there was a parrot with a rooster's tail attached, while from Polly's beak arose a red felt cock's comb, a final touch of realism. Equally fetching in its way was a mourning dove wearing a ruff of Plymouth Rock hen feathers.

News of this feat somehow or other leaked abroad, and throughout all the length and breadth of Grand Street the other millinery establishments have been doing likewise, only more so. Luckily, the Chantecler style came at just the right season, for in the neighborhood untold quantities of chicken were devoured at the feast ending the Passover, so the necessary feathers were not far to seek. No one who has not seen a Plymouth Rock tinted a deep violet shade can appreciate its immense superiority to the purple cow. Even a white leghorn in a dyepot has possibilities. The great difficulty, though, was with the tails. Real roosters' plumage is expensive and scarce, so feather dusters were requisitioned, or red, blue, and green parrot quills added at discretion.

Each storekeeper vied with his rivals in ingenuity, so that when the curtains rose on the display windows Easter morning Chantecler was there in infinite variety. There was one, down near Suffolk Street, with a red head, blue body, and green tail; there was a red head set in a blue and brown feather duster, in which a few real cock's plumes were intermingled, and over near Allen Street was a blue, red, and yellow Chantecler nesting in the crown of a three-foot creation of yellow straw, trimmed with red velvet.

Shopping is finished by 11 o'clock, and after that the clothes parade begins. Although the fruit, salad, and soup-green combinations of decoration which adorned last year's hats are gone, still, all things considered, this year's millinery display was by no means inferior. The chief requirement was size. The "Merry Widow" of yesteryear was a meek and shrinking grape leaf compared with the monster creation now the fashion. Nine of these structures completely filled a fairly large shop window.

An Italian belle seen in the parade wore a bifurcated Chantecler with a part of the tail extending over each ear, which worked very well indeed. She was walking between two swains, and as she turned her head to converse with either ones of green, purple, gray, and old rose the man temporarily neglected, thus keeping his wandering thoughts from straying elsewhere. Chantecler bags of pressed leather in red and green at 98 cents, and a Chantecler belt at 49 added a finishing touch. Only one Chantecler veil was seen, and its wearer explained frankly to a girl friend who commented on it that "Louis nicht like my face."

If prizes for costumes had been given, the gold medal should have gone to the Italian belle of the bifurcated Chantecler. As if that in itself were not glory enough, she wore bright blue stockings, contrasting with low black shoes, a moyenage dress of green and brown plaid, with twenty-two green buttons down the back, and a green moyenage sash tied below her knees with a large bow.

Contrary to the extensive puffs of former months, all the feminine world was given over to swirls. The apparatus by which this style of hair dressing is achieved was for sale at every shop, 10 cents apiece. These are brown, hairy, shell-like things, which are inverted on the back of the head like a farmer's haircutting bowl, and over them the swirl is wound. If heads are simpler, feet are more complex. They were showing a new kind of shoe, "absolutely the latest thing out," made in three stories, the foot, for instance, would be of red leather, the ankle of white, and the top of red again. Accordingly, when a girl in a green dress, blue coat, and purple hat walked by in that sort of shoe, she made a deep impression.

Not far behind were the men on parade. They had neckties of brown and purple stripes, flowered over, brocaded ones of green, purple, gray, and old rose mixed, and magenta ones with the shamrock woven through, which added color to the somberest of costumes. If the green hat is gone but not forgotten, there is the blue one to take its place. To keep it company was a cap of gray, crossed by orange diagonals and decorated with concentric circles in green. There was a gay young buck in a gray suit, blue shirt, tan vest, blue hat, tan shoes, and crushed strawberry tie. With him paraded his friend, in a black and white check with a stripe of robin's egg blue running hither and yon. He had daffodils in his buttonhole and presumably he wore a necktie, but the spectators' eyes were too dazzled to single it out from the general mass of color.

In Delancey Street the most striking sight is the new fresco recently painted across the front of a well-known Italian eating house. In seven panels this displays the stages of the man who patronizes the place. Figure one shows a walking skeleton or the man before he has tasted the tempting viands offered within. In the next picture the subject has begun to swell visibly. In later stages he displays plumpness, while in the last he has developed an Aldermanic waistcoat.

About the best of the Easter stories comes from the Eldridge Street Police Station, where all the lost children of the neighborhood are taken. From past experience the matron expects a downpour in Passover week, for while the faithful are at prayer the children are apt to wander away and get lost. Usually, though, by Easter itself, the rush has let up. Consequently about 10 o'clock yesterday morning the man at the desk was rather astonished to have a girl of 13 bring in two little children whom she said she had found wandering around.

The little folks weren't a bit frightened and didn't act as lost children generally do, so the man on the desk put a few questions, and soon brought forth an unusual tale.

The mother of little Lily and Solly, so the girl confided, wanted to go to a party over in Brownsville, but she hadn't any one with whom to leave the children. So she offered her neighbor's daughter 2 cents if she would take the two babies to the police station as lost children. She knew they'd be well looked after, and would call for them after she got back from the party in the evening.

Even the man at the desk was amazed. So he offered the girl 3 cents and some chewing gum to take the children back to their mother, and to tell her that "this is a police station and not a day-nursery."

CALLED BY GRACE CHURCH

Bishop Greer Announces Choice of Dr. C. L. Slattery of Springfield, Mass.

The rectorship of Grace Church, which has been vacant since the death of the Rev. Dr. Huntington last Summer, has been offered to the Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery, rector of Christ Church, Springfield, Mass. Announcement of Dr. Slattery's choice was made yesterday to the congregation by Bishop Greer in his sermon at the morning's service. The actual election was made last Wednesday by the vestry of Grace Church.

It is not yet definitely known whether Dr. Slattery will accept the offer, but it was said yesterday at Grace Church House that there is little doubt of it. It is understood that Dr. Slattery was approached on the subject before the vestry took action. He has never preached in Grace Church, but he was one of the three speakers selected by Bishop Greer for the remarkable meeting of churchmen held on Nov. 9 last in Carnegie Hall, and he then delivered an address on the "Church Triumphant in the Future."

Dr. Slattery was the noonday preacher at Trinity Church in Lent last year, and at Calvary Church in Fourth Avenue the previous year.

Dr. Slattery is 42 years old, having been born in Pittsburg on Dec. 9, 1867. His father was the Rev. Dr. George Slattery, and his mother before her marriage was Miss Emma McLellan Hall. He is unmarried. He was graduated from Harvard in 1891, and afterward studied for orders at the Cambridge Divinity School, of which he is to-day one of the most prominent alumni. He was ordained a deacon in 1894 and was advanced to the priesthood a year later.

After acting for a time as assistant master at the Groton School, Dr. Slattery was appointed rector of St. Andrew's Church, at Ayer, Mass. He worked there from 1894 to 1896, and was then made dean of the Cathedral of Our Merciful Savior, Faribault, Minn. He held this place until 1907 and then came East again to Springfield, Mass.

He is described as a good preacher, an indefatigable worker and a successful organizer. During the three years he has been at Springfield he has won for himself the good will of other denominations than the Episcopalian, and if he accepts the rectorship of Grace Church his departure will be greatly regretted.

One of those who spoke of him yesterday referred to his Carnegie Hall address as setting forth clearly his position on ecclesiastical matters.

"I would call Dr. Slattery," he said, "a conservative broad church man. At Carnegie Hall he suggested that it might not be so much the essentials of religion as the beautiful customs that keep denominations apart. He referred to the beautiful custom of the liturgy of the church, and the beautiful custom of free prayer of other Christians, but he did not propose that either should sacrifice what they held dear. It might be, he said, that God would find a way to bring about the higher unity of all denominations without giving up any of these customs."

In addition to his pastoral work Dr. Slattery is the author of several works, among which are "Felix Reville Brunot," "Edward Lincoln Atkinson," "The Master of the World, a Study of Christ," and "Life Beyond Life, a Study of Immortality."

While nothing official was given out at Grace Church yesterday as to the salary the new rector will receive, it is thought that it will be in the neighborhood of $12,000 a year.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 27.—The Rev. Dr. Charles L. Slattery, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, declined to-night to state whether he would accept the call received from Grace Church of New York City. Dr. Slattery said that he might make known his decision at a meeting of the vestrymen to-morrow. If he did not, it would be withheld at least a week, as he will leave the city on Tuesday for a few days' rest.

The announcement that Dr. Slattery is sought by Grace Church came as an unwelcome Easter surprise to his parishioners. The impression here is that Dr. Slattery will accept the offer of Grace Church.

CHURCH SERVICE ON STAGE.

Held Because Vaudeville Performer Didn't Want to Miss Easter Sermon.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 27.—Because the manager of a troupe playing at a local vaudeville house said an eighteen-year-old "juggling girl" had refused to take part in an extra rehearsal on Easter morning because she would thereby miss attending church, Dean Walter T. Sumner of the Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul officiated at a special Easter service on the stage of the theatre immediately after the departure of the matinee audience this afternoon.

Sixty men and women, many with traces of rouge and grease paint still on their faces, stood in a semi-circle in the American Music Hall and sang hymns, while at the middle of the footlights, dressed in his priestly robes, stood Dean Sumner leading.

A roughly-clad stage carpenter and a girl in short skirts read from the same book almost in front of the clergyman, with a clog dancer on one side, and a "balloon girl" on the other, while all about was the gaudy scenery of a stage garden setting.

FOUND A MAN UNDER THE BED.

Servant Girls Routed Midnight Burglar, Who Escaped Over Back Fences.

Nellie Head and Rose Cassidy, servants in the employ of Mrs. Elizabeth R. M. Cooke of 15 Hillyer Street, Orange, N. J., found a strange man under their bed as they retired just before midnight Saturday. The man did not attempt to molest them, but made the quickest escape he could. In doing so, however, he chased one of the young women down two flights of stairs to the first floor, not because he was after her, but because she happened to run the same way. On the ground floor he dodged out of a side window, which he had left open on entering, made off through several back yards to Main Street, and boarded a trolley car bound for Newark.

It is supposed that the man had entered the house just when the women, who are taking care of it in the absence of their employer, got home from their evening's outing. That was at 11 o'clock, and for the next hour the man must have been lurking on the floor above, while the girls lunched and talked. It was midnight when they finally started for their room.

Freeholder Charles W. Romaine, who lives two doors away, hurried over and searched the house. He found that the intruder had disturbed nothing in the house.

WARM DAY IN CHICAGO.

Temperature Up to 86 Degrees—Great Crowds Come Out.

CHICAGO, March 27.—Chicago to-day experienced the warmest March weather on record. The Weather Bureau thermometer at 3 P. M. registered 81 degrees, but in the streets the temperature was as high as 86.

Conditions for Easter were almost ideal. The sun was dimmed only by a haze. Great crowds filled the parks, and the Easter parades after church services were unprecedented in brilliance and size.

Smith Gray & Co.
Foremost Clothiers Since 1845.

Even though the price of a Smith Gray garment be identical with that of similar garments and fabrics shown by our friends and neighbors, Smith Gray & Co. garments should be the clothes for you because of the assurance of quality which can only come through 65 years of tailoring only good clothes.

This assurance is due to: Fabrics that must stand the most rigid tests by men who for more than half a century have accepted only the best.

Trimmings, linings, etc., that time has proven right.

Tailoring that is possible only as the result obtained by an organization 65 years in the building.

Style, the quality of which can be best judged by its ready acceptance by three generations of New York's most critical and discriminating dressers.

And best of all the value which naturally results as the combination of all these good features is effected.

Smith Gray & Co. Spring Suits and Spring Coats range in price from $18 to $50.

Garments specially priced are to be had as low as $15.00; also garments priced $18.50, many of which show price reductions because of small lots—Silk-lined to edge Black and Oxford Vicuna finished fabric overcoats at $20.00 are an attractive value; then, too, our $24.50 suits are of much greater value than the price would indicate; also Suits and Spring Coats at $27.50 that will appeal strongly to men who demand garments of unusual excellence specially priced.

CAMP'S FOOTBALL IDEAS ADOPTED

Yale's Athletic Ruler Suggested Long Ago Changes Adopted on Saturday.

When the Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee on Saturday last promulgated six new rules for the season of 1910 and published two tentative groups for further consideration at the session to be held in Philadelphia on April 29, a fecund opportunity was presented to compare the decision of the committee, rendered after many hours of debate and six weeks of study, with the reform ideas presented by Walter Camp of Yale many weeks previous.

About three months ago a series of changes was suggested by Mr. Camp. Naturally, then, they must have been written long before that and conceived still more remotely.

At the time they were published they seemed almost revolutionary. Wherever football players of either the past or the present generations foregathered, the tide of conversation immediately swung to one topic. How much was there in the radical suggestions that had emanated from a source that, so far as football reform was concerned, had hitherto been considered a stronghold of conservatism?

Despite considerable adverse criticism, Mr. Camp stuck by his guns, and now it is surprising some to note that what Mr. Camp proposed and what the committee decided upon are just about blood cousins.

Mr. Camp's suggestions in December were:

> The abolition of the flying tackle; permission for the quarterback to cross the line of scrimmage with the ball without going five yards out to right or left of centre; kicks to travel at least twenty yards across the line of scrimmage before players of the attacking eleven were put onside; fifteen yards to gain in three tries up to the twenty-five-yard line, with either five or ten yards to a first down thereafter, and a provision that no man on the defense was to line up outside of the man playing the corresponding position on the offense.

Of these suggestions, every one is in either the six new rules already determined upon or in Group "A" of the further proposed changes. The first three of Mr. Camp's December-made suggestions are Paragraphs 1, 3, and 6, of the new rules as set forth last Saturday. The last two are under serious consideration as worthy to be placed in the 1910 code.

That there is a moral to all that becomes immediately apparent. It was the expressed opinion of at least one prominent ex-player yesterday that the moral lay in Yale's eternal preparedness against the future, coupled with a sapient diagnosis of football's most serious malady last year, the forward pass. It will be remembered that Robert P. Kernan, Harvard and all-American full back in 1901, recently called the forward pass across the line of scrimmage "the diseased vermiform appendix of football, an utterly useless and highly dangerous play."

Mr. Camp, in a letter to Dr. William A. Lambeth of the University of Virginia and a member of the Rules Committee, in which the Yale man asked Dr. Lambeth to get the Virginia 'Varstiy eleven and substitutes to try out his suggestions in actual scrimmages, said:

> Under the present rules regarding the forward pass, the defensive halfbacks must play some distance behind the line to break up the forward pass made across the line of scrimmage. This fact makes plays off tackle very strong and effective, and wears out the defensive tackle before any one can come to his assistance.
> Now, if the forward pass cannot be made beyond the line of scrimmage, the defensive halfbacks can come up to the line and effectually assist the tackle in breaking up the heavy line smashes directed at him. With the confining of the players of the defense and attack to the same lateral zone, the defense will be so thickened that line smashing will probably cease to be effective and a premium will be put on open play and end runs. That, it seems, is what is needed to restore the game.

As to whether Group A of the suggested changes, which are to be acted on next month, with its confining of the forward pass to behind the attacking line of scrimmage, or Group B, urging that the forward pass across the scrimmage line be still further encouraged, will finally pass into the rules book, no one well acquainted with the situation wanted to venture an opinion yesterday.

Based on the law of averages, if five of Mr. Camp's six suggestions find their way to approval by the committee so that three are definitely accepted and the other two are now up for final approval, it seems safe, as one man said, to put a small bet down on the two ultimately winning out. In addition, it may be stated that the committee stood 8 to 6 against the forward pass across the line of scrimmage when it adjourned on Saturday afternoon.

PENN'S RELAY ENTRIES.

Keen Competition Between Big Universities in One-Mile Event.

Pennsylvania's relay races already have a remarkable entry list, and this applies especially to the championships. Even now the best-known teams in the country are entered for the different college and school championships.

Coach Stagg of Chicago recently wrote to the relay management, stating that he would be East with a one-mile team to defend the title won last year, but that he was not sure of success. However, last year Stagg came East with a supposedly mediocre quartet and won the race. He has but one man of last year's team left—Davenport—a very fine quarter-miler. Menaul has proved the best of the many candidates for the team, and has consistently beaten not only the new men, but even Davenport.

Chicago will find stronger competition than last year. Michigan retains her last season's team entire, while Illinois will have three of her team. These two colleges are thus sure to be faster. Fortunately for the honor of the East, Pennsylvania will also be in the running. With Ramsdell and Huff as a nucleus, Murphy hopes to develop a team that will make a very good showing. Harvard also is expected to enter this event, and it is dollars to doughnuts that if the Cambridge men enter, they will come down in great shape. Harvard will not make the mistake again of holding her opponents too cheaply, especially at Pennsylvania's relay races, a meet that has brought out scores of dark horses. Relay entries close on April 1.

GLENN CURTISS TO FLY.

National Aviation Meet Arranged for Memphis Next Week.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 27.—A National aviation meet has been arranged for April 6, 7, 8, and 9 here, at which Glenn H. Curtiss, his assistant, Charles Hamilton, and Charles Willard will be the principal operators of aeroplanes. The aviators have promised to try to establish new records for height and distance. In addition to the aeroplane races there will be races between the flying machines and automobiles and between aeroplanes and motor cycles.

Non-partisan judges from other cities with the latest mechanical instruments for measuring the height and distance traveled by the aeroplanes will officiate. An aero club has been organized and admitted to the membership of the Aero Club of America, so that the records made will be official.

POLO PLAYERS REST.

Lakewood Carnival Will Be Resumed To-morrow with Strong Teams.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., March 27.—No regular game was contested this afternoon at Georgian Court, as the majority of the men were tired after the strenuous work of Saturday, and are resting up for a hard game on Tuesday, when the strongest men will be pitted against each other. No regular scores were kept, as the men were changed frequently in the same period.

Among those seen on the field were: J. B. Thomas, Jr., R. Rosengarten, Capt. E. D. Miller, J. Earl, C. C. Rumsey, H. Smith, G. Smith, R. J. Collier, W. G. Loew, M. Alexander, B. Butterworth, A. Borden, T. Burden, Major Hon. J. G. Beresford, and J. A. Rawlins. There was a large throng present who were much disappointed over the fact that no match was played.

Fourteenth Regiment Games.

With an entry list including Olympic, National, and Metropolitan champions, the athletic carnival of the Fourteenth Regiment A. A. will take place in the armory, Fourteenth Street and Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, this evening. The feature event is the half mile run special, which has attracted Abel Kiviat, Mel Sheppard, Frank Riley, Carl Walther, Dick Egan, and Joe Bromilow. This is the fastest aggregation of half milers that McHugh has had occasion to send away this Winter. Another feature will be the five-mile special, with George Obermeyer of the National A. C., Erickson, who took the measure of Swanberg before he turned professional; Win Bailey, and Eddie Carr, together with a number of other stars at this distance. The other events include several open relay races and the events for the athletes of the Fourteenth.

1,301 Entries for Kentucky Futurity.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 27.—Secretary Horace Wilson to-day announced that the twenty-first renewal of the $21,000 Kentucky Futurity, which closed on March 15, received the entries of 1,301 mares, a substantial increase over last year. Thirty-eight States and Canada and England are represented in the lists.

WOMAN DRIVES IN SPEEDWAY BRUSHES

Five Thousand Persons Witness Interesting Series of Contests —Many New Horses Out.

Easter Sunday on the Speedway drew the largest crowd in years. Spectators were there before 10, and by noon nearly 5,000 men and women had lined the walks on both sides of the drive. Drivers of fast steppers were out in full force, but contrary to expectation the brushes were few compared with the number of horses out. As usual, several of the leading members of the Road Drivers' Association were on the walks, in some cases their horses being driven or rather jogged by others.

Women drivers are quite frequently seen on the Speedway, but there was one yesterday who handled a fast going pacer better than any woman seen on the drive since the days of Miss Morosini. She was Miss C. Kolb of Yonkers, who handled the pacer Aldrich, with a wagon record of 2:17, in a manner which pleased all and was highly approved by Mrs. G. H. Lincoln, who as Nina Phelps drove Dariel to the world's record for a woman whip at Syracuse some years ago, and who was present yesterday.

The brushes were started by that old-time pacer, Dandy C. O., 2:16, driven first by E. J. McEllwaine, who picked up Charles Weiland's trotter Sid Axworthy, 2:12¼, and gave him one of the hardest fights the son of Axworthy has had on the drive, even if he was just nosed out at the finish. Gus Osborne, behind Trixey H., 2:13½, and Charles Urbin, driving Bertha E., kept the drive lively for a while with two closely contested heats, both of which were won by the former by a short neck.

When A. B. McGaffney showed up behind his black pacer Sadie Mac, 2:19¼, everybody was certain that something would be doing. After a warming-up heat Sadie Mac picked up B. Ontime, 2:13½, which was driven by Trainer Sam Goldsmith in the absence of Owner Hugh Reiley, and Dandy O. C., driven by J. J. Corcoran. The trio trailed along, lapped at each other, but Sadie Mac pulled to the lead at the finish. Later Sadie Mac and B. Ontime came down alone, and the latter won by a close margin. Princess Direct, 2:14¼, (record obtained last season,) came out with her owner, Thomas B. Leahy in the wagon, and showed in her first effort for a brush that she has good manners and speed enough to handily beat all pacers in her class. She had a tilt with Bertha, and won both heats rather handily.

Thomas Lawson appeared yesterday with Jap hitched to a speed wagon. His first brush was with William McMillan's four-year-old trotter Guy Jay, and lost both a brush and a repeat, the roan colt being too fast for Jap. In a set-to with Trixey H., Jap led most of the way, but near the finish made a break and lost the heat in a close margin. A. Aronson, behind Hylie Bird, 2:15¼, challenged Jap for two heats, but this time the latter won both as he pleased. Trixey H. and Jap had another heat, with the latter an easy winner.

A good going pacer had been seen on the drive the last few weeks, but until yesterday no one knew his identity. He turns out to be Fitzgerald, a bay gelding with a mark of 2:20¼, driven by A. Morris. He got in a contest with Pat Kennedy's Earl B., Jap, and Hylie Bird, and after keeping up in the lead most of the distance, finished a close third, with Hylie Bird in last position. The young trotter Duke, driven by R. F. Russell, had three straight heats with Andrew Crawford's The Spoiler and won all. Before going home James Kennedy suffered a defeat when he started Golden, Jr., against the pacer Aristocrat, driven by Arthur Malady. Arthur Lape showed Prince Alexis, 2:24¼, for the first time on the Speedway, and the trotter made a good and favorable impression.

Very few horsemen were aware of the presence on the drive yesterday of one of the country's best-known old-time breeders and race horsemen, in the person of Alexander McGinnis of Saginaw, Mich. He came to the Speedway to see the fast ones, but particularly the big white-faced pacer Americus, which has cut a big figure on the drive. Mr. McGinnis bred this horse sixteen years ago and sold him when a five-year-old, but unfortunately, for the first time in many weeks, the pacer was absent.

The one world's champion trotting gelding Tiverton, 2:04½, made his Spring début on the drive yesterday, with "Tiverton" George in the wagon. The former champion looks in fine condition. Joseph F. Gibbons, President of the Road Drivers' Association, again had his fast pacer, Claro, 2:11½ hitched to a green cart. Sol. B. Wolf's Minnie Albert was also in fine shape and stepped faster than she has shown so far this year.

Thomas G. Hinds jogged Ismalian, 2:23¼. John McGuire drove his trotter Coler, but did not enter into the contests, while two well-known road drivers, W. B. Clarke, and Philip Heipenhausen, were out with Joe Jap and Lemon Girl. James A. Murphy speeded Kim several fast heats.

GOOD SCORES AT LARCHMONT

S. Scott Captures Shooting Honors at Weekly Tournament.

S. Scott carried off the shooting honors yesterday at the weekly tournament of the Larchmont Yacht Club. Scott was high gun for the day, with 105 out of a possible 125, and secured a leg on the Spotts Cup. The general average of scores was excellent, and a big crowd of Easter visitors watched the work of the gunners at the traps. The other winners were W. J. Elias, J. Ross Collins, and K. B. Hooker. The scores:

Twenty-five Birds, Handicap, Unknown Angles, Sauer Gun.—W. J. Elias, 1, 23; T. Lenane, Jr., 2, 19; W. D. Hinds, 0, 19; J. Morrison, 2, 21; S. Scott, 1, 22; K. R. Hooker, 1, 19; W. B. Short, 2, 22; J. Ross Collins, 2, 21.

Twenty-five Birds, Handicap, Unknown Angles, R. L. Spotts March Cup.—W. J. Elias, 0, 19; T. Lenane, Jr., 2, 21; W. D. Hinds, 0, 22; J. Morrison, 2, 22; S. Scott, 1, 24; K. R. Hooker, 1, 23; W. B. Short, 2, 19; J. Ross Collins, 2, 20.

Twenty-five Birds, Handicap, Unknown Angles, John Boudouine's Season Prize.—W. J. Elias, 0, 22; T. Lenane, Jr., 2, 19; W. D. Hinds, 0, 17; J. Morrison, 2, 17; S. Scott, 0, 18; K. R. Hooker, 1, 21; W. B. Short, 2, 21; J. Ross Collins, 2, 23.

Twenty-five Birds, Handicap, Unknown Angles, Accumulation Cup.—W. J. Elias, 0, 18; T. Lenane, Jr., 2, 20; W. D. Hinds, 0, 20; J. Morrison, 2, 21; S. Scott, 0, 21; K. R. Hooker, 1, 21; W. B. Short, 2, 21; J. Ross Collins, 1, 21.

High for the Day, Out of a Possible 125 Birds, Scratch.—W. J. Elias, 102; T. Lenane, Jr., 90; W. D. Hinds, 99; J. Morrison, 91; S. Scott, 105; K. R. Hooker, 99; W. B. Short, 95.

Frank Captures Long Walk.

The Winged Foot A. C. of Recreation Centre 20 yesterday held a club walk from City Hall to Coney Island. Thirty-six members started, of which eight did not finish, three being disqualified, and five quit before the end had been reached. President D. Rockwood of the club donated a silver cup for first place, which was carried off by S. Frank, who covered the course in 2 hours and 9 minutes. M. Burman, who finished second, put up a good fight in the last mile. The order of finish: S. Frank, M. Burman, J. McArthy, M. Haas, G. Kramer, C. Weissman, S. Bruckner, H. Burker, H. Liberman, and J. Frisch.

French Racing Season Opens.

PARIS, March 27.—The formal inauguration of the racing season in France occurred today with the running of the Prix du President de la Republique at Auteuil. The beautiful weather drew out an immense crowd, among which were many Americans. President Fallieres and the members of his Cabinet and all fashionable Paris were present. The Easter gown display was a notable one.

The Prix du President de la Republique is a steeplechase handicap at two miles five furlongs, for a purse of $10,000. It was won to-day by Mme. Doublet's Ordurhin III. No American horses were entered in this event. In several of the other races horses owned by William K. Vanderbilt, Frank J. Gould, and Mason Carnes competed, but were not placed.

Hartford Offers $23,000 in Stakes.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 27.—The Racing Committee of the Connecticut Fair Association, following a visit to this city of Andrew J. Welch, one of the members, has announced the early closing events for the Grand Circuit meeting to be conducted at Charter Oak Park in connection with the Connecticut Fair, which begins on Labor Day. The association offers $23,000 in stakes, including the classic Charter Oak, (2:09 trot,) $10,000, and the Nutmeg, (2:06 pace,) $3,000.

Fight Advance Sale Reaches $160,000.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., March 27.—Tex Rickard, one of the promoters of the Jeffries-Johnson fight, thinks the black will come out winner if he takes care of himself from now on. "Jeffries has gone too far back and Johnson sholud win if he is in good condition," said Rickard to-night. Rickard said the advance reservation of seats already had reached $160,000. The promoter is in favor of two referees.

West Point Fencers Cheered.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., March 27.—The Army fencing team arrived home this afternoon, and, although they had failed to again bring to West Point the intercollegiate championship, no victorious team has ever received a more demonstrative home coming. Eager to show their appreciation for the excellent showing the team had made, the cadets removed the horses from the bus and attaching a long rope, willing hands hauled them to the barrack yard, where each man of the team in turn received the army yell. Since the beginning of the intercollegiate fencing meets the Army has won six out of the nine fenced.

'Cross Country in a MORA LIGHT FOUR

When you start away on a motor trip—whether for a long distance, or a short one—isn't it sort of nice to know and to feel that no matter what kind of roads you may encounter—the car that conveys you, will see you safely to your journey's end—and back again.

That's MORA efficiency.

That's what has caused the MORA car to be nicknamed the EXPERIENCED motorists know that every dollar spent in manufacturing costs is returned to the purchaser of a high grade car in reduced upkeep and maintenance charges. You would not think of employing inferior workmen in your business because you realize that you would pay double the price in the end. This is no less true of motoring. In purchasing the Houpt-Rockwell the original price pays for maintenance as well as manufacturing, since maintenance is reduced to a minimum. The Houpt-Rockwell car is the best car in the market because it combines the best features of other cars. No single feature that has proven successful in practice is lacking. The car was tested eighteen months on the road before it was offered to the public.

Were the foremost cars in the market to-day to be redesigned they would all follow the lines of the Houpt-Rockwell. Were it not for the necessity of abandoning costly machinery they would discontinue many features which are archaic.

RUMOR SAYS KLING MAY PLAY FOR REDS

Latest Report Is That McLean Will Figure in Deal Which Involves New York Club.

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, March 27.—That a deal is now being made which will result in the trading of Catcher Larry McLean by Cincinnati to the Giants for another player, who will be traded to Chicago along with a sum said to be fully $20,000 in return for Catcher Johnny Kling, is the latest word of a big move being made in the inner circles of the National League. McLean will leave Hot Springs early to-morrow for Cincinnati, he having formally left the Reds, and his hotel bill having been paid up to to-night by Manager Griffith. Griffith wired to McGraw in Texas yesterday asking if he wanted McLean, and what inducements he could offer for the star catcher of the Reds.

This is the talk going the rounds here as to the other part of the deal.

It is known that Kling and Murphy have never been able to agree, and that it was for this reason—purely a financial one—that Kling left the Cubs year before last. Hermann tried last year to get him and failed. It is said here by men who know Herrmann that he will strain every nerve to get the famous backstop this year, and that $20,000 will be a small price to pay for him. Herrmann, according to these men, figures that if his club can get $40,000 out of the world series, which he is said to count upon winning with Kling in harness, he would be several thousand ahead. More than that, he will have a great backstop.

Manager Griffith admitted to-night that he's after a great catcher, and it is known that he has long wanted to be rid of McLean.

GIANTS LEAVE DALLAS.

Wind Up Training Season by Defeating Local Team 5-0.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, March 27.—The Giants concluded their annual training season in Texas this afternoon by defeating Dallas in a loosely played game by a score of 5 to 0. They hurried away from the park and caught an early train for Shreveport, La., where they play to-morrow.

Drucke, Marquard, and Ames did the pitching for New York, and all of them were in such good form that it would be hard to say which did the better work. Not once did the Texans have a chance of scoring. Each of the New York pitchers struck out five men.

The Giants grabbed the game away from Dallas in the second inning, when hits by Merkle and Drucke, added to several errors on the part of the Texans, gave them four runs. The score:

BUSY WEEK FOR YANKEES.

Montreal and Boston Nationals Will Oppose New York Team.

Special to The New York Times.

ATHENS, Ga., March 27.—Headed by Manager Barrows, a score of players of the Montreal Eastern League Club arrived from Columbia, S. C., this afternoon for games with the New York Americans Monday and Tuesday.

The Eastern Leaguers were in good shape. Some familiar faces were noticeable, among them Pete Wilson, Joe Yeager, and George Winters. If appearances count for anything, Wilson may be back on the Hilltop before a great while. New York has a string attachment by which the southpaw may be recalled on short notice. New York turned Wilson back last Summer because he was not physically fit to stand the strain of nine tough innings. This Winter the left hander has picked up in weight. Barrows says he is one of the best of his staff and that he will send the former Highlander against his old teammates. Winters will be seen in part of Tuesday's game.

The right side of the infield is pretty well established, with Hal Chase at first and Earle Gardner at second. Foster will be the regular shortstop till Chase returns. Knight will have to play the first bag until then. The outfield and third-base positions seem a toss-up. Johnson needs but to improve his batting eye to oust Austin. Hemphill, Wolter, and Cree are all hitting, fielding, and running bases like demons. Madden is coming every day, and will not have to improve much to be in the same class with any of that trio. Criger is looking after the battery men. He says his end of the work will be upheld properly this week. Lou himself figures on getting behind the plate against the Doves. He always had a warm spot in his heart for Boston.

Day of Rest for Brooklyn Players.

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 27.—This was a day of rest and sightseeing for the Dodgers. Three automobile parties went out to Chickamauga Park and Missionary Ridge, and others went up Lookout Mountain. Pitcher Knetzer may be left behind with Johnny Dobbs's outfit together with one of the extra catchers. Dahlen refuses to talk on that subject. Lennox brought an abcess with him from Camden. It is on his left leg and the third baseman objects to playing exhibition games until it is gone. Both Ulrich and Knetzer, the cripples, are coming around fast, and will be out on the lot in a few days. Scanlon, Bergen, and Jordan are due here to-morrow, when the Dodgers will be complete.

Murphy to Captain Yale Nine.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 27.—The Yale baseball nine left Atlantic City for Washington to-day without Capt. Steve Philbin, who is in a hospital with a fractured ankle. It is now believed, after a careful examination, that the fracture is not as severe as at first thought. Fred Murphy, who Captained Yale's nine last year, will act as Captain to-morrow in the game at American League Park in Washington. Capt. Philbin expects to be moved to this city in about three weeks and will then assume general charge of the team.

Catcher Gregory of the Yale nine has been sent home from Atlantic City. He smashed his finger in practice at Atlantic City on Friday before Yale's first game with Pennsylvania. The crippling of Gregory and Philbin leaves Paul Badger as the only catcher on the team.

Other Baseball Games.

At Houston—Detroit Americans, 0; Houston, (Texas League,) 3. Batteries—Willett, Browning and Schmidt and Beckendorf; Malloy, Burch and Wickenhofer.

At New Orleans—New Orleans, (Southern League,) 2; Cleveland Americans, 1. Batteries—Paige, Maxwell and Mitchell; Boyce, Joss and Easterly.

At Louisville, Ky.—Louisville, (American Association,) 4; Philadelphia Americans, (second team,) 3. Batteries—Richter, Bushelman, Hughes and Hart; Hankee, Foreman and Egan.

At Hot Springs—Cincinnati Nationals, 7; Boston Americans, 13. Batteries—Rowan, Covaleski, Cantwell, and Roth and Clark; Pape, Esman, Wood and Madden.

At Fort Worth, Texas—New York Nationals, (second team,) 10; Fort Worth, (Texas League,) 4. Batteries—Dickson, Buck, Parsons and Schlei; Burke, McKay and Powell.

At San Antonio, Texas—Detroit Americans, 12; San Antonio, (Texas League,) 4. Batteries—Pernoll and Stanage; Ables, Volz and Schan.

Tim Sullivan Will Start Race.

Big Tim Sullivan will be the man behind the gun at the Marathon derby at the Polo Grounds on Saturday afternoon. The "Senator" fired the gun which sent away the field in the first running of this great event last season, and he will repeat the trick when several of the world's greatest long distance men line up for the gruelling contest on Saturday. Tim Hurst, the well-known umpire, will be referee. The judges will be the Hon. Thomas F. Foley, John J. Murphy, and George F. Consedine. The New York Timers' Club will have charge of the timing of the race. The track for the event, as in last year's contest, will be laid out six laps to the mile. As the distance of the race is 26 miles 385 yards, the runners will have to make the circuit of the track 157 times and an extra 275 feet.

Clan McDonald Defeats Arcadia.

Four thousand association football enthusiasts crowded McDonald Oval, in Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, to witness the championship match between the Clan McDonalds, leaders in the series of the New York Amateur Association Football League, and the Arcadia Thistles. The clansmen, who had won thirteen out of sixteen games and drawn three up to that time maintained their unbeaten record, winning from the Thistles by the score of 3 goals to 1. W. Glen, the international player, was the central figure of the game and shot a goal for the McDonalds in each half.

GLIBERT IS NEW JUNIOR CHAMPION

Mohawk A. C. Crack Win Metropolitan Cross-Country Title from a Big Field.

The new Metropolitan junior cross-country champion is Joseph Gilbert of the Mohawk Athletic Club, who won the event from a big field of competitors yesterday over the five-mile course of the Mohegan A. C., in the Bronx. Second came H. McGinn of the New York A. C., who was a considerable distance behind the winner, and a short way back of him was D. C. Noble, also of the New York A. C. The team prize went to the representatives of the Mott Haven A. C., who scored 72 points, with the New York A. C. in second position with 77 points. The totals made by the other teams, thirteen in all being entered, were: Irish-American A. C., 111; Acorn A. C., 132; Xavier A. C., 142; Glencoe A. C., 170; Mohawk A. C., 171; Pastime A. C., 223; Mohegan A. C., 232; National A. C., 247; Flatbush A. C., 329, and St. Mary's A. C., 366. Gilbert's score did not count for the Mohawk A. C. team, as he had been a member of a winning team in past years.

From start to finish of the event, which brought out a strong following of the best athletes in this section, little Glibert was well up, and after the turn for home had been made he quickly assumed the lead and gradually increased his advantage over the majority of the men, with McGinn and Noble trying vainly to overtake him. The real race was between these two for second place, and they crossed the line almost together, with only a second in time difference between them. To the turn M. Ryan of the Irish-American A. C. headed the runners. The time credited to Gilbert for the course was 26:51.

The course over which the men ran was crowded with spectators. The men started from 180th Street and crossed to Boston Road, then to Pelham Road, to Williamsbridge Road, to the old Boston Post Road, to the Boulevard, and back to the clubhouse at 182d Street and Daly Avenue. The order of finish of the leaders follows:

Name and Club.	Time. M. S.

Nelson First in Long Run.

Owing to the junior cross-country championships being held at the Mohegan A. C. yesterday, in which many of the best hill-and-dale runners were anxious to measure strides, only a small field turned out for the weekly cross-country run of the Morningside A. C. About twenty men faced the starter, of which O. Nelson, West End A. C., led the way home with a comfortable margin, covering the course in 20:30. J. Roberts of the Harlem Evening High School was second, and B. Meyers third. The order of finish as follows:

O. Nelson, West End A. C.; J. Roberts, Harlem Evening High School; B. Meyers, Hartley House; G. Swan, Trinity A. C.; J. O'Dell, Lenox A. C.; W. Schmalix, Maplewood A. C.; F. Witlinger, Maplewood A. C.; M. Ball, Dominican Lyceum; J. Dewey, Trinity A. C.; J. Paton, Morningside A. C.; A. Nebil, Morningside A. C.; J. Tucker, Morningside A. C.; C. Peterson, Maplewood A. C.; T. Gallagher, Homestead A. C.; M. Metal, Eighth Regiment; E. Lavagy, Hartley House; C. Rosse, Morningside A. C.; J. Shokoff, unattached.

Course Record for Dietz.

C. Dietz, carrying the colors of the National A. C. yesterday, captured first place in the weekly cross-country run of the Queen's County A. C. and established a new record for the four-mile course. Dietz's time was 20 minutes, which is 45 seconds faster than the old mark made early in the season. He romped home in easy fashion, with a 25-second margin over H. Knipper of the Cooper A. C., who finished second. The order of finish: C. Dietz, National A. C.; H. Knipper, Cooper A. C.; E. Jeich, Queens County A. C.; T. Findly, Cooper A. C.; G. Staar, Cooper A. C.; S. Pinnell, Queens County A. C.; J. Williams, unattached; P. Donnelly, Y. M. C. A.; C. Dohn, Queens County A. C.; W. Dichant, Covert A. C., and J. Schultz, Loughlin Lyceum.

City Club A. C. Loses on Court.

In a one-sided but keenly contested game of basket ball the City Athletic Club quintet was defeated by the Criterion Club of Newark, N. J., by the score of 4 to 15 last night in the City Athletic Club's gymnasium, on West Fifty-fourth Street. A large number of handsomely gowned women were most enthusiastic spectators of the contest from the galleries overlooking the court.

WESTON IN MISSOURI.

Veteran Pedestrian Spends Quiet Day at Judge Newton's Home.

Special to The New York Times.

LA PLATA, Mo., March 27.—Edward P. Weston, the transcontinental walker, spent the day at the farm of Judge Newton, two miles east of La Plata. He retired early last night, and slept late this morning, declined an invitation to attend church with the Newton family.

Many persons from La Plata called on the veteran pedestrian this afternoon. He chatted pleasantly with them and told many incidents of his trip and of his recent walk from New York to the Pacific Coast. He says he is anxious to get through Missouri and Illinois, fearing another attack from the heat, having been overcome twice in one day near Lawrence, Kan., a week ago. He will leave here early to-morrow morning.

TAYLOR LEADS RUNNERS.

Creston A. C. Athletes Win Road Race in Fast Time.

B. Taylor of the Greston Athletic Club was the winner of the cross-country run of the Glencoe A. C., 126th Street and Second Avenue, yesterday, over a four-mile course. His time for the distance was 21:40. D. King of the Hudson Guild A. C. was second, a short distance away from his rival. At the start of the event R. Manning of the Brown Place A. C. headed the harriers, and maintained his advantage for two miles, when H. Jensen of the Glencoe A. C. took a turn at pacemaking. Shortly after the turn had been made Taylor went to the front, and was never headed. The order of finish:

B. Taylor, Creston A. C.; D. King, Hudson Guild A. C.; W. Burke, Union Settlement; P. Philips, Creston A. C.; H. Grabber, N. M. P. Club; A. Patterson, Hudson Guild A. C.; I. Shell, unattached; H. THE WEEK'S BOXING BOUTS.

Abe Attell and Owen Moran at the Fairmont the Feature Card.

This will be the biggest boxing week New York has had for some time. The local clubs have been able to make what look to be good matches, the principal ones of which will take place at the Fairmont Athletic Club on Friday night, when Abe Attell and Owen Moran go on for ten rounds, and as an appetizer for this event at the latter end of the week the Olympic has a bout to-night which points to a championship encounter. Charley Goldman is matched with Young Wagner in the star bout at the 125th Street club, and Goldman's manager, in the event of his charge winning from Wagner to-night, will go after Johnny Conlon.

The Marathon Athletic Club also has a show for to-night.

Billy Gibson of the Fairmonts will be a real host to-morrow night. He has arranged a fine card for those members who have paid their dues promptly, and each member will be allowed to have a guest with him. There will be no charge for seat reservations. The wind-up will be between Jack Dorman and Harry Stone, ten rounds.

Before opening his new club, the Navarre Athletic Club, at Grand Central Palace, Manager Buckley has decided to card one more show at the Sharkey Athletic Club Wednesday night. He has secured Paddy Sullivan to box Sammy Smith ten rounds in the final bout.

On Thursday night the Long Acre Athletic Club has two ten-round bouts scheduled for the weekly stag. In the first of the ten rounds Phil Cross will tackle Harry Phillips, while in the final contest Tommy Maloney of the Avonia Athletic Club will box Danny Goodman, an east side lightweight.

The National Sporting Club has arranged an excellent light heavyweight bout for the stag which takes place at the clubhouse on Monday night, April 4. Jim Savage of Jersey City will battle with Porky Flynn of Boston, which will be the main bout.

W. J. CONNERS BUYS ONETA.

George W. Elkins Sells Big Steam Yacht to Buffalo Politician.

An indication of the promising outlook for the coming yachting season is the large number of transfers which have taken place during the past Winter and which are becoming still more numerous with the advance of Spring. Gielow & Orr report business brisker than that even of last year. The following sales have recently been made by them:

Steam yacht Oneta, George W. Elkins to William J. Conners. Oneta was originally Marietta III. She is 173 feet over all, and was built for Harrison B. Moore, formerly Commodore of the Atlantic Yacht Club.

Reo Four Cylinder $1250

Fifty Miles an Hour

p and Mezger Automatic Windshield extra)

You may not want fifty-miles-an-hour speed, but, on the hills, you want the power that this speed implies.

You don't want this speed produced by mere bigness of motor, which means extra weight all over the car, and therefore big tire-expense and all the other costs that weight brings.

You want motoring value. And that is what you get in the high-class but low-price Reo.

TOWN CAR

THE demand for a lighter car, which is especially adapted to city and suburban use, is admirably met in the new Peerless Town Car. While retaining all the luxurious appointments which have given such distinction to the Peerless cars, this new model is designed for less strenuous service, where modified power, lighter construction, shorter wheel base, and left-hand drive, are points of convenience and desirability.

This new car may now be seen at our Salesrooms. We are prepared to accept a limited number of orders for immediate delivery.

Many people have an erroneous impression of a "liquor cure." They fear a "hospital," with burly attendants, isolation, possible rough handling, and unpleasant notoriety. They find here, instead, comfortable surroundings, trained nursing, expert medical attention, and the same privacy they would have in their own homes. They can, if they wish, keep in constant personal touch with friends or business. A call at our Institute will verify these statements and involve for the inquirer no obligation and no publicity.

PEACE WITH CANADA.

The country will receive with great relief the news that a settlement of the tariff dispute with Canada has been practically assured. Whatever may be the terms which will be announced on Wednesday, the fact of an agreement is the main thing.

The significance of that fact lies in the working of the coercive feature of the Aldrich tariff scheme, the maximum tariff. The avowed intention of the framers of the tariff was that this feature should enable the United States to force other countries to give to us, under threat, the concessions which were granted in other cases only in return for equivalent advantages. With the European Governments this plan worked fairly successfully, because they sell to us more than they buy, and because what they buy of us is chiefly either food or raw materials of manufacture. With Canada the exact reverse is true. She buys more than she sells, and it is we who take food and materials from her. It was found, therefore, that coercion in her case would be costly. In addition the disastrous effect of a tariff war on our business was plainly a political matter which the Administration could not ignore. Hence the peace. We shall await with interest the details of the settlement.

WASTED "EDUCATION."

Our correspondent, Mr. ROBERT P. GREEN, whose letter regarding waste in education was published in THE TIMES of Sunday, has a very sound idea of his subject, though he is unduly bitter and essentially unjust toward the educators responsible in part for the present system. We think that it is a fair proposition in regard to schooling at the general expense that it should be made as good as possible for the great mass who can and will take it, and that public money should be spent on nothing further until the mass have been provided with the very best attainable. In practice this would mean that children below the age of about 14 should receive the most thorough and suitable and adequate schooling by the best instructors, in small classes, before public money was devoted to the so-called "high" schools and to the "superior" institutions, with the exception of schools for teachers confined to those who are actually to enter the public schools.

Mr. GREEN's suggestion is in the line of this proposition. He would limit promotion from one grade to another to those who attained a rank of ninety in the earlier grade, with a signed pledge, on passing to the High School, that they would finish the course, subject, it is to be inferred, to the same condition as to promotion from the various grades of the High School. Undoubtedly this would very greatly reduce the numbers above the elementary grades, and would tend to the acquisition of the "splendid lesson of thoroughness" in those grades. Both results would be an immense gain over the present system, which crowds all the upper grades with a mass of half prepared pupils to a great extent unable to make any profitable use of the opportunities supplied to them at enormous cost to the community.

But it is clearly to be kept in mind that the present system is not merely grossly wasteful of the money of the taxpayers, but is grossly unjust and extortionate to the large majority of pupils and parents in the community, robbing them of what they are entitled to have from their contribution to the common fund, and compelling them to pay heavily for privileges to others which they cannot possibly enjoy for themselves. To remedy this crying evil not only should the money now devoted to the education of a small minority be saved but it should be expended on the best possible schooling for the majority. The whole top-heavy arrangement that now prevails should be reversed. The best teachers, the best schoolhouses, and the very best course of study should be provided in the elementary grades. The popular delusion that a higher sort of talent and training is required for the teaching of pupils over 14 than for those under that age should be banished from the minds of educators. The best pay and the highest rank should be reserved for those who can show the best results as teachers of the younger children. And the prime step in such a change would be the provision of teachers enough to allow for small classes of these children, classes small enough to enable a teacher carefully, intelligently, and with sympathy to study the peculiarities of each pupil and to develop to the utmost the mind of each.

The more active minded among our educators appreciate this need already. The other day the Principal of one of our High Schools went over to Boston and in a brilliant and sound address arraigned the present utter neglect of the individual characteristics of pupils and the slavish adherence to the requirements of a cast-iron system based on the feverish ambition for "promotion." This general tendency has arisen from the effort to deal with a great mass of pupils wrong end foremost. The aim has been the "higher" grades when it should have been the perfection of the elementary or so-called "lower" grades. All the incentives and rewards of the system are in the higher grades, and teachers and pupils alike are hurried by every possible device away from the elementary, where the need for good work and good teachers is incomparably greater. The inevitable result is that pupils are badly taught at first and immense waste in money, in teaching, and in the work of pupils takes place at the end. Those whose need is the greatest and whose contribution, in proportion to their means, is far the greatest are doubly cheated.

EXECUTIVE LAWMAKING.

Why should Mr. WICKERSHAM draft laws for Congress to act upon?

On the face of it this does not seem to be a very important query. The answer of the President and his friends would probably be: "Why shouldn't he?" But that really is only dodging the substance of the original question, which involves not only the traditional but the practical relations of the executive to the legislative branch of the Government. The practice of submitting the recommendations of the President to Congress in the form of a specific bill is an almost complete innovation from which even Mr. ROOSEVELT shrank, and which he, in several instances, criticised—and refused to adopt. In this, we think, he was wise. The new practice is not an improvement, and it is accompanied with some very grave risks and inconveniences to which we should think that minds like those of the President and his Attorney General would be sensitive.

Every one acknowledges that legislation, lawmaking, is a function of Congress. The Attorney General has no assigned function whatever in the process. The President has only an indirect function. He may recommend and he may veto. But the fact that he may veto—that he may compel a reconsideration, and that a two-thirds vote is needed to overcome his objections—is a plain and a strong reason why he should confine himself to recommendation and should not become an originator and author of a specific measure. The veto is the act of a critic, a judge. Every measure passed by Congress must, in principle, be examined by the President critically and judicially. That is his specific and unavoidable duty. Obviously he cannot fairly and impartially judge and criticise his own work, or work done under his immediate direction by a member of his official family. He has no right to commit himself to a particular form of enactment, to breed in his mind the prejudices and predilections of parenthood. He is bound to keep his judgment as sound and independent as possible. How can he do that when he is passing on "his" bill? The very statement of the case involves an incongruity amounting to absurdity.

Again, a practice of this sort affects harmfully the working of the collective mind of the Congress. Under the older and better system Congress took a recommendation of the President, investigated the matter in committee, considered and debated it as a body, and sent the result of its labors to him to be weighed duly and approved, or, if not approved, returned with a criticism of its defects or faults, and in the latter case proceeded again to study the matter in the light of this criticism, and to act finally upon it. Now if not a recommendation but a complete bill is sent to Congress, the necessary and inevitable tendency is to take or reject it practically as a whole. Members are in effect notified in advance what is likely to be vetoed by the President. Their work of origination, of planning, of developing a measure by the operation of their own minds, after study and discussion, in the light of their several judgments and their knowledge of the needs and wishes of the people, is directly interfered with. Now that work is the very essence of representative government. It is what representative government is for. "It is not, and it cannot come to, good" that it should be confused, obscured, balked, and defeated by the interference of the Executive, traveling out of his own field of duty and power, prerogative and responsibility.

There is no lack of evidence as to how this innovation works. The Senate of the United States for the past week has presented a spectacle, that would be ludicrous if it were not humiliating, illustrating the matter. For days the leaders of the majority sat silent under definite and destructive criticism of a measure nominally their own, but really drawn by the President's direction, neither trying to explain it nor able to defend it, and cynically relying on what Mr. DISRAELI used to call a "brute vote" to carry it. When they were at last goaded to some apology of the bill, it was found that the Senator who reported it did not know its provisions and did not even know what his own report had said in regard to its provisions. Moreover in the talk that cannot be dignified by the name of debate the leader of the Senate used one apparently decisive argument which throws a flood of light on the whole business, and was expected to quiet all opposition: "I have seen the President since you did!"

We have said, and we repeat it with sincere respect for the President, that this spectacle was humiliating. Granting all that is pleaded as to the purity of Mr. TAFT's motives, we submit that here is a sophistication and perversion of the methods and a defeat of the aims of representative government which is fraught with grave risks and is in itself little less than scandalous. It is the logical result of the modern theory and invention of Presidential "policies" of that meddling and muddling in the affairs of the country that already has been costly and, if not checked, is bound to be still more so.

MR. MERRITT'S REPLY.

With beautiful candor Mr. EDWIN A. MERRITT, Jr., Republican leader of the Assembly, admits in his letter to THE TIMES, printed elsewhere, that he urges his amendment to the Wild Forest Lands provision of the Constitution in his own private interest, in behalf of the industries of his home county, and, through them, in "the great public interest." He is "ready to accept any proposition which fairly considers the interests of the people of" St. Lawrence County. In this and in a preceding letter he has told the readers of THE TIMES what he wants and what he will do. He now asks, "What does THE NEW YORK TIMES want, and what will THE NEW YORK TIMES do, and for whom?"

We want safeguarded the park lands belonging to eight millions of people, of whom Mr. MERRITT and the men who control the industries of St. Lawrence County are not a majority. The people of the whole State seek no compromise or concession in this matter which deeply concerns Mr. MERRITT. The record of the past fifteen years shows conclusively that they are quite content to keep as it stands the ironclad, impregnable provision which they put into the Constitution, expressly to deprive the Legislature of all discretion with respect to the Forest Preserve. Experience has taught them that such discretion is not properly exercised by the Legislature under the pressure of powerful and selfish interests. Of course, they will never grant to any State officer a discretion they have denied to the Legislature, and they will grant nothing in general terms. If an exception is asked to their ironclad rule it must be definite, specific, detailed—even then they may act with reluctance.

Three out of five provisions in Mr. MERRITT's amendment, those which permit the leasing of camp sites within the Forest Preserve, the disposal of dead and down timber, and the sale of State lands, confer discretion upon State officials. The second provision, permitting construction of roadways, would validate laws to rip up the forest cover from end to end over "an area as large as the State of Massachusetts." In time roads innumerable might extend through the choicest growths, of widths to satisfy the most rapacious consumers of "dead and down" timber.

The remaining provision relates to water storage within the "blue line." The State Water Supply Commission reports that it can supply the precise specifications which Mr. MERRITT lacks, of dams and reservoirs necessary to be erected within the Forest Preserve. If he will immediately proceed to draw a bill embodying the Commission's plans, the people may consent to its being enacted and made valid by subsequent amendment of Article VII., Section 7, of the Constitution.

The explanation by Gov. BROWN of Georgia of his attitude toward Commander PEARY is perfectly clear and satisfying. The explorer found in the highest latitudes precisely those meteorological conditions that were previously believed, on good evidence, to exist there. Gov. BROWN's doubt of PEARY's achievement does not include BARTLETT, and BARTLETT parted with his superior in latitude 88. PEARY's account of his further progress northward, with the "negro," Gov. BROWN refuses to believe. If PEARY had found within those two remaining degrees of latitude a tropical island full of flowers and singing birds Gov. BROWN would have been satisfied with his story. This, so far as we can comprehend it, is the logic of Gov. BROWN's position.

The speculation in rubber has now reached dangerous proportions in England. The price of golf balls has been increased to half a crown—62½ cents—each.

> It does not seem to be generally known that the Speaker of the House of Representatives need not be a member of that body.—The Sun.

The Constitution, to be sure, provides simply that the House shall choose its own Speaker and other officers, but the Speaker has always been a member of Congress and entitled to vote on all questions. It is true that the Speaker of the British House of Commons need not be a member of the dominant party, but he must be an elected member of the House. To elect a Speaker of our House of Representatives from outside its membership would require a political revolution of mightier force than any now in sight.

To-day the opponents of the plan to build a new Court House in City Hall Park will have their hearing. They are ready for it, with unanswerable arguments, and a large majority of the population is in sympathy with them. There is not a word to say in favor of the park site except that money need not be paid for the land. In the end it would be the most expensive site that could be chosen.

> New England is always at the pie counter.—Florida Times Union.

Just because Senator GALLINGER thinks the Federal Government has as much authority to remove the rocks from New Hampshire pastures as to drain the water from Florida fields. Our Jacksonville contemporary does not believe in paternalism either.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The Mayor Makes a Mistake. Mayor GAYNOR is quoted in what seems to have been an authorized expression of his opinions by a friend as declaring that those who criticised him during the campaign are now praising him, not in surprise, but in disappointment. This is a hard saying, and we fear that it will not be heard with patience by all at whom it is directed. It is not a gracious, a generous, a charitable statement, and, what is worse, it is not true.

In the weeks that preceded his election the Mayor was, indeed, criticised, and severely, by many people, and by not a few gloomy prophecies were made as to the kind of administration he would give the city. The experience was doubtless painful to him, but it differed in no marked respect from that through which all candidates for high political office have to pass, and Mr. GAYNOR's past and present sensitiveness to criticism of his own conduct and character has never been, and is not now, accompanied and rendered consistent by a notable leniency and caution on his part in passing judgment on others—as is well illustrated by the words which are the subject of these remarks. He, at least as much as the rest of us, is inclined to express his opinions of his neighbors and contemporaries with frankness and vigor, and, again like the rest of us, he has occasionally mistaken what he thought for what he knew. He is not the less honest on that account, nor need he in consequence of it be charged with disappointment when, as has presumably happened now and again, he has discovered that a man was better than he had hoped or not as bad as he had feared.

His intimation that there are in this city many who regret that he is making a good Mayor, just because they once had and voiced a different expectation, is, we feel sure, without justification in fact. The rejoicing over his prompt display of energy, efficiency, and courage in the attacking of old abuses and the establishment of improved methods for managing civic affairs, is as sincere as it is general. Speaking with certainty for ourselves and with confidence for the vast majority of his fellow-citizens, we can tell him that he was criticised for public, not personal, reasons, and that he is now praised in the same way.

Either Is Bad Enough. With equal courtesy and modesty, Sir ERNEST SHACKLETON, when questioned as to the comparative difficulties of attaining the north and the south pole, described them as different, but about equal. Hard as is the road over the arctic floes, however, it does seem as if that across the great antarctic plateau were on the whole harder.

The advantages of traveling on land are not particularly great when the land is covered hundreds of feet deep with ice by no means smooth or motionless, and, while arctic travel is done at sea level, that in the southern continent must be performed at the height of 9,000 or 10,000 feet, at which elevation, of course, the cold is more severe and the winds more violent.

In the arctic, too, there is a Summer of a sort, and explorers at that end of the earth report days and even weeks of what can be called good weather. At the opposite extremity, fierce storms seem to be incessant, and the temperature always close to intolerably low. Animal life, both land and marine, is abundant at the north, while in the south it is confined to a narrow strip of beach. That tells the whole story, or much of it.

EMPLOYERS' EXTRAVAGANCE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The ingenuousness of an "Employer of Servants" is amusing, though his letter might, as he says of another, be amazing were it not so typical of the employers' common complaint.

Perhaps, however, no complaint was intended in this instance; perhaps a comparison was merely aimed at of the fickle parlor maid with the constant stenographer.

But, either way, does "Employer of Servants" appreciate the inconsistency of his attitude on the subject? Does he realize how he and others who can afford to pay have supinely acceded to the demands of domestic "help" rather than be discommoded in their enjoyment of home comforts, until they have created for themselves the unpleasant necessity of boarding a force of half willing assistants in the proportion of about eight to four of family? And does he perceive that the secret of the advantage he enjoys at his office lies only in an overstocked, because popular, line of work—a condition that compels a certain young woman to express herself as "perfectly satisfied with her job of ten hours a day at $20 a week on the knowledge that she cannot 'better herself.'"

"The One Who Pays the Bills" may not be responsible for the latter condition, but he and his kind undoubtedly are for the first, through pampering themselves at home in a way that has taught the servant class what can be extracted from the fruit of human selfishness. E.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have seen no mention made of Tennyson's prophetic utterances regarding aerial warships in action, and the resultant effects, namely, the end of war. This quotation from "Locksley Hall" is of interest:

For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see,
Saw the vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be;

Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies
of magic sails,
Pilots of the purple twilight dropping down with costly bales;

Heard the heavens fill with shouting, and there
rain'd a ghastly dew
From the nations' airy navies grappling in the central blue;

Far along the worldwide whisper of the south-
wind rushing warm,
With the standards of the peoples plunging
thro' the thunder storm;

Till the war drum throbb'd no longer, and the battle flags were furl'd
In the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world.

There the common sense of most shall hold a fretful realm in awe,
universal law. CHARLES D. LAKEY.

THE PERSONAL TAX.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the letter against the abolition of the personal property tax your correspondent, Samuel Strasbourger, says: "I think the statement is incontrovertible that any one who desires to live in the State of New York at the present time or do business therein avoids actual residence by reason of the tax laws," although he agrees that a good many claim legal residence elsewhere.

How many persons doing business in New York have been driven to maintain an actual residence in New Jersey in order to escape excessive personal property taxes in this city cannot be stated accurately, but there is every reason to believe that the number is large. That many industries have been driven to leave the State for this reason is too well known to need further demonstration. In 1893 the Hon. Michael Coleman, for twenty years Deputy and Commissioner of Taxes of this city, testified before a joint committee of the Senate and Assembly that:

> In 1869, along the easterly and westerly slopes, there were large factories employing at one time a hundred thousand skilled workmen. The first case that came up was the Singer Sewing Machine Company. For three years it conferred with the department as to what its taxes would be. Finally it moved to New Jersey, and from that time up to the present others have been going almost every year, and to-day there is only one large establishment that was here at one time, and that is Hoe's establishment!

That this tendency still continues is shown by the great increase in manufacturing in the adjoining counties in New Jersey, as compared with the percentage of increase in the outlying boroughs of this city.

I know of two cases where lofts will be vacant as soon as the leases expire because the firms now occupying them have decided that owing to personal property taxes it would be cheaper for them merely to maintain an office here and have all of their goods shipped from the factory in another State.

So far as individuals are concerned it may be of interest to note that in our recent canvass of representative citizens we received replies from owners of real estate aggregating over $16,000,000 in value, all of whom favored abolishing the personal property tax, although they do not pay any of this tax themselves. Out of this number the owners of at least $1,500,000 actually reside outside of this city. From the replies received I select two as bearing upon this point.

One owner, who pays nearly $1,000 on real estate in this city, writes:

> I am obliged to live out of the city to avoid personal property taxation as Trustee for two widows and three orphans, whose property is too small to spare personal property taxes out of their incomes.

Another writes:

> I pay over $2,000 real estate tax, but no personal, as I own bonds and mortgages. Am willing to pay extra taxes on $150,000 or $200,000 real estate to abolish the infamous, unjust, cruel, personal tax. Millions of dollars are lost to the city yearly by thousands who elect to live out of the city.
> If I had to pay personal tax I'd leave at once, the same as my mercantile and other friends do.

Even though a good many persons may have a residence both in this city and elsewhere, in the long run the effect of forcing them to claim a legal residence in another State is to change the centre of their personal and domestic interests away from this city, which will often be the deciding factor in leading them to turn their country residence into the main place of abode and to spend only a few weeks of the season in an apartment hotel in this city.

Apart from the question as to the direct effect of the personal property tax, it should be added that personal property is now paying a large part of the State taxes through the corporation, inheritance, stock transfer, and other taxes, and that the special tax on bank shares alone in this city, which used to be taxed as personal property, is almost equal to the remnant of the personal property tax. Real estate has been relieved of State direct taxes, and this relief amounts to a great deal more than the slight addition to the local tax rate that would result from abolishing the remnant of the personal property tax.

A TRIPLE MURDERER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The dispatch in yesterday's issue of THE TIMES from South Carolina, telling of the release of the noted Edgefield murderer Jones, recalls to mind an incident that happened early in the year 1886.

I was then connected with a newspaper in the neighboring county of Aiken and never having visited Edgefield I took advantage of a Sunday school picnic excursion to do so. Being a stranger to most of the picnickers I started off alone to see the sights of Edgefield. After wandering over the old burying ground I explored the County Court House. Then noticing the high brick wall surrounding the jail, and remembering that the triple murderer Jones was confined there after having had three mistrials, I went to the gate and pulled the bell.

A white man with a ring of keys on his arm came and opened the gate and readily granted my request to visit the interior of the jail. He had a smooth, pleasant face, and his hair was somewhat gray. He took me upstairs and showed me around, pointing out places where prisoners had broken out of their cells and escaped. The cells were old-fashioned and contained but few prisoners, there having been a term of court held recently.

My guide talked constantly, but, being slightly hard of hearing, I did not catch all he said. Finally I said to him, "By the way, where is Jones, the triple murderer?"

He gave me a surprised look and answered, quietly, "I am Mr. Jones." He then showed me the different cells he had occupied during his imprisonment, and, learning that I was connected with a newspaper, he said he would like to tell me his side of the story, as he felt that he was not receiving justice from the local papers.

I did not see the Sheriff (who is responsible for the safety of the prisoners) nor the jailer; indeed, I gained the impression that Jones was acting as jailer, for he had all the keys and was the only man at large on the premises.

A Juror's Hardship.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was summoned as a juror in the Criminal Court for the month of February, which happens to be the height of my busy season. I attended court the first day I was called upon, and remained there all day, vainly endeavoring to get an audience with the Judge, so as to explain my position and ask to be excused. In most courts it is customary for the Judge to give particular attention on the opening of court to listen to the bona fide excuses of summoned jurors and decide upon the merits of such cases. But even though I tried to get the ear of the Court through the medium of the Clerk, that functionary unceremoniously waived my petition and would not listen.

The next day I kept a most important engagement, failure to keep which would have entailed heavy financial loss to me personally. It was with a merchant from the Pacific Coast, whose visit to New York was limited to that day. On the morning of the third day I received a notice from the court to the effect that the Judge had fined me $100 for not attending the day before. I went to court that day in pursuance of my duty as a juror and to explain my absence the previous day, but I was again waived off by the Clerk of the court, who told me to remain there and not dare leave the building. Afterward the Judge read me a homily, in which he confirmed the fine and threatened a similar one for every day I absented myself from court. This, too, without listening to my excuse at all!

The injustice of this punishment was so apparent to my business friends that several of them sent a signed petition asking the Judge kindly to remit the fine, and explaining fully the position I had been in with regard to my business. The Judge's views of politeness would not permit him to acknowledge this petition in any way, nor the letters of other friends who subsequently endeavored to put my case before him in its proper light.

SUFFRAGE AND CHIVALRY.

Does Not Think They Have Any Causal Connection.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A lady who lately had to stand in a car in New York City ascribes the fact to "suffragism." Gen. Irving Hale of Denver was asked whether women were treated with less chivalry in consequence of having the ballot. He answered: "No. Greater courtesy is shown a woman in Western than in Eastern cities." Did not Gov. Shafroth tell us that he had watched to see whether women were allowed to stand less often or more often at the East than in Colorado, and that he found the probability of a woman being offered a seat in Denver was 200 to 1, as compared with New York or Washington?

A man offers a woman his seat because she is presumably not so well able to stand as he. On the same principle a young man of the right sort offers his seat to an old man, although the old man has a vote as well as himself; but he does not think of offering it to a sturdy boy of 18, though the boy cannot vote any more than the lady. The question of suffrage has nothing to do with it.

Justice would be worth more to women than chivalry, if they could not have both. A working girl put the case in a nutshell when she said: "I would gladly stand for twenty minutes in the street car going home at night if in that way I could get the same pay that a man would have had for doing my day's work."

But justice and chivalry are by no means incompatible. The proof is that in America women have more nearly equal rights with men before the law than in most foreign countries, and yet American men are noted for their chivalry.

THE MERCY CAMPAIGN.

Two Suffragette Sisters Define Its Scope and Purpose.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We are repeatedly being asked (both my sister and myself) whether we are going to fight in the Third Assembly District for the defeat of Mr. Oliver in the next campaign. Our answer is now made through the public press to all who are interested.

We are going to fight the re-election of Mr. Oliver, not on the ground of his personal insulting remarks, but on the ground that he is not a true representative of his constituents—that, indeed, he is a tool of his political bosses and therefore is indifferent and hostile to the welfare of his community.

We suffragists stand uncompromisingly, for decent government and not for "saloon bossism," and if Mr. Oliver does not represent the people, we say down with him, no matter what his inclination toward our particular question may be. We are patriotic first and last, in contradistinction to the anti-suffragists, who are traitors pure and simple.

It may be a little unjust to make poor old Mr. Oliver the scapegoat of our corrupt Legislature. Nor do we intend to stop exposing him—we mean to fight this horribly corrupt system of ours until it is replaced by equity and fairness and humaneness.

In view of the exposures going on at Albany we women are vaguely wondering what the men voters are going to do. It seems that the men of this State have lost—dare I say?—their very manhood; they stand supinely by and grin sheepishly.

Perhaps the suffragette can arouse some sort of enthusiasm and rekindle the spark of manhood. Let us hope so. Yours for truth and freedom. DR. ANNA MERCY.

Two Doctors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On your question, "What Are Mr. Taft's Policies?" it strikes me that Mr. Taft and his predecessor might be likened to a couple of physicians in successive attendance upon a sick man; both settled upon a theory of the efficacy of medicine as opposed to a more natural method of treatment.

In that respect both are similar, but in point of temperament both are quite dissimilar. Dr. Roosevelt, of a radical "kill-or-cure" turn of mind, takes the case, and rings the changes of the pharmacopoeia upon it.

Then comes Dr. Taft, of benignant impulse—typical of the family practitioner—who, with friendly smile and expansive warmth of presence, strives to cheer the invalid in his extremity. But the ailment has progressed far, and as Dr. Taft is wedded to his prescriptions as faithfully as was Dr. Roosevelt—though perhaps with less of self-assurance—a favorable outcome for the patient is doubtful.

Oh, for the light and air of heaven in the sickchamber—a cooling application on the fevered brow; the banishment of that ominous row of bottles!

Poor sick man! E.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial likening Taft to Buchanan reminds one of Moncure D. Conway's application of Edgar Lear's "Nonsense Verse" to Buchanan's well-known definiteness of decision:

There was a man who said how Can I escape from this terrible cow.
I shall sit on the stile,
And continue to smile,
Which may soften the heart of the cow.

It looks as though, while Taft has been furnishing the smile, the firm of Aldrich, Cannon & Co. have been giving the public the laugh. B. T.

"Entirely Wrong."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your paper is entirely wrong in its attitude on the Court House site in City Hall Park. City Hall Park is the ideal place for the Court House. Parks should be put to some use. There are too many of them in and around New York City.

New York made a big mistake in not building the College of the City of New York in Central Park, and so put to use one or two of the hundreds of acres of land which are going to waste there.

People who cry, "Save the parks; give us more parks and playgrounds," &c., are usually persons who are suffering from a slight attack of softening of the brain, or from old-womanish sentimentalism. Their cry should not be heeded. They are in the same class with persons who cling to sailing vessels, candles, &c.

The proper place for the Court House is City Hall Park, and all practical business men and taxpayers agree it should be built there.

T. R. BEFORE THE SPHINX.

O Sphinx,
Methinks
As here I stand
And contemplate
Thy silent state—
A silence so profound
That sound, all sound,
Drops dead before thy face,
And in the noiseless space
About thee like a cloud
Hangs nothing loud—
I say, O Sphinx,
Methinks,
As here I stand
Upon this shifting sand
And hear no voice like mine
From those dried lips of thine,
Nor has man ever heard
One word
From thee—
I say, O Sphinx,
By jinks,
You ain't a bit like Me,
Are you?
(And the Sphinx goes on sphinxing.)

LEADER MERRITT'S STATE FOREST PLANS

Says He Cannot Supply Maps and Specifications of Things He Wants Done.

BUT TRUSTS LEGISLATURE

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reference to the proposed Constitutional amendment to permit the use of State land for storage reservoirs, you have asked me "What does Mr. Merritt want?" and I gave you as clear a reply as I was able to. Again you ask "What will Mr. Merritt do?" May I ask in return, What does THE NEW YORK TIMES want, and what will THE NEW YORK TIMES do, and for whom?

I have always admitted a personal interest in water storage, and I have also had the interest of the section of the State from which I come in view. My constituents are deeply interested in the subject. The developments already made employ a great deal of labor and capital, offer a market for agricultural products, and pay a large part of the taxes of St. Lawrence County. Everything that helps build up the industries of our county is felt by our people to be of great public interest and importance; so, while I have an interest of my own, I am working, I believe, very much more in the interest of my constituents than in my own.

I know that Mr. Frank S. Gardner has been interested and active on behalf of the article of the Constitution which I desire to see amended. Numerous other gentlemen, members of the last Constitutional Convention—former Senator Brown, Mr. McClure, the late John G. McIntyre, and many others—might be named, who took a deep interest in this provision. It was, I suppose, the work of no one man. I am not criticising it as of the year when it was passed. It was a proper amendment then; but the times have changed. Personally I favor such an amendment to the Constitution as will lend some elasticity to this provision, and am willing to trust future Legislatures and those interested in the subject of forest preservation to present from time to time the specific propositions.

I do not believe in direct legislation. This is substantially what the suggestion in your editorial provides for, i. e., it provides for the passage of legislation at this time accurately and exactly defining whatever is to be done in the future, and the inclusion of those laws by reference in the proposed Constitutional amendment. I am not certain that we know all about what should be done ten years from now. I am willing to concede to Mr. Gardner and to others who take his view, any superiority of knowledge, judgment or purpose which they think they ought to claim; and if they will present measures to which I can now assent, I will agree to their plan. Let me suggest, however, that the amount of information necessary to do what is indicated in your editorial article is not now in the possession of anybody. You ask:

> In the bill for water storage will Mr. Merritt designate the dams and reservoirs necessary to be erected within the Forest Preserve; their exact location; upon what streams; with what "flow lines," and how many acres each will cover, together with restrictions as to the total area flooded?
> In the bill providing roads, will Mr. Merritt say how many roads it is proposed to build through State lands, presenting a plan of their routes, specifications, widths—the widths not merely of the roadbeds, but of the extent of forest to be cut on either side?

In order to have such information as would permit the drafting of laws to the exactness called for, some years would have to be employed by engineers in field and office work for the preparation of the details suggested. Some sites for reservoirs are accurately mapped; some can be generally indicated; some have not been thought of.

In the matter of roads, which is not so important because the rivers and lakes are in some sense highways, it cannot be that you seriously ask to present a plan of routes, specifications, and widths—the widths not merely of roadways, but of the extent of forest to be cut on either side—over an area as large as the State of Massachusetts, through which there are now only a few roads of any sort, and these, such as they are, have been located almost absolutely with reference to the necessities of the lumber business and with no consideration whatever to what I have in mind, which is the opening up to the people of the State of this forest area and the presentation of its beauties and charms, not only to our citizens, but to the world. Certainly some objection has been made on the ground that highways and the presence of visitors might tend to increase the fire risk; but, on the other hand, it is believed that the construction of the highways, giving such additional facilities for access to the territories liable to be devastated by fires, more than offsets any possible risk.

In conclusion, let me say that I am ready to accept any proposition which fairly considers the interests of the people who live in the part of our State to which this amended constitutional provision especially applies. After many years of consideration of this matter, I fully accord to those who have opposed my ideas credit for entire sincerity. I have hoped to receive equal consideration; and if there is anything I can say or do more than I have said or done to impress that idea, I would be very glad to have it suggested, and I will immediately proceed to do it.

TO RESTORE CITY HALL PARK.

New Court House Protest Asks That Present Court Buildings Be Removed.

Prominent organizations and citizens, including the Bar Association, C. Grant La Farge, President of the Architectural League; William I. Evans, President of the National Arts Club; Charles H. Strong, President of the City Club; Senator Root, Otto T. Bannard, Jacob H. Schiff, John D. Crimmins, Robert C. Ogden, and others, will submit a protest to the Court House Board at its hearing to-day against the erection of the proposed County Court House in the City Hall Park.

The protest asks "not only that no further encroachment upon the City Hall Park be permitted but that the present City and County Court House be removed and the park restored to its original uses."

A Tea to Help Crippled Children.

A tea will be held on Saturday afternoon, April 2, at 15 West Twenty-eighth Street, by the Junior Workers, for the benefit of the crippled children of the East Side Training School.

NAZIMOVA THEATRE WILL OPEN APRIL 4

"LITTLE EYOLF" FIRST BILL

Exterior of the Building Is in the Italian Renaissance, the Interior Decorations in the Style of Louis XVI.

New York's newest playhouse, Nazimova's Thirty-ninth Street Theatre, is practically completed, and will be opened on April 4 with Mme. Nazimova in "Little Eyolf." It is one of the smallest houses in the city, and will be devoted to plays of the intimate type, under the direction of the Shuberts. It is 59 feet wide and 90 feet in depth, and will have a total seating capacity of 675. The stage is 26 feet deep, and the proscenium opening 30 feet wide and 30 feet high.

The exterior of the building is in Italian Renaissance, designed so that the front, to a height of 40 feet, has a theatrical effect, while the four upper stories are designed for the proper lighting and ventilation of studios which will occupy the space above the front part of the theatre. The sidewalk is covered by an ornamental canopy the width of the building.

The gallery and office entrance of the building is on the east side of the main vestibule, and the balcony entrance is on the west side. The vestibule, which opens directly into the foyer, is 15 by 25 feet, with walls and floor finished in foreign marbles. The ceiling is in ornamental plaster panels, decorated in gold. An electric elevator runs to the balcony and gallery floors.

The interior decorations are in Louis XVI. style, with ornamentations in plaster relief work. The color scheme is old rose, with antique gold bronze decorations. In the wall panels there are three-light, dull gold electric fixtures with candle effects and silk shades. The main ceiling has four gold sunbursts, each containing 50 lights. The other lights are concealed.

In addition to the main door there are fourteen exits to the side courts and street, making it possible to empty the theatre in less than a minute. For heating and ventilation fresh air will be brought into the basement of the building through muslin screens, and then, after heating, passed to the auditorium by the fan system and carried out through the ceiling.

The stage fly galleries are 30 feet high on each side, and there is also a rigging loft 65 feet above the stage floor. On each side of the proscenium opening are the star dressing rooms, and on the west side of the stage are four tiers of other dressing rooms. The basement, in addition to the men's and women's rooms, has a coat room a large rehearsal room, a musicians' room, and offices for the electrician and the stage manager. As an additional safeguard against fire, the building is equipped with automatic sprinkler system.

The studios in the front of the building are finished in antique oak, with high wainscoting. Lee and J. J. Shubert will have their private offices here. The architect was William Albert Swasey, who has designed a number of Shubert theatres. The house was built by John McKeefry, builder of Maxine Elliott's Theatre.

FUND BENEFIT POSTPONED.

Sothern-Marlowe Performance Set for June 6 to Close Academy.

Sothern and Marlowe have postponed their special performance for the benefit of the Actors' Fund, scheduled for next Thursday afternoon, to Monday, June 6, making this the closing date of the dramatic life of the Academy. "The Taming of the Shrew" will be the play given, and when the performance is over the historic playhouse will be devoted to motion pictures.

It was the wish of Mr. Van Dusen, for so long house manager at the Academy, that the last day of the old régime be marked by the performance of a classical play, and Mr. Sothern, Miss Marlowe, and Lee Shubert were glad to accede to his wishes.

Sothern and Marlowe will end their regular season in Toronto on June 4 and return to New York with their company for the benefit. There probably will be features added to the performance, in the nature of a farewell for the theatre.

METROPOLITAN TOUR STARTS.

One Branch of the Opera Company Goes to Boston.

One branch of the Metropolitan Opera Company starts on its travels to-day, opening to-night in Boston in "Aïda," at the Boston Opera House, while another branch of the company will sing in New York. Seven day coaches and as many baggage cars left for Boston yesterday.

Thursday and Friday the company will not play in Boston, but will be brought to New York as performances will be given simultaneously at the Metropolitan Opera House and The New Theatre. Next Sunday, after the Saturday night performance of "Die Meistersinger" in Boston, the Boston branch of the company will start for Chicago.

Others of the company, who are in New York, will start to Chicago at the same time. A large branch of the company will leave for Baltimore, and for a time two companies will be touring the country simultaneously. Max Hirsch will be in charge of the details of this road tour.

Oscar Hammerstein's company also opens in Boston to-morrow night with "Elektra." That impresario has shortened his Boston stay to one week, as he found that the people of Boston had decided to patronize the Metropolitan company in the week it was there and his company the week after. Now they must choose between the two.

"The Girl in Waiting" Opens April 11.

Cohan & Harris have announced the opening on April 11, in Hartford, Conn., of J. Hartley Manners's four-act comedy, "The Girl in Waiting." Lanette Taylor will head the company, that will include A. H. Van Buren, Arthur Lewis, Mervin Abbott, Alice Gale, May Neogh, Wallace Erskine, Herbert Budd, Frederick Powell, Galway Herbert, and Ada Gilman.

Fritzi Scheff Resumes Her Role.

Fritzi Scheff, who was obliged to suspend her tour in Charles Dillingham's production of "Mlle. Modiste" several weeks ago on account of illness, started yesterday for Pittsburg to reappear in the operetta. Miss Scheff has entirely recovered from her nervous breakdown, and her physicians say that she is in better health than she has been for several seasons. Next season she will appear under the direction of the Shuberts.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Mrs. Alan Patrick Campbell, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Patrick Campbell, arrived yesterday on the Laurentic. She is going to Chicago to join her husband.

Liebler & Co. announce that they will probably give another special children's performance of "Alias Jimmy Valentine" soon, in response to requests for a repetition. No date for the second performance has been set.

Henry Kolker, who is now a member of The New Theatre company, has just disposed of his first play to Hunter & Bradford, who intend to produce it during their stock season in Hartford, with Mr. Kolker at the head of the company. The play is a modern American drama entitled "The Moral Right."

Truly Shattuck, the American actress, who has been playing in Drury Lane pantomimes in London for the last three seasons, is expected in New York on Tuesday on the Kaiser Wilhelm. She has not yet decided on her future plans.

The second of the Newman lectures on Africa was given in Carnegie Hall last night. The talk was illustrated with pictures showing the natives of the Uganda country, and of the boy King of that nation.

A benefit for the kindergarten school of the Congregation Beth Israel was given at the New York Theatre last night. The theatre was lent by Klaw & Erlanger, and the performers were all volunteers. They included many prominent vaudeville performers now in New York. The receipts amounted to about $5,000.

F. P. GARVAN TO WED.

Ex-Assistant District Attorney to Marry Daughter of A. N. Brady.

ALBANY, March 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Anthony N. Brady to-day announced the engagement of their youngest daughter, Mabel, to Francis P. Garvan of New York City, formerly Assistant District Attorney. The announcement was made at the Brady home, 411 State Street. No date for the wedding was given out.

The engagement just announced in Albany will mean the second marriage between the Brady and Garvan families, Nicholas F. Brady, Vice President of the New York Edison Company, a son of Anthony N. Brady, the traction magnate, having married Genevieve F. Garvan, sister of ex-Assistant District Attorney Garvan, several years ago. Nicholas Brady and Mr. Garvan had roomed together in this city during their bachelor days.

When ex-Assistant District Attorney Garvan's brother, the late Judge Edward J. Garvan, fell ill at the Garvan home, in Hartford, three months ago, of pneumonia, with complications which demanded an operation of transfusion of blood to save his life, it was his sister, Mrs. Nicholas Brady, who volunteered to supply the blood. She was placed in a cot at her brother's bedside, and a tube connected the artery in her right wrist with a vein in his left shoulder. Ex-Judge Garvan underwent the operation successfully, but suffered a relapse and later died.

Francis P. Garvan is the son of Patrick Garvan of Hartford, Conn., formerly a State Senator in that State. He is about 35 years old. He graduated from Yale University, where he was prominent in athletics. He studied law in the office of Col. James in this city, and when Jerome went into office in 1901 was appointed the latter's first assistant. He tried the Nan Patterson murder trial, the second Roland Molineaux trial, the Albert Patrick appeal, the Dodge-Morse marriage tangle, and got in shape all the evidence concerning the killing of Stanford White by Harry Thaw.

Mabel Brady's mother was Miss Marcia Myers.

MAYOR ENFORCES BLUE LAWS.

Stops All Business in Elkhart in Reply to Ministers' Protest.

ELKHART, Ind., March 27.—Just to show the public what the Sunday blue laws are if strictly enforced, Mayor Chester to-day closed drug stores, tobacco, fruit, and refreshment stands, and stopped all manner of business except inter-city trolley traffic. Milk and ice were delivered only in cases of absolute necessity. Livery stables and garages were locked tight. Electric cars to near-by cities were crowded with people seeking amusement.

The Ministerial Association had accused the Mayor of insincerity in the prosecution of managers of cheap theatres that have operated on Sunday.

NOVELTIES AT AVIATION FETE.

Butterfly and Chantecler Ballets Features of "Aerial Dance."

The Grande Fête d'Aviation, successor of the famous Redoute Rose and the Bal de Tête of former years, will take place this evening in the new ballrooms of the Hotel Astor, and will have as a feature Butterfly and Chantecler Ballets. Several "aviation" dinners, with "aviation" souvenirs will precede the event, to which Count Zeppelin has sent his photograph and an autograph letter. Orville Wright has written to those in charge of the affair wishing success, as have Miss Helen Keller and many others.

Guests have been requested to wear costumes suggesting Martians, stars, birds, or to wear favors suggestive of like ideas. Many girls will wear butterflies in their hair, and the men decorations of stars fastened on ribbons. Suitable decorations may be purchased at the fête. Mayor Gaynor and Mr. and Mrs. Seth Low are on the Reception Committee.

Tickets may be obtained at the ball from any of the Floor Committee, which includes Lawrence Smith Butler, George T. Brokaw, Kenneth Boardman, Austen H. Fox, Stephen Van Rensselaer, Anton H. Schefer, George K. Denny, Seymour Johnson, A. D. B. Pratt, Walter Ogden, Frederick S. Hoppin, Henry Morgan Post, Vail Stebbins, Chalmers Wood, Jr., George R. Satterlee, A. W. Perry, Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., Charles E. Greenough, Gano Dunn, Cleveland Cobb, Edward Chappell Ely, Roland Holt, E. K. Haskell, and Charles E. Fairfax.

PLAY GIVEN IN MID-OCEAN.

One-Act Sketch Presented on White Star Liner Laurentic.

Probably the first professional theatrical performance on a transatlantic liner was given during the voyage of the Laurentic from Liverpool, which ended here yesterday. Passengers on the vessel included John L. Shine, a London theatrical man, and other stage folk who are to appear here. As the Laurentic had but eighty first-class passengers, it was decided to give a theatrical performance instead of the regular concert.

On Wednesday evening "Hogmany," a one-act sketch, was presented. The broad space at the foot of the companionway leading to the promenade deck was curtained off for a stage, and the stairway became the rising tiers of seats. The play was a domestic comedy, the scene being laid in a flat in Bloomsbury, London. Mr. Shine played the part of the uncle, Alexander Crichton of the father, Robert Gray the husband, and Miss Marvel Hulme the part of Margaret Scarsdale.

Ship's fittings supplied the stage properties. The Laurentic was running through smooth seas at the time, and so the scenery and actors were able to work without tumbling about.

Fairbanks Is Improving.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 27.—Ex-Vice President Fairbanks passed a very comfortable day to-day, and his physicians said to-night that he was considerably improved over yesterday, when serious fears were entertained of pneumonia. The patient may be out in a few days.

Charles Sprague Smith Ill.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., March 27.—Charles Sprague Smith, head of the People's Institute of New York, is seriously ill with pneumonia at the home of his brother-in-law, Charles B. Cole, 371 Upper Mountain Avenue. His illness has been kept a secret because of the fact that his wife is in Europe, and news of his condition would alarm her.

AID FOR A WIDOW A BANK CRASH RUINED

Anonymous Sympathizer Raising Funds to Help Mrs. Wolff Keep Her Little Shop Going.

CREDITORS LEND A HAND

Her $567 Capital, Originally Loaned by Friends, Swept Away in the Searing Failure.

One at least of the creditors of Searing & Co. is likely to be saved from the loss of a livelihood, as well as of every cent she had in the world, which the collapse of the private bankers a few weeks ago at first threatened.

There were many pitiful stories told by the poor depositors in the uptown branches of Searing & Co., when they besieged the offices of McLoughlin, Russell, Coe & Sprague, 165 Broadway, counsel for the receiver, on the day of the failure, but the case of Mrs. C. Wolf, the little widow, who stood to lose the tiny notion store she had started on Wendover Avenue only a week before hit the lawyers and the reporters hardest.

The woman, whose husband died only a month or so before, leaving three children, had pluckily determined to keep the little ones, and she persuaded some of her husband's old friends of her ability to make a livelihood as a small storekeeper. She scraped together a small capital from these and relatives almost as poor as herself, and opened a tiny store at 543 Wendover Avenue, a thrifty neighborhood, where a stock of low-priced dry goods necessities promised to draw a comfortable trade. She paid a month's rent and partially stocked the store with sparingly bought goods to feel out the needs of the neighborhood.

The bulk of her capital, $567, was still on deposit with Searing & Co., awaiting to be expended on the additional goods that might prove in demand, and to take care of the bills for the first stock. The first week of business proved to the satisfaction of Mrs. Wolf's friends, who had advanced the money, that her idea in starting the store had been correct, and the future looked rosy to the widow.

Then came the smash of Searing & Co. With the loss of her cash capital she could not hope to get further credit from the wholesalers, or in fact to pay for goods already on the shelves. The bill of her largest supply house amounted to $162, and a check had been mailed to cover it the day before. Other checks, too, came back, and left without credit and without cash the business seemed doomed.

The story of the Widow Wolf's plight moved a woman of Inwood-on-the-Hudson, who wishes to remain anonymous, to write THE TIMES to ask if there was not something she could do. A TIMES reporter found that Frederick C. McLaughlin, counsel for the receiver, had quietly been working to the same purpose. He was powerless to do anything officially, but privately he had investigated the widow's case, with the idea of putting her on her financial feet again with his own money.

He found, he said, that it would take about what she had lost in Searing & Co. to do it right, and had agreed to put up $200 himself if the widow's friends who had put up the original capital could raise the rest. This she had been unable to do, and so the case rested until THE TIMES reader in Inwood came into it.

She thought she could get the additional $250 or $300. Lawyer McLaughlin explained that the widow would insist on keeping the transaction on a business basis; that she would accept the money as a loan, giving her claim against Searing & Co. as security, so that she would be to all intents in the same position she was in before the failure.

Yesterday the anonymous woman of Inwood formed THE TIMES that she had succeeded in getting together only $120, but hoped to get more. Meanwhile THE TIMES reporter has received assurances from some of the creditors of the widow, mostly small jobbers themselves, that she can have all the time she wants in paying her old bills, which total about $250. They say that any one who could buy as closely as she did and who could keep things as neat as that Bronx store would be sure to get ahead with half a chance.

ORCHESTRAL BENEFITS.

New York Symphony and Philharmonic Play for Pension Funds.

Both the New York Symphony and the Philharmonic Societies gave concerts yesterday afternoon for the benefit of their pension funds. The concert of the New York Symphony Society, given, as usual, in The New Theatre, with Walter Damrosch conducting, was the last of the season.

Mme. Nordica had volunteered her services for the occasion, and she sang the air, "Casta Diva," from Bellini's "Norma." After she had finished the ushers were kept busy for several minutes bringing flowers in pots, baskets, and boxes down the aisle. Quantities of them were piled on the platform, until they almost hid the players in the orchestra from view. Mme. Nordica added, with piano accompaniment, Schubert's "Erlkönig" and Brunnhilde's cry, from "Die Walküre."

The programme commenced with Goldmark's Scherzo Opus 45; and the first part closed with a performance of Strauss's symphonic poem "Don Juan." The second part of the programme was entirely composed of lighter numbers, commencing with Mozart's humorous sextet of Village Musicians, Ochs's Humorous Variations on a German Folk song, Haydn's Children's Symphony, and a galop and "Perpetual Motion" by "Strauss" completed this part of the programme. Although neither Strauss was given a prefix on the programme, there was none in the audience who thought that Richard had composed the galop, "Thunder and Lightning."

The Philharmonic Society's concert, given at Carnegie Hall, under the direction of Gustav Mahler, was also of a popular character. The orchestral numbers were the Overture to "The Flying Dutchman"; Liszt's symphonic poem, "Les Preludes," and Beethoven's Overture, "Leonore," No. 3. Carl Jörn sang the Prize Song from "Die Meistersinger" and an air from "The Bartered Bride." Theodore Spiering, the concertmeister of the organization, played Vieuxtemps's A minor violin concerto. The MacDowell Chorus, under the direction of Kurt Schindler, was heard in three numbers, in two of which Edna Showalter and Janet Spencer sang solos.

THE BOSTON SYMPHONY.

Last Week of Its Season Brings Out a New Work by Sibelius.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra finished its New York season on Saturday afternoon with its fifth matinée concert in Carnegie Hall. There was a very large audience, as there has been at all the concerts of the Boston orchestra given here this season. There was a new piece on the programme, entitled "A Saga," by Jean Sibelius, played for the first time in New York, in which there is the note of Finnish folk music, tender and pathetic. Also unfamiliar, though played here twenty years ago, was the third movement, entitled "On the Shores of Sorrento," from Richard Strauss's symphonic fantasia, "From Italy," one of his earliest attempts at programme music. It is founded on ideals and written with methods from which he has departed very far at present. Tschaikowsky's blaring patriotic overture (of which he had rather a low opinion himself) brought the concert to a close. Its opening was made by Haydn's so-called "Oxford" symphony.

Prof. Hess, concertmaster of the organization, was the soloist, and played Max Bruch's third violin concerto, also a composition that had not been heard here for years. It has never gained a tithe of the popularity of its composer's first concerto. Mr. Hess played with delicacy and finish.

Concert at the Metropolitan.

At the Metropolitan Opera House concert last evening the soloists were Mmes. Osborn-Hannah, Meitschik, and Courtenay, and Messrs. Clément, Dutilloy, Forsell, Gianoli-Galletti, and Witherspoon. The orchestra, under the direction of Max Bendix, gave a concert overture by Anton Hegner its first performance.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Hess-Schroeder Quartet assisted by Heinrich Gebhard, pianist, will give the fifth camber music concert in the People's Symphony Series at Cooper Union to-morrow evening.

Miss Harriet Ware, the American composer, will give a concert at the Plaza on Tuesday evening, April 5. She will have the assistance of Mme. Mariska-Aldrich, Miss Charlotte Lund, Berrick Van Norden, and Cecil Fanning.

Elizabeth Sherman Clark of the Metropolitan Opera Company will give a recital at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel to-morrow night. Her programme will consist of German, French, and English songs. She will be assisted by Christian Kriens of the Philharmonic Society.

DUDLEY EVANS DIES AFTER AN OPERATION

President of Wells Fargo & Co. Was 72, and His Age Told Against Him.

CLOSE FRIEND OF HARRIMAN

Directed His Business to the Last—Won a Colonelcy in the Confederate Army—His Business Career.

Col. Dudley Evans, President of Wells Fargo & Co., died last night in Roosevelt Hospital from the effects of a severe operation performed last Monday. He had been in his usual robust health up to a few weeks ago, and had been directing the Wells Fargo interests up to the last. The operation was a critical one, and Col. Evans's seventy-two years told against him in the struggle to regain his strength.

Col. Evans was the practical organizer of the present-day Wells Fargo express and banking business, and was a close friend of E. H. Harriman, with whose lines on the Pacific Coast and in Mexico the express company became closely allied. Mr. Harriman largely influenced the financial policy of the express company, and as one of its largest stockholders supported Col. Evans in a fight made by stockholder four years ago for a more liberal distribution of earnings.

After Mr. Harriman's death the company increased its capital from $8,000,000 to $24,000,000, paying stockholders a 300 per cent. dividend.

Coming of a family which had settled in Virginia in 1688, Col. Evans followed the State into the Confederacy and fought through the civil war, rising from private to Colonel of Cavalry.

The first of his family came from Wales to Fairfax County, settling near Mount Vernon. Just before the Revolution his ancestors went over the mountains into that part of Virginia which split off in the civil war. It was on the Monongahela, in what is now West Virginia, that the Evanses settled, and here, at Morgantown, Dudley Evans was born in 1838. He entered the Monongahela Academy at 15, and was graduated from Washington College in 1859.

He was engaged in teaching in Louisiana when the war broke out, and returned to Virginia to enlist as a private in the First Virginia Infantry. After the battle of Seven Pines, in 1862, he was commissioned Captain, and after the campaign in the Valley of Virginia became Colonel of the Twentieth Virginia Cavalry. He was captured near the close of the war, and spent a long term in a Federal prison. Besides his military service for his State, he was elected twice to the Virginia Legislature in the war time.

His connection with the Wells Fargo interests began in California, whither he went after the war. Col. Evans served the company in Victoria, B. C., and in Portland, Ore. He became Superintendent of the division which included the Northwestern States, and he was the real organizer of the company's business in that section. In the late eighties his responsibilities were extended largely, and in 1892 he became manager of the company, and was elected Second Vice President, holding that place until he succeeded to the Presidency in 1902.

Col. Evans, besides being President of the express company, was President of the Wells Fargo Bank of New York, Director of the Mercantile Trust Company, Treasurer of the Batopilas Mining Company of Mexico, Director of the Citizens' National Bank of Englewood, and of the Wells Fargo Nevada National Bank of San Francisco.

He was a member of a number of patriotic societies, including the Society of the Cincinnati, Sons of the Revolution, Society of the Colonial Wars, Military Society of the War of 1812, and the Veteran Corps of Artillery of New York, besides a number of Confederate organizations. He was twice Vice President of the Board of Visitors at West Point.

He leaves a widow and two grown children, Stanley S. Evans, a junior at Princeton, and a daughter, who is Mrs. Roger Dunscombe. Mrs. Evans was Miss Nellie Seely of New Brunswick, Canada.

Dr. David D. Wood.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—Dr. David D. Wood, the blind organist of St. Stephan's Protestant Episcopal Church of this city, who had an international reputation as a composer and performer, died to-day after a brief illness. He was born in Pittsburg in 1838, and had been totally blind since he was three years old.

Dr. Wood had been organist and choirmaster in St. Stephen's Church for forty-six years. He was a student in the Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind, located at Overbrook, a suburb, and was a pupil in mathematics of the late James G. Blaine.

The "MAURETANIA" approaching FISHGUARD for the first time, August 30th, 1909.

Engaging Rooms at the World's Most Famous Hotel by Wireless Telegraphy.

"The rush of tourists from America has begun. The Savoy is one of London's big hotels which is full. Never so early in the season has there been such a demand for suites of apartments. Hours before the 'Carmania' was in sight of land Wireless Telegrams were arriving at the booking offices of the Savoy, and soon every free suite was ready for its occupants."

—From "The New York Herald" (Paris.)

The comforts and luxury of the SAVOY HOTEL, its cuisine and service, combined with the most moderate charges, place it absolutely in the front rank of all hotels in Europe. The beautiful suites, with bathrooms attached, overlooking the River Thames and Embankment Gardens, away from the noise and bustle of street traffic, although in the centre of London, are greatly appreciated by all American travellers.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

STATE OF NEW YORK.
OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, ALBANY,
March 11, 1910.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS:

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at his office in the Capitol in Albany, N. Y., until 12 o'clock noon of Thursday, April 7th, 1910, at which place and hour they will be publicly opened and read, for improving the New York State canals pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 147 of the Laws of 1903, and of the amendments thereto, as follows:

CONTRACT NO. 90.

Erie Canal ....Section 6.
Oswego Canal ....Section 1.
Champlain Canal ....Section 3.

For furnishing and installing equipment for operating and lighting Lock No. 24 on Erie Canal, Locks Nos. 1, 2, 7, and 8 on Oswego Canal, and Locks Nos. 9, 11, and 12 on Champlain Canal.

Sheets 1 to 65 inclusive.

Plans may be seen and detailed specifications, engineer's estimate of quantities, proposal blanks, form of contract and bonds required and other information for proposers may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Public Works at Albany, N. Y.; at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Middle Division at Syracuse, N. Y.; at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Western Division at Rochester, N. Y., and at the canal office, Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the City of Albany or New York, issued by a National or State bank in good credit within the State and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon the execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The amount of bond required for faithful performance will be ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be endorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work, and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

F. C. STEVENS,
Superintendent of Public Works.

MANAGERS AND SUPERINTENDENTS
Should have a knowledge of practical ELECTRICITY. To conform to the needs of your particular business the knowledge of this important and widespread utility would serve many purposes, point to many weaknesses of which you are now ignorant. In every business to-day there is something electrical needing attention. What do you know about it? What results are you getting from those on whom you have to depend? What would be the result if you had a knowledge of applied Electricity?

The Conquest of Panama
In 1671 "The world's corsair chief" took 21 days to capture Panama and amass a fabulous treasure at the risk of his life.
In 1910 it takes you just 21 days to gather a wonderful wealth of interesting recollections by visiting the scenes of his exploit on one of our splendid 5,000 ton steamships. The modern conquest of Panama would have made even Morgan's eyes bulge with wonder.

THE COMMODITIES MARKET.

Drought Menaces Wheat—No Relief Visible in Provision Stringency—Cotton Trade Dull, but Ominous.

The wheat market during the past week was almost entirely a weather one. The interest in the market has changed almost entirely from the near by positions to the forward deliveries, and the trade in the May is apparently just a little evening up by parties who have been interested or by cash dealers. The speculation has all been in the new crop deliveries, and they have been very strong. The advance from the recent low point has been about 8½c on Chicago September and 6½c on July. New York September has advanced 7¼c, and July has advanced 6⅝c. The great advance in the September delivery has been due to the feeling that the crop has been injured and that the September, which is strictly a new crop month, will be most affected.

There has been a large speculative interest in the September, and a leading Chicago house, which has been identified with the unsuccessful bear side of the market for the last eight months, has been a leader on this advance. The rise in the market has been based on the weather conditions in the Southwest. There has been no rain in Kansas and generally in the Southwest since the snow disappeared some weeks ago. There was a good deal of injury as a result of the weather conditions of the Winter, and there has been no moisture to assist the developments of the crop as a result. The claims regarding the damage have been very serious, and some of the time of a very sensational character. The trade has not credited the full reports of damage, and therefore there has been a somewhat disappointing result of market movement on account of this disbelief.

Over Friday there developed a distinctly low barometer in the Rocky Mountain region centred over Colorado, and the predictions were for showers in Nebraska, south to Texas. As a result of this there was a quick reaction in prices Saturday morning, but the decline did not precipitate important liquidation.

The trade is looking forward to the next Government report with a good deal of interest. This report will be issued as to the conditions April 1, and it will show the condition of the crop at the beginning of the growing season. It is expected that there will be a considerable loss in the condition from the very high average of last December. The condition was reported then at 95.8 on 33,483,000 acres, which was the second largest total ever reported. With this very high condition it is generally believed that there might be loss of a good many points in the condition and still have the crop an average one. The average condition in Winter wheat at harvest has been 79.6 for ten years, so that the condition can decline 16.2 before it is down to the average, and with the tremendous acreage there is also possibility of a considerable loss in acreage without reducing the total below the average recently harvested.

There has been a rather narrow market in corn during the week, but a rather interesting one. The fluctuations have been somewhat irregular. Bear interests made a rather severe attack against prices and carried the market off, but from the decline there was a good rally. There has been little change in the statistical conditions during the week, but there does not seem to be so much pressure on the cash market. The stocks of corn are very large, and with the warm weather rapidly approaching there has been a great deal of apprehension about the keeping quality, and the opinion has been very generally expressed that this corn at points of accumulation would have to be disposed of before there could be any marked advance. With the large stocks at Chicago nearly 12,000,000 bushels against less than 5,000,000 bushels last year, and with the large stocks at other centres the pressure of spot corn has been pronounced.

The actual receipts of corn from the country have been decreasing rapidly of late. This may be due to the rush of farm work, which has already begun, and is also possibly due to the decline in prices. With very little more corn reported in the country than last year the prices of corn are from 1 to 5c a bushel under a year ago, and the feeding value of all farm animals is very much in excess of a year ago. The average value of hogs is now $10.82, against $6.70 last year, showing an apparent increase in the feeding value of corn, estimated as equal to about 50c a bushel. The feeding value in the way of cattle is about 15c a bushel more than last year, and there is also an increase of from 20 to 25c in the estimated feeding value in other stock. While the supply of live stock on the farm is recognized as less than last year on account of the small supply of swine temptation to feed is greatly increased by the high price for the live stock.

In oats the situation has been somewhat similar to that in corn, as far as price fluctuations are concerned, but the situation otherwise is different. On the basis of the May delivery prices are about 11c under a year ago, while the price for September oats is practically the same. There has been a decrease in the interior movement of oats for the week, and there is not so much stuff offering from the country. This possibly may be due to the very favorable weather conditions, which have permitted excellent progress in farm work. Reports indicate that there has been a great deal of plowing and seeding of oats, and the conditions in this respect have been unusually favorable. The absence of rain, which has been a serious factor in wheat, and has caused an important advance in price, has been very favorable for all other Spring work.

The provision situation continues a very strained one, and prices have been advancing very rapidly as a result of the developments. There has been no gain in the movement of hogs, notwithstanding the fact that quotations have been at record prices and the packing returns show a steady falling off compared with last year. The packing for the first three weeks of the Summer season has been only 1,095,000, against 1,715,000 a year ago. This immense decrease showing a movement barely two-thirds of last year has been followed by a steadily advancing price. There was a sharp reaction early in the week due to profit taking, but in the absence of any change in the statistical situation or any improvement in the movement of hogs the market promptly recovered, and the latter part of the week showed new high levels for some of the active deliveries. A study of the market positions, taking the price for the forward deliveries as a guide, does not indicate any expectation of increase in the movement of live stock this Summer. The September deliveries are practically even with the near by, and the general trade feeling seems to be that until another season has elapsed, which it is hoped will give a big supply and low prices for feeding stuff, there seems to be little hope of any increase in the quantity of live stock sufficient to cause any radical recession in values.

COTTON.

The position in the cotton market the past week has been a decidedly interesting one. This condition arises from the fact that the congestion in the near-by deliveries has become so pronounced that the trade is afraid to operate. There has been as yet no spectacular fight, but both sides seem to have settled down to a waiting game in a battle of the bales for supremacy. Neither side is disposed to make the slightest move that will in any way increase the hazard of its position. The bull party has been taking the cotton steadily since the first of the month, and has been shipping it abroad. This has been reflected in the decrease of over 50,000 bales in the certificated stock of cotton in New York, and the effort to reduce this stock is apparently leaving no stone unturned in order to get as much cotton away from here as possible before the May delivery.

On the other hand it has been stated with great definiteness that a good deal of cotton will be brought back from Liverpool to New York. The statement was definitely made that at least 20,000 bales would be returned, and that possibly the total might be as high as 90,000 bales. This cotton, it was claimed, was being brought back at a great loss for the purpose of delivery on May contracts. It was also stated that the bears were straining every nerve to get cotton in the South in order to bring it forward for delivery here. When the final struggle comes the trade is apprehensive that the action in the market will be very radical, and as a result there is almost no new trade in the near positions, every one being afraid of a violent fluctuation, and is leaving the market severely alone.

This condition is also affecting the forward deliveries, and there is very little trade even in the new crop. The new crop has been influenced by the continued drought in Texas, on the one hand, and on the other hand by the very favorable conditions elsewhere and generally very favorable weather for field work. The very fine weather which has prevailed every day has permitted rapid advancement in farmwork, and there is reason to expect that unless some serious weather condition intervenes there will be unusual progress with the work made before the beginning of the month. The weather conditions which developed in the Far Southwest on Saturday were accompanied by predictions of showers in Texas, and it was hoped that the low barometer which was centred over the Rocky Mountain region would bring general precipitation along the entire Rocky Mountain plateau.

The trade conditions are apparently of a very dull and unsatisfactory character. The sales of cloths at Fall River during the past week were only 70,000 pieces. Curtailment in production is increasing rather than decreasing, and the reduction there for the past week was the largest so far reported, amounting to about 40,000 pieces. Curtailment is reported very generally, and there seems to be in some quarters a growing belief that the reduction in consumption for the balance of the season will bring the distribution within the limits of the supply and leave a fair carry-over.

The statistics for the week were incomplete on account of the holiday, but the movement was expected to show another decrease in the into sight movement compared with last year, and also a good decrease in the spinners' takings for the week. The statistics as to the amount are, however, of but little importance just at present, unless there should be a heavy increase in the into sight movement brought about by congestion in the near-by deliveries and the desire to get cotton forward for the near-by deliveries.

The Census Bureau statement of the cotton ginning for the year, which was issued on Monday, was just about in line with expectations. The report showed a total of 10,048,643 bales of cotton ginned against 13,086,005 bales last year and 11,057,822 bales two years ago. In addition to this the amount of linters was 314,597 bales, against 346,126 bales last year and 268,060 bales two years ago. This made the grand total for the crop of 10,363,210 bales, against 13,432,131 bales last year. This is a decrease of 3,068,891 bales compared with a year ago. The weight of the bales is also slightly less than last year, so that the total decrease in spinnable cotton was even greater than the decrease in the number of bales. Unless the visible supply of American cotton and the spinners' stocks of American cotton carried over last year should be reduced to very small proportions it will be necessary for the consumption the balance of the year to be reduced fully 1,000,000 bales more, and even then the carry-over would be materially lessened.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILWAY COMPANY.
NOTICE OF SPECIAL STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a special meeting of the Stockholders of The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company has been called by the Board of Directors of said Company, to be held at the principal office of the Company in the City of Richmond, Va., on the 28th day of April, 1910, at 12 o'clock noon, to consider and act on the following propositions:

(a) to consent to, approve and authorize an increase of the authorized common capital stock of the Company by the addition thereto of stock in the par amount of $36,739,700, to be divided into 367,397 shares of the par value of $100 each, so as to make the total authorized par amount of such common capital stock $100,000,000, consisting of 1,000,000 shares of the par value of $100 each;

(b) to authorize the creation of an issue of convertible bonds of the Company, to be known as its Four and One-Half Per Cent. Twenty-Year Convertible Gold Bonds, to be limited to a principal amount of not exceeding $37,200,000 at any one time outstanding, such bonds to be issued, from time to time, either as coupon bonds of the denomination of one thousand dollars, or as registered bonds of the denomination of one thousand dollars or of any multiple of one thousand dollars that the Board of Directors of the Company, by resolution, may from time to time prescribe, such bonds to bear such date or dates, to be payable, both principal and interest, in such currencies and at such fixed rate or rates of exchange, and to be convertible at the option of the holder into common stock of the Company upon such terms, as said Board may determine and as may be provided in any trust indenture approved by said Board under which such convertible bonds may be issued; such bonds and such indenture to contain such provisions as to conversion, redemption, maturity, and otherwise as said Board may determine and such indenture to contain appropriate provision to the end that the Company shall not (1) create any additional mortgage upon the lines of railroad owned by it at the date of such indenture or upon any part thereof without making effective provision in such additional mortgage that all such bonds then outstanding, unpaid and unconverted, under such indenture shall be secured under such additional mortgage by a lien upon said lines of railroad, which shall be upon a parity with the lien thereupon enjoyed by any bonds or other obligations issued under such additional mortgage and secured thereby, nor (2) during the life of the conversion privilege, issue any stock entitled to preference or priority over its common stock;

(c) to approve the form and terms of such bonds and of such indenture; to authorize the issue and disposition of such bonds; to authorize so much of such additional stock as may be required, to be reserved and set aside and used, together with the unissued remainder of the common capital stock as now authorized, solely for the conversion of such bonds, and to authorize the residue of said $36,739,700 additional of said common stock to be issued from time to time as said Board may, in the exercise of its lawful discretion, determine;

(d) to ratify and confirm such action theretofore taken or authorized by said Board, in anticipation of such action of the Stockholders, as may be submitted to the meeting; and

(e) to transact such other business as may properly be brought before the meeting.

The stock transfer books of the Company will be closed for said meeting on the 5th day of April, 1910, at 3 o'clock P. M., and will be reopened on the 29th day of April, 1910, at 10 o'clock A. M.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

As is usually the case at this season of the year, securities markets last week presented no trustworthy evidence from which to form conclusions regarding the future. As a matter of fact, in thus marking time the markets are simply reflecting the mental attitude of the financial community. The impetus derived from the returns of the country's farms last year is practically spent, and, as is always true at this season, it is impossible as yet to determine just how much force will be forthcoming from the same sources this year for the propulsion of the business and financial machine. By mid-April more will be known as to the probable fortunes of agriculture, which in spite of all attempts to subordinate it still ranks foremost in the factors making for prosperity in this country, and then forecasts of fairly reliable character regarding the year as a whole may be attempted. In the interval the markets will probably continue to be very much at the mercy of the professional trader who deals not so much in certainties as in theories. The course of prices on the Stock Exchange last week betrayed the presence of this class of speculator, for whom a three-day recess possesses unpleasant possibilities in a news way, and engenders, therefore, a disinclination to carry stocks over so prolonged a stock market holiday. Liquidation of lines of securities held, or abstention from further purchases, and absence of outside interest, resulted in a movement of values narrow and at times heavy, although the final level of quotations at the close of business on Thursday night was little if at all below that obtaining on the previous Saturday. It might be said, therefore, that securities displayed, to some extent a firm undertone, a fact due doubtless to the recognition by the speculative element of the underlying confidence of the financial community in a favorable outcome to the various matters which in this period between hay and grass are elevated to the rank of financial factors. This confidence is particularly noteworthy in the case of the anti-trust suits now before the Supreme Court for decision. In the Tobacco case a technically adverse decision seems to be generally looked for, but the belief prevails that the court's verdict will be so softened by obiter dicta pointing out avenues for complying with the law the business world will be in no wise disturbed. The adjournment of the court on Monday last for a recess lasting until April 4 has removed, of course, the possibility of a decision before the latter date. As a result of the remarkable revolt against the power and methods of Speaker Cannon in the House of Representatives and the wholly unexpected election, on the tariff issue, of the Democratic candidate in the Fourteenth Congressional District of Massachusetts, Wall Street's interest in political affairs revived sharply. The question of moment is, of course, whether the tide has so far turned that a Democratic House is possible, and, what is presumably the same thing, a resumption of the tariff agitation. So far as financial markets are concerned, it is obviously too early to venture an answer, although the question itself will doubtless be freely repeated as the season advances.

A development of the week which gave rise to a great deal of satisfaction in the financial district was the settlement reached between the Western railroads and their dissatisfied employes. The difficulties over wages and other matters at issue threatened a fortnight ago to involve the operation of not less than 75,000 miles of road, promising congestion and perhaps serious disorders in almost every manufacturing and financial centre of the territory between the Mississippi and the Rocky Mountains. All this appears now to have been avoided by arrangements made through the good office of representatives of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and the Commissioner of Labor. The labor situation on the Eastern railroads is still unsettled, particularly in New England, where certain groups of New Haven employes voted last week to strike, but it is not impossible that the basis of the settlement in the case of the Baltimore & Ohio and now with the Western roads may suggest a satisfactory solution in the territories where disputes are still on. As May day approaches there is, of course, more or less talk of general labor disturbances, but so far this is nothing more than talk. In the meantime trade continues in good volume the country over, as reflected in the direct reports from steel and iron lines, where orders are running very close to capacity, in railroad earnings in widely separated parts of the country, and in the full bank exchanges. In the textile trades, where hesitation has followed the high price of cotton, some improvement is discernible; certainly the reductions made in a number of lines of goods by leading wholesale concerns last week are a step in the right direction. The copper trade continues thoroughly unsatisfactory.

Interest attached to the New York City bond offering for various reasons, but mainly because a successful sale was sure to be accepted as an indication of a sound investment situation. Any notable foreign participation carried assurance of the continuation of European interest in our securities and at the same time promised a measure of relief in the foreign exchange market from the rather disturbing position created by the abrupt advance in the Bank of England's discount rate. While some qualification is necessary, it may be said in a general way that, considered from these points of view, the city's offering was successful. The price obtained, 101.28 per cent., is a fair one for such a bond to command at a moment when the high cost of living is driving money into securities of the maximum yield. That it was secured undoubtedly implies much confidence in the new régime in the administration of the city's affairs. The fact that the bonds were four times oversubscribed is evidence to the same effect. Although it is practically impossible to ascertain the exact figures, a fair estimate of the foreign buying of the bonds places the amount so taken at some $10,000,000, and the easier tendency of the foreign exchange market subsequent to the offering would seem to bear out this estimate. Those who looked for prompt exports of gold from this side following the rise in the English Bank rate, apparently failed to take this European buying of the bonds into account, and it may even prove that they also overlooked two other requirements to be fulfilled preliminary to any substantial gold outflow. The first of these has to do with Continental money markets, which have remained surprisingly easy in the face of the English Bank action. A promise that this ease will continue is contained in the cabled report of the remarks of the executive officer of the German Bank to his Directors at their meeting on Tuesday last, expressing the opinion that no reason existed for a corresponding advance in the discount of the German institution. If Continental demands upon the English Bank for gold diminish, and those of Egypt, India, and South America do not increase, it is possible that the Directors may find themselves able to strengthen the Bank's position without resort to importations of gold from this side. In any event such a movement will doubtless be impeded by the somewhat harder local money markets which are indicated for the next month or so. It is understood that securities approximating $150,000,000 will be brought out during that period, in which there also occurs the disbursement of the enormous April 1 dividend and interest payments. In conjunction these developments are believed by banking authorities to be quite sufficient to lead to a material hardening in rates for the use of money.

THE MARKETS OF EUROPE.

But Some Expect Continued Activity in Stocks as Soon as Holidays End.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 27.—The Stock Exchange is apparently divided in opinion as to the prospects of the coming week, for while some members consider that there will be no abatement of activity others have made arrangements to extend the Easter holiday to the beginning of the following week.

Money market conditions are not expected to show much change until April 5, when there may be a temporary squeeze owing to the conversion of the war loan of twenty-one millions. After that period comparative ease is expected.

DULL WEEK IN PARIS.

Special Correspondence THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 27.—As might have been expected, Holy Week, with its prospect of four days of idleness, proved dull and uninteresting on the Bourse. The raising of the rate of discount in London caused some indecision in State funds. Russians, however, remained firm and French rentes advanced slightly.

Although news of increased profits was favorable to Rio Tinto, the prices quoted for it revealed a considerable uncertainty, and it closed 18 points below the final sale of the previous week.

ADVANCING PRICES IN BERLIN.

Easter Holidays and Dear Money Fail to Produce Depression.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 27.—Despite the Easter holiday apathy and dear money conditions apropos of the quarterly settlement, firmness and advancing prices were the features of the week on the Boerse.

The Russo-Austrian entente over the Balkans and favorable reports of the Deutsche Bank and Disconto Gesellschaft and the firmness in the British coal market were some causes of buoyancy.

Iron shares were universally higher despite bad reports from Silesia, and German loans prospered from the proclamation of the new laws compelling the State insurance corporation to invest a quarter of its capital in domestic Government bonds.

NEW AID PROMISED TO SAVE HOCKING

Reorganization Plan Ready Which Will Put the Company on Its Feet Again.

CHANCE FOR BROKERS, TOO

Creditors of the Three Firms Dragged Down in the Stock Collapse May Get Their Money.

Definite plans looking to a complete reorganization of the Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Company, the $7,000,000 concern which went into receivers' hands following the collapse of the so-called Hocking pool and the failure of three brokerage firms a few weeks ago, have been under way for several days, and it was learned yesterday from an authoritative source that the negotiations which are expected to take the company out of the receivers' hands will probably be completed in the near future.

Just what effect, if any, this reorganization will have on the affairs of the three brokerage firms—J. M. Fiske & Co., Lathrop, Haskins & Co., and Roberts, Hall & Criss—which went to the wall when Hocking stock dropped some 60 points in one day after a phenomenal rise, has not been learned, although there have been unconfirmed rumors in Wall Street for several days that plans were on foot which might result in a settlement of all claims against the three firms.

Nor has it become apparent what form the reorganization of the Columbus and Hocking will take or what new money will be put into the company to set it on its feet again and provide for the development of the company's properties in Ohio.

Keene the Largest Holder.

At present the largest individual holder of Columbus and Hocking stock is supposed to be James R. Keene, who is accredited with owning a block of 7,156 shares. Whether this would mean that Mr. Keene would either assume the active management of the company himself in the event of reorganization, or would designate a personal representative to dictate the future policy of the company is also in doubt. But friends of Mr. Keene say it is hardly likely that he would decide to take a personal interest in the management of the company.

Ever since the company went into receivers' hands the stockholders have been trying to devise some plan for reorganization which would allow the development of the property. Several meetings of the large stockholders have been held recently. William A. Barber, one of the receivers, has for several weeks been obtaining reports on the status of the company's property now in operation and approximate values of the property still to be developed. He has compiled a comprehensive statement which will be made public this week, when it is likely that the proposed plan for reorganization will be made known.

One of the most persistent rumors regarding the reorganization of the company has been that either J. P. Morgan & C. or the Standard Oil interests, or both, have been considering taking over the Columbus and Hocking properties for the purpose of developing them. This was emphatically denied by one in authority in the company's affairs yesterday, who said that neither of these interests had ever made overtures looking to control of Hocking.

Mr. Keene's legal representative, Solomon Hanford, refused yesterday to discuss the report that Mr. Keene might take an active part in the reorganization of the Columbus and Hocking Company. He denied, however, that any plan was on foot which might result in Mr. Kenne's personally settling the claims of creditors of Roberts, Hall & Criss.

Extent of Company's Business.

Ever since the Hocking Company went into receivers' hands it has been current talk in Wall Street that the properties controlled by the company were of sufficient value to attract certain interests which could command sufficient money to develop the properties on an extensive scale.

More than 13,000 acres of land are owned outright by the company in Athens, Hocking, Perry, and Vinton Counties, Ohio. The company also has under lease 250 acres of mineral land. It has four blast furnaces, with a capacity of 70,000 tons annually; also fourteen active coal mines, with an annual capacity of 2,000,000 tons, along with town lots, stores, dwelling houses, blacksmith shops, and other buildings. On some of the company's lands are clay deposits said to be valuable.

Two years ago the company established a new brick plant at Kachelmacher, Ohio. It has a daily output of 120,000 bricks. Last year a subsidiary company—the Columbus and Hocking Oil and Gas Company—was formed in New York, with a capital of $100,000, to drill for oil and gas on lands owned or controlled by the Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Company.

Where the Stock Is.

According to the company's last report prior to its falling into the hands of receivers, there were outstanding stocks to the amount of $6,900,400 common, valued at par. And of the $500,000 6 per cent. non-cumulative preferred stock there was outstanding $20,000, valued at par. Also there was outstanding $24,000 of the old common stock and $18,900 of the old preferred.

According to Moody's Manual, the company paid dividends as follows: On common, one-half of 1 per cent. in December, 1902, and March and June, 1903, and one-fourth of 1 per cent. each in November, 1903, and March, 1904. On the preferred 6 per cent. was paid from April, 1907, to April, 1909, inclusive. In 1907-08 the company produced 652,721 tons of coal, which was an increase of some 200,000 tons over the previous year. The company's balance sheet for the year ended March 31, 1908, listed the company's property and franchises at a value of $8,289,139.

The officials of the company are N. L. C. Kachelmacher of Columbus, Ohio, President; H. S. Haskins, New York, Vice President, and A. L. Thurman of Columbus, Secretary and Treasurer. On the Directorate, according to the last issue of Moody's Manual, are, besides the above-named officials, T. P. Linn, D. N. Postlewaite, C. M. Voorhees, H. S. Leverich, R. F. Little, and H. O. Seixas.

Bankruptcy Case Still On.

While the plans for the reorganization are apparently nearing final settlement, the hearings in bankruptcy before United States Commissioner Alexander in the case of the J. M. Fiske & Co. failure are still under way, although supposed to be nearing an end. James R. Keene has still to appear again before the Commissioner. Ralph Wolf, counsel for Irving L. Ernst, receiver for J. M. Fiske & Co., said yesterday that Mr. Keene would probably be called on to testify again this week.

Edward Popper of Popper & Sternbach, brokers, is expected to appear before the Commissioner to-morrow to tell how he came to sell some of Mr. Keene's stock just prior to the break in Columbus and Hocking. Mr. Keene, the last time he was examined, said that Popper & Sternbach made deliveries of Hocking stock belonging to him which had been in their possession.

Transcripts from the books of some 160 firms of brokers, showing all the transactions in Hocking stock during the existence of the so-called Hocking pool, have been handed over to Mr. Wolf by Perley Morse, President of the Standard Audit Company, who for nearly two weeks has been going over the brokers' statements and checking them up, in many cases with the books themselves. Some of these will be read off at the hearing, either to-morrow or later in the week.

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 27.—Announcement of the mine merger at Butte had very little effect on the copper stock market, whereas the bad news from the Granby Mine affected the entire list. The merger has little in it to interest or concern the public—except in the case of Parrot—while the news that Granby's ore reserve is only 6,000,000 tons (enough to last five years) caused a decline throughout. The decline in Arizona Commercial appears to be based on insufficient reasons, as the company is likely to be on a self-supporting basis next month, and the property is in excellent condition.

Lake has shown a marked weakness of late, though there has been no news from the mine. Perhaps this has been the cause of the weakness. La Salle has held well in price. The belief is that the mill returns are good, though nothing is given out.

The Atlantic management is driving a crosscut from the Baltic lode eastward, to test what is thought to be the Superior lode, and Houghton is about to begin drilling toward this same Superior lode. Directly south of the Lake Mine is the new Algomah, whose promoters are filled with confidence.

Ojibway is hoisting good stamp copper from the 650-foot level, and Seneca, adjoining, is taking out first-class copper rock. Conditions at Hancock are exceedingly promising, and the property is believed to be fully established. Adventure's shaft is down about 470 feet, approximately half the desired depth.

The important news comes from Superior and Boston that, in addition to the favorable developments in the Great Eastern shaft, ore averaging 6 to 8 per cent. copper has been encountered in the Gardner shaft at the fourth level, 2,000 feet away, and that some good ore has been struck on the Iron Ledge vein, which crosses the Great Eastern.

Butte and Superior, having taken over North Butte Extension, as well as Butte and New York, is now the largest one-company owner in the district. There is said to be some improvement in the lower levels of North Butte, but exact information is lacking.

Ray Consolidated reports 52,000,000 tons of 2.25 per cent. ore developed and partially developed—a remarkable increase. Gila Copper's reserve is 14,600,000 tons, assaying 2.05 per cent. copper. Shannon is opening up the richest ore in its history, and at the same time reducing costs.

The Weekly Financial Review.

A comprehensive article on the tariff complications with Germany, France, and Canada that have just been settled after prolonged diplomatic negotiations appears in to-day's NEW YORK TIMES WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW. The peculiarities of the tariff systems of these countries are described, and the trade figures showing how our commerce has been affected are given.

KANAWHA & MICHIGAN RAILWAY COMPANY

To the Minority Stockholders:

Following the refusal of Mr. George D. Mackay to furnish the undersigned stockholders with a list of stockholders, we take this means of communicating with you and of advising you that we are opposed to the sale of the minority stock on the terms offered in the circular issued by Mr. Mackay, nor do we see why 1½% should be deducted from this price for the services of a Committee which has succeeded in rendering no real value to the stockholders.

We accordingly invite your co-operation in an effort to secure for the minority stockholders their rights, of which they have now been for many years deprived.

We understand that the promises made by the past management to pay dividends during the present year equal to 40% of the net earnings and to pay a stock dividend amounting to about 11% in order to recoup the stockholders for the loss of past dividends are repudiated by the Purchasing Company. It was upon these promises and not on the recommendation of the Mackay Committee that the minority stock was allowed to be retained.

Stockholders are advised not to join in the proposed sale. Those wishing to co-operate with the undersigned Committee will please FORTHWITH address William C. Taylor, Secretary of the Committee, 37 Wall Street, N. Y. City.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF LIQUIDATION, CITY DEBT, Room 206 City Hall Annex.
New Orleans, March 11, 1910.

The Board of Liquidation, City Debt, acting under authority of Act No. 19 of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana for the session of 1906 and Act No. 116 of said General Assembly for the session of 1908, both of which said acts have been ratified by Constitutional Amendments and have become part of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, will receive sealed proposals at its office in the City of New Orleans, Louisiana, up to twelve o'clock noon on Tuesday, April 12th, 1910, for the purchase of seven million dollars in face value of the new public improvement bonds of the City of New Orleans, authorized by and to be issued under the provisions of the acts aforementioned and the Constitutional Amendments ratifying same.

Said bonds are of the denomination of one thousand dollars each, and bear interest at the rate of four per cent. (4%) per annum, evidenced by interest coupons attached, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July of each year respectively. They are by law exempt from taxation, State, parish and municipal.

Said bonds are payable January 1st, 1942, and are subject to call at the option of the City of New Orleans after January 1st, 1928, and will be issued under and subject to the acts aforementioned, which are referred to and made part hereof for greater certainty and particularity. Said proposals shall be received under and subject to the following conditions, to wit:

1st. No sale shall be made of any of the said bonds unless the aggregate of the bid or bids shall be for the full amount of said bonds, to wit, $7,000,000 in face value.

2d. Said bonds will be adjudicated to the highest bidder or bidders, provided that said bonds or any part thereof, shall not be adjudicated for less than par and accrued interest, less a commission not to exceed six per centum on the principal thereof.

3d. All matured interest coupons on said bonds shall be cut from said bonds and cancelled, and the successful bidder or bidders shall pay the interest which may have accrued on said bonds up to the date of delivery.

4th. Said bonds shall be paid for by the successful bidder or bidders in cash as fast as they can be signed and delivered, said deliveries to be made on twenty-four hours' notice.

All bonds to be delivered within a period not to exceed ninety days from date of final acceptance of bid.

5th. No bid will be received or considered unless accompanied by a certified check on some chartered bank in the City of New Orleans for three per cent. of the amount of each bid, the check or checks of the successful bidder or bidders shall be cashed and the proceeds retained by the Board of Liquidation as a guarantee that the said bidder or bidders will comply with his or their bids, and said proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the bonds last delivered to said bidder or bidders respectively. In case of neglect or refusal to comply with any bid the proceeds of said bidder's check shall be forfeited to the Sewerage and Water Board.

6th. The Board of Liquidation, City Debt, reserves the right to reject any and all bids. Mark all bids "Proposals for purchase of new public improvement bonds."

Further particulars and information will be furnished upon application to T. Wolfe, Jr., Secretary Board of Liquidation, City Debt, Room 206 City Hall Annex, New Orleans, La.

T. WOLFE, Jr.,
Secretary Board of Liquidation, City Debt.

GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Trustee

For further details as to the issue we refer to a letter of Mr. Pierre S. du Pont, Treasurer of the Company, from which we summarize as follows:

1. They are the bonds of a well established and favorably known business which has been in successful operation for more than one hundred years.
2. Value of the physical properties of the Company aggregates more than twice the amount of the entire bonded debt.
3. Net current assets alone are $22,558,258, while the total outstanding indebtedness of the Company, including its bonded debt, is but $16,433,829.
4. Average net earnings for the last five years have been $5,047,866. Amount required for interest charges $863,360.
5. Bonds are followed by $13,521,248 preferred stock and $28,078,365 common stock, which pay regular dividends and have an aggregate market value of approximately $50,000,000.

We offer $1,000,000 of the above bonds at 88½ and accrued interest, yielding over 5$\frac{80}{100}$ per cent per annum, and recommend them as a safe and attractive investment.

BUILDING MATERIAL.

Exteriors and Value.

THE drawing qualities of an apartment house or office building depend greatly upon the exterior.

It costs as much to lay a poor brick as a good one. The difference in cost of material may be but slight; but color, richness of tone, durability of color, may mean the success or failure of a building as an investment.

How to Write a Want Ad to Get Results.

By George Matthew Adams, in Newspaperdom.

WRITE it in the same words that you would talk it. Be brief, concise, but explicit. It is better sense to save an hour of your time from useless interviewing than to save a word in your ad. or a few pennies from your dollar.

Have clearly in mind the actual thing you want your ad. to bring about. If it's an employe wanted be sure to ask for the one you want and no other. Make the ad. illuminative. If you ask for a position put conviction and a feeling of force into your words. Make them tell a story.

Put a dash of human interest in your Want Ad. Give it a little color. Make it look as though it came from a brain with something in it.

EXAMPLE OF A WANT AD. TO GET A POSITION

SITUATION WANTED—BY A YOUNG man, 24 years of age. I can do one thing well—keep books and audit. I have had 6 years' experience and can furnish the best of references. Unmarried. Live at home. Clean habits. I want to change my present position because I want a larger opportunity. I want to grow—not rust. I want an interview, and I want it bad—for I have the goods to deliver. Address, etc.

Say everything that is necessary to give a clear idea of what is wanted. No more. Better spend several dollars and get what you want, than waste dime after dime and fail to get what you want. Clinch things. It's worth while.

The Want Ad. sure to bring results is the one that goes to the heart of things and arouses interest at a glance.

To Sum Up: Be natural. Be brief—but explicit. And write your Want Ad. as though you really wanted and expected to get the thing advertised for.

MASTER'S SALES.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the Southern District of New York.—JULIUS J. WOLF and ANTHONY S. AMBROSE, Complainants, against GUARDIAN FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA and GEORGE H. CALVERT, Receiver of said Company, Defendants.

Pursuant to an order of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, made in the above entitled cause, bearing date March 4th, 1910, and filed in the office of the clerk of the said court on the same day, the undersigned, the Special Master appointed by the said order for the purpose of selling the property therein directed to be sold, will, on Wednesday, the 20th day of April, 1910, at 12 (twelve) o'clock noon of that day, sell, by John L. Parish, Esq., auctioneer, at public auction, to the highest bidder, the said property, a description of which is given below, in accordance with the terms and provisions of the said order, in the main entrance on the ground floor of the building known as Numbers 80 and 82 William Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York. The following is a description of the property to be sold:

All the right, title, and interest of the Guardian Fire Insurance Company of Pennsylvania, and of George H. Calvert and Arthur Berry as ancillary receivers of said company in and to

That certain plot, piece, or parcel of land with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, of the City of New York, in the County and State of New York, on the easterly side of William Street, and bounded westerly in front by William Street aforesaid, easterly in the rear by ground now or late of Henry Andrews; southwesterly by Liberty Street, and northeasterly by Maiden Lane, containing in front on William Street aforesaid seventy-two (72) feet and eight (8) inches in the rear on said grounds now or late of Henry Andrews sixty-one (61) feet eleven (11) inches; on Maiden Lane thirty-two (32) feet and seven (7) inches, and on Liberty Street twenty-five (25) feet and seven (7) inches, be each and every of said several distances and dimensions more or less, said premises being now known and designated by the street numbers as Eighty (80) and Eighty-two (82) William Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, of the City of New York. The above described land being part of and lying in the block designated as Block Number Sixty-eight (68) in Section Number One (1) on the map entitled "The Land Map of the City of New York," prepared by the Board of Taxes and Assessments under authority of Chapter 349 of the Laws of 1880, and Chapter 166 of the Laws of 1890, together with the appurtenances.

The said property will be sold subject to unpaid taxes, assessments, and water rates, which are liens thereon, and subject to the principal and unpaid installments of principal and interest of three certain mortgages thereon, the principal sum of which mortgages aggregates two hundred and twenty thousand dollars ($220,000.) The bid of the highest bidder will be provisionally accepted by the Special Master. No bid for the said property which shall not exceed the sum of thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) will be provisionally accepted, and the highest bidder at such sale must, upon his bid being provisionally accepted, forthwith deposit with the undersigned Special Master the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) in cash or certified cheque payable to said Special Master, drawn upon a bank or trust company in the City of New York, satisfactory to said Special Master, which cash or cheque shall constitute a pledge that the bidder shall make good his bid if such bid is approved by the court; and in the event that such bidder does not so make good his bid, the cash or cheque shall be forfeited.

In the event of the bid being approved by the court the purchaser shall have thirty (30) days within which to examine the title to the said property.

For a statement of the terms and conditions of sale reference is hereby made to the said order of sale, copies of which may be obtained from the undersigned and from the auctioneer, John L. Parish, 149 Broadway, New York, and from Arthur Berry, Esq., one of the ancillary receivers of said company, 180 Broadway, New York. A statement has been prepared by the ancillary receivers as to the liens upon the said property, copies of which may also be obtained from the undersigned and from the auctioneer and from the ancillary receiver, Arthur Berry. Said statement and this advertisement are advisory only, and are in no respect a warranty, and the purchaser shall be deemed to have purchased in reliance upon his own information or knowledge of the property purchased.

Dated New York, March 21, 1910.
EDWARD L. PARRIS, Special Master.
45 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.
WILLIAM M. CHADBOURNE, Solicitor for George H. Calvert and Arthur Berry as Ancillary Receivers of Guardian Fire Insurance Company of Pennsylvania, 49 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

PARK ELEPHANTS GIVE A FREE SHOW

SPECIAL TREAT FOR EASTER

A Water Duel Between the Two Pets of Keeper Snyder Amuses Children Gathered About the Enclosure.

Some 500 charter members of the "Sunday in the Parks Club," so called because of the regularity of their visits to the parks on clear Sundays, gathered around the back yard of the elephant house in Central Park yesterday morning to witness a free performance which had been arranged by "Bill" Snyder, the head keeper. Word of the event had been quietly passed among members of the club, for Snyder had told some of his friends more than a week ago that he had arranged a special celebration for Easter.

He and his assistant, Bob Hurtin, had been preparing for the show almost all Winter. They had spent many of the long days, when visitors at the zoo were few, drilling the two big elephants, Hattie and Jewel. The instruction of the elephants took place very in the mornings, even before the policemen stationed in the zoo arrived, so few employes in Central Park, outside of Snyder and Hurtin, knew just what was being accomplished in the way of training Hattie and Jewel until yesterday morning. But when it was all over yesterday and the two beasts made their final bow to the applauding spectators, every one who had witnessed the performance voted it a good show.

The Easter day parade in Fifth Avenue had hardly begun to form when the members of the Sunday in the Parks Club gathered in the rear of the elephant house. Inside they could hear Jewel snorting now and then as she toyed with the bale of hay which Snyder serves the elephants for breakfast. Once Hattie shook the big folding doors of her house as though eager to get out into the bright sunshine. Snyder and Hurtin were busy feeding some of the other animals. By the time they had finished, the walk leading by the back yard of the elephant house was filled with a holiday crowd. Some of the small boys had squeezed through the inclosure and were perched on the fence dividing the elephant corral from the next inclosure.

The crowd was getting a little impatient when Snyder appeared and opened the heavy doors, which shield the elephants from the cold in the Winter. He and Hurtin unclasped the chains from the legs of the two beasts and Hattie and Jewel trotted quickly into the back yard and began to trumpet from sheer pleasure at the signs of coming Spring.

There was no preliminary to the show. At a word from Snyder, both elephants walked over to Snyder's office, a small building to the north of the inclosure, backed up against the front of this, and stood waiting.

"Down, both of you!" said Snyder, sharply, and the two elephants sat down on their haunches, with trunks held high in the air, just as they do in the circus. The front feet of Hattie and Jewel left the ground at a word from Snyder, and while they sat thus balanced on their haunches Snyder and Hurtin sprang lightly up, using one of the front feet as a step. In another second each keeper was standing on the head of one of the elephants. There was another word of command from Snyder, and both he and Hurtin were lifted by the elephants' trunks and swung lightly back to the ground.

Snyder ran to the door of his office, opened it, and out bounded a brindle bulldog, one of several which Keeper Snyder keeps as pets.

"Here, Jack, up with you," said the head keeper, and, catching the dog around the body, tossed him to the back of Hattie, where he spread wide his feet and stood, while Hattie walked slowly around the yard trumpeting every time Snyder told her to do so. This feature of the performance slipped a cog, though, for Hattie had not gone far before Jack lost his footing and fell. The dog might have been hurt had not Hurtin deftly caught him in his arms.

There was a tub of water in the yard which had been filled earlier in the morning by the two keepers. Snyder gave an order to Jewel and pointed to the tub. Jewel walked over, stuck her trunk into the water, and the water line began to lower. As she withdrew her trunk Snyder again gave a sharp command. Straight up in the air went the end of Jewel's trunk, and a stream of water shot out as though from the nozzle of a hose. Jewel had evidently figured the angle to a nicety, for the water in descending landed squarely on Hattie's back. Hattie shook her massive head and also ran to the tub, took a long draught, and sent a stream of water straight at Jewel.

The onlookers backed away hastily, thinking it about time to get out of range, but none of the water hit them. The elephants performed several more tricks, both seeming to know exactly what Snyder wanted of them. For nearly an hour they amused the visitors to the Park. As a final feature of the performance Jewel lifted Snyder's hat from his head with her trunk, waved it, and then put it back. This ended the performance for the day, and Jewel and Hattie went back to finish their breakfasts.

A great crowd visited the Central Park Zoo during the day. Until sunset the walks in front of the cages were crowded, and up at the Bronx Park Zoo there was also a large crowd. It was said there late in the day that 20,000 persons visited the park in the afternoon. Most of the animals in the Bronx Park Zoo were out in their Summer corrals yesterday. All the elephants were stretching their legs outside. The five big Galapagos turtles which spent the Winter in the reptile house were out in their runway, and the iguanas and monitor lizards from Australia were also taking the sun for the first time outdoors since last Fall.

OHIO MEN AT WHITE HOUSE.

President Talks Over His Legislative Programme with Them.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—President Taft summoned to the White House tonight the Republican members of the House from Ohio to discuss with him the Administration programme now before Congress, including the railroad, postal savings bank, anti-injunction, conservation, and Statehood bills. The political situation in Ohio was not talked over.

All of the Ohio delegation was present with the exception of Representative Johnson.

CHILDREN SEE MAN'S SUICIDE.

Blows Out His Brains in Clump of Bushes in Harlem.

In the presence of a score of children at play a well-dressed man about 35 years old committed suicide at 192d Street and St. Nicholas Avenue early last evening by shooting himself in the right temple. He died instantly.

Detective Grieber of the Harlem Detective Bureau heard the shot and found the man lying in a clump of bushes, a revolver still clutched in his hand.

In the pockets were $25, a knife, and keys, but no papers that would lead to his identification. The tailor's marks had been cut from his clothing, but in his hat was printed "M. Marcus."

The man was about 5 feet 8 inches in height and weighed about 130 pounds. He was clean shaven, had dark hair, and wore a brown overcoat, black suit, and dark red tie.

DOGS GUARD DEAD WOMAN.

Keep the Coroner and Six Policemen Away from Her Body on a Scow.

Six policemen of the East 104th Street Station, a Morgue keeper, and a Coroner were trying hard early this morning to unravel a woman's death which might be due to violence on board the ash scow Young Kelly, lying at the foot of East 101st Street. They were opposed by two Great Dane dogs. Policeman Wey had lost most of his lower garments to the dogs at 1 o'clock, and the eight men were holding a consultation as to how best to circumvent the dogs and get at Mrs. Fina Andersen's body.

She was 50 years old, the widow of a part owner of the scow, who was drowned three weeks ago off West Forty-seventh Street. After his death Mrs. Andersen took charge of the scow, employing Frank Bloom to be the rest of the crew. Last night at 8 o'clock Bloom stumbled into the East 104th Street Station and said he had found Mrs. Andersen dead in the boat's cabin. He had been away from the boat only half an hour when he found her dead, he declared, and had since been wandering around looking for a policeman to tell about it.

The ambulance surgeon from Harlem Hospital, who looked at the body, said that Mrs. Andersen must have died about 7 o'clock. Though the doctor said there were no marks of violence on the body, the police locked up Bloom as a suspicious person.

At midnight Coronor Hellenstein, six policemen, and a Morgue keeper went to the scene to take charge of the body. Since Bloom had been arrested the Captain of a neighboring ash scow had released two Great Dane dogs, each almost four feet tall, to guard the boat in Bloom's absence.

Policeman Wey was the first to descend the ladder leading into the cabin. His companions heard him give a shout, heard the growling of the dogs in the darkness, and presently Wey came running up the ladder with the lower end of his coat and his trousers torn into tatters. He was not seriously injured.

A light was thrown into the cabin. The policeman tried to induce the two dogs to go over into a corner by throwing hunks of meat there; they hoped to grab the body and get it out while the dogs were busy with the meat. The Great Danes paid no attention to the allurements.

After a consultation it was decided to send one of the policemen to the police station to bring back Bloom to tie up the dogs. The police are not inclined to believe that Mrs. Andersen met with foul play, but they wanted to make sure. And for that reason the Morgue keeper was to take the body away with him.

COLEMAN PROBABLY NOT WED.

Accused Bank Clerk Won't Discuss His Matrimonial Plans.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 27.—George W. Coleman, the former twelve-dollar-a-week bookkeeper of the National City Bank, who is under heavy bonds on account of the discovery of a quarter of a million dollar shortage at the bank, declined to-day to say whether he has married Miss Mamie Hightower of Kansas City, who came East a fortnight ago to wed him. If the marriage has taken place, it is being kept a profound secret by all concerned.

Coleman took out a marriage license a week ago, and Miss Hightower was quoted as saying that the ceremony would be performed yesterday, but when Coleman's father heard of the plan, he announced that the marriage would positively not take place. The elder Coleman is the principal bondsman for his son, and he said to-night that he believed he would be able to exert sufficient influence to stop the marriage, although the young man was over 21 years of age.

Coleman passed the greater part of Easter Sunday in automobiling with friends, and evinced no sign of worry over his affairs. Miss Hightower was not of the party.

NO FEE FOR AUTO VISITORS.

New Jersey Expected to Pass Bill Letting Down Bars to Outsiders.

Automobilists of New Jersey have entered into an agreement to work for the passage of State Senator Wilson's automobile bill, which was introduced in the Senate last week. This bill will permit automobilists who are non-residents of New Jersey to tour through the State without paying any license fee providing they are properly licensed in their home State and display their license signs.

The proposed Wilson law is the first piece of automobile legislation that the New Jersey automobilists and the leaders of the Senate have been able to agree on in several years. It was due primarily to the efforts of the Associated Automobile Clubs of the State that the Wilson bill was framed. In return for an agreement not to fight an increase in the license fee the State leaders promised the officials of the Associated Automobile Clubs that they would advocate the free touring privilege to non-residents.

In viewing the Wilson bill the New Jersey motorists feel that it will nullify any effect which the proposed New York law would have in forcing Jersey motorists to pay an additional fee as soon as they cross the Hudson River, and the bill is so worded that it is certain that States like Pennsylvania, which make the extension of touring courtesies a matter of reciprocity, will now recognize New Jersey.

It was stated yesterday by a prominent New Jersey official that the Wilson bill will surely become a law. The measure, it was said, is favored by Senator Joseph S. Freinghuysen of Camden County, who has heretofore opposed such automobile legislation. Senator Frelinghuysen was responsible for the defeat of the Edge bill, which advocated reciprocity. The Wilson bill was drafted at a conference of Senate leaders and the automobile clubs' officials. The automobilists have a clear majority of the House, and no trouble is anticipated in the Senate.

BROKE INTO WIFE'S FLAT.

Sister of Actor Bernard Has Husband Arrested.

Charged with threatening his wife, who is said to be a sister of Sam Bernard, the comedian, and with smashing in her front door yesterday afternoon, Isador Gutstadt, a shirt cutter of 29 East 111th Street, was in the Night Court last night before Magistrate Herrmann.

To the Magistrate, Gutstadt showed a letter purporting to come from the Mayor's Executive Secretary acknowledging a letter which Gutstadt says he sent to the Mayor on Feb. 25, giving alleged information of gambling houses in Harlem.

In answering the charge brought by his wife Gutstadt said that he called at the 111th Street flat to see his three children. He said that he received a cold reception from his wife. He then went to the apartment of a friend, where he was arrested by Policeman Engleberg of the East 104th Street Station, who arraigned him in court.

Gutstadt told the court that he was released from Blackwell's Island yesterday after having been a prisoner there since Feb. 27 at 2:30 o'clock in the morning, on which date he woke up, he says, to find four policemen standing over him. They told him to get dressed and go with them to the East 104th Street Station, he said, as his wife had charged him with threatening her and with intoxication.

CARS HIT AT CEMETERY GATE.

More Than a Score Hurt in Rear-End Collision in Laurel Hill.

More than a score of Easter visitors to the cemeteries in Queens were injured yesterday in a rear-end collision between two trolley cars in front of the entrance gates to Calvary Cemetery No. 2, in the old School Brook Road, in Laurel Hill, on the outskirts of Long Island City. The collision occurred about 3 o'clock, when a closed car came to a sudden stop in front of the cemetery gates. It was followed closely by an open car in charge of Motorman Theodore Roleff.

Both cars were going down a steep incline, and the open car in the rear was crowded with passengers on the running board. Whether Roleff lost control of his car or his brakes failed to work could not be learned, but as the closed car stopped it was noticed that the open car continued on with undiminished speed. Several hundred men, women, and children were crowded around the cemetery gates waiting to meet friends or for a car going back to the ferry. Motorman Roleff was seen tugging at the brake, and the spectators realized that a collision was unavoidable. Many of them screamed, while others turned their faces as the crash came. In the impact Motorman Roleff was thrown over the dashboard and knocked senseless.

Passengers aboard the open car were thrown into the roadway, and those in the closed car were cut by the flying glass. Miss Clara McGinnis and her brother, Legorie, who live opposite the cemetery, carried several of the more severely injured ones into their home until the arrival of Dr. Joseph Broadman from St. John's Hospital.

Many passengers received minor injuries, and one woman who refused to give her name went all the way to a drug store in Vernon Avenue, Long Island City, to have a wound in her upper lip sewed together. Dr. Broadman found that only Mrs. Ellen Keyes of 137 Franklin Street, Greenpoint, was hurt badly enough to take to the hospital. David Mindermann, 74 years old, of 397 East Fifty-second Street, Manhattan, a retired business man, had a severe scalp wound, and Mrs. Annie Drumm of 440 Ninth Avenue, Manhattan, had a bad gash over her right eye. They were taken in charge by friends after their injuries had been dressed.

There's a Great Difference in Beers
All Beer is good, same as all meat is good, but everybody knows that the porterhouse is choicer than the hip steak.
In Beer, superiority depends upon a thousand things—fine imported hops, choicest malt, purest water, modern and hygienic brewery, perfect bottling plant, long experience—these are only a few of the characteristics which stamp the seal of purity and goodness on

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Temperatures have fallen on the Middle Atlantic Coast and have risen in the Ohio Valley and the lake region; elsewhere changes were unimportant. Temperature readings were above the normal over practically the entire country. The indications are that the weather will remain generally fair Monday and Tuesday in the States east of the Mississippi River and in the West Gulf States. In the Plains States and the Mississippi Valley fair weather Monday will be followed by increasing cloudiness and local rains Tuesday. Rains are probable in the plateau and Rocky Mountain regions Monday, followed by cloudy and cooler weather Tuesday in these regions.

The temperature will rise Monday in the Middle Atlantic and New England States, and it will be considerably above the normal over the Eastern half of the country during the next several days. The winds along the New England Coast will be moderate south and southwest; Middle Atlantic Coast, light to moderate south.

Steamers departing Monday for European ports will have moderate south and southwest winds with generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS TO-DAY AND TUESDAY.

New England, Eastern New York, and New Jersey—Fair and warmer Monday and Tuesday; moderate south and southwest winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair and warmer Monday; Tuesday, fair; moderate south winds.

3 A. M........	39	44	4 P. M........	52	55
6 A. M........	39	40	6 P. M........	50	49
9 A. M........	44	43	9 P. M........	48	46
12 M........	53	49	11 P. M........	50	45

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 48; for the corresponding date last year it was 46; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 41.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 41; at 8 P. M. it was 47. Maximum temperature 57 degrees at 3:10 P. M., minimum 40 degrees at 5 A. M. Humidity, 65 per cent. at 8 A. M., 66 per cent. at 8 P. M.
